'DON'T LEAVE LEAGUE,' ALLIES PLEA TO ARGENTINA

REPUBLIC MAY TRIUMPH OVER GREAT POWERS

Hymans to Lift Gag Law Today.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—Argentine Republic withdrew today from the league of nations.

Minister of Foreign Affairs M. R. Pueyrredon presented today a letter from his government commanding him to withdraw because of failure of the assembly to act on four questions covered by him in his big speech on the third day of the assembly session.

Each of these points had been shelved or adjourned until a subsequent meeting of the assembly.

Argentina's demands for amendments were supported by the Canadian, Australian, and New Zealand delegations. The Canadian delegation declared it would back up Señor Pueyrredon and contended that article X. must be stricken from the league covenant.

The Argentine delegation handed the note of their government to President Paul Hymans at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the Hotel Bergues.

Urges Reconsideration.

After trying to persuade the South Americans to reconsider their action, President Hymans pressed them not to leave until after Monday. He promised to bring the four proposals before the assembly again on that day in hope that decisions might be reached at the present session.

Mr. Pueyrredon agreed to remain until Monday evening. If the assembly agrees to take up the questions at once, Argentina will return to the assembly. Otherwise the delegation will leave for Paris Tuesday or Wednesday. Railroad accommodations already have been ordered.

Argentina's Four Points.

The four points on which the Argentine delegation insists are:

First—Admission to the league of all sovereign states applying for membership. Second—Admission of all small states to representation in the assembly though without voting privileges (this is taken to apply especially to the new Baltic powers, Esthonia, Latvia, etc.).

Third—Direct election of the council of the league by the assembly with the selection for each term of representatives from four hitherto unrepresented states.

Fourth—Compulsory jurisdiction for the international high court.

"Now we are out of the league," said Mr. Pueyrredon this afternoon following his interview with President Hymans.

"We are in the same position as the United States.

"Article XXVI. of the covenant says any member of the league dissenting to an amendment automatically ceases to be a member. We are, therefore, out.

A Hopeless Task.

"Why should we go on constructing a building without sound foundations? The covenant as the foundation of the league is unsound. It was hastily constructed by victorious states. Other states were not consulted.

Flaws in the covenant were uncovered by this meeting of the assembly and even before, but the league is going ahead with the building instead of revising the foundation.

"The delegates' time is being wasted with talk of typhus prevention; the opium trade, and repatriation of war prisoners.

"Argentina wanted to change the covenant. The council would delay the work a year. It should be done now."

Explains Nation's Demands.

Mr. Pueyrredon then turned to the four points named in his ultimatum.

"Without compulsory jurisdiction the world court will be worthless," he asserted. "What good is any court where the plaintiff cannot hale the defendant into court or in which the defendant can refuse to appear? Until all nations belong to the league it cannot be a real one. It can only be a group of nations led by the victorious allies.

"All council members should be elected and, at the end of every term, say of five years at least, four members should be chosen whose nations previously had not been represented on the council. Then every member state in the league will have been represented in the council."

Mr. Pueyrredon concluded with a statement of his country's intentions in connection with its ultimatum.

Argentina insists upon discussion and decision upon its four points now. If the proposals are not adopted Ar-

SERGEANT ODELL WINS TRIBUNE'S $100 HERO PRIZE

Award Drawn by Battler of Robbers.

For outwitting and outshooting two gunmen who pinioned him unexpectedly between two revolvers, THE TRIBUNE awards its $100 hero prize for November to Sergt. Horace C. Odell. The award is made on the joint recommendation of Chief of Police Fitzmorris and First Deputy John H. Alcock.

If, while resting comfortably in the driver's seat of an automobile, two revolvers in the hands of hard looking gunmen were suddenly pressed against your temples with an order to do a certain thing and do it quickly, what would you do? But that is just what Odell didn't do.

Alcock Tells the Story.

Here is the story as told in First Deputy Alcock's letter of recommendation:

"On Nov. 19 at 10:15 p. m. Odell, while in charge of an automobile in front of my home, 3460 West Adams street, was covered by two armed robbers, one on each side of the car, with drawn revolvers.

"They ordered him to start the motor. He informed the man on the left (who was doing most of the talking) that the car was locked and that he had no key. The man called him a liar, and Odell offered to get out and be searched.

"While Odell was leaving the car under cover of the robbers' guns, he drew his revolver and fired at the man on the left side of the auto. The bandit ran to the rear of the car, followed by Odell, who continued a close fire. As Odell approached the parkway the second bandit opened fire and Odell turned and fired at him. The shot resulted in the death of this bandit, who was identified as John Baumbaugh, 1248 South Crawford avenue.

Shoots the Other Bandit.

"After shooting Baumbaugh, Odell followed the first bandit, known as Carl Stepina, alias William Ryan, shooting him in the hand and through the lower part of the abdomen.

"This in my opinion is one of the most exceptional acts of bravery and courage displayed by any member of the department during the year."

Stepina was later captured, but escaped from the county hospital, and although the police have been almost in sight of his coattails twice since his escape he is still at large.

Others Get Honorable Mention.

THE TRIBUNE gives honorable mention to the following for brave acts performed in November:

Patrolman Anthony J. Tamillo, Sheffield avenue station, for pursuing two alleged burglars into a dark room and capturing them. The prisoners, Peter Peterson and Axel Hagstrom, were held to the grand jury in $5,000 bonds by Judge Stewart.

Detective Sergeants Thomas Mangan and Fred Ristau, Shakespeare avenue station, for shooting and killing John Kristoveck, alias Wilson, Carey, and Kalow, an ex-convict and dangerous gunman, on Oct. 26. A few hours previously Kristoveck had shot and killed Sergt. Edward Marpool.

Detective Sergeant John J. Walsh, South Clark street station, for "shooting it out" with a colored man, backed by three unarmed colored men, who sprang upon Walsh from the rear on the night of Nov. 2. Walsh was wounded twice, but continued to fire at his armed assailant until the latter fled with his comrades.

THE TRIBUNE awards $100 each month to the fireman, policeman or life saver who performs the bravest act during the month.

Favors Maternity Strike to Get World Disarmament

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 4.—Advocating a "bride's strike" and the refusal of married women to give birth to children until future wars are made impossible through disarmament, Mrs. Jessie Handy Mackay president of the Milwaukee Peace society, and chairman of a mass meeting of the International Association of Mechanics, and the society here tonight, declared that in this way pressure could be brought which would produce immediate results.

PARADERS WAIT WHILE HARDING BUYS A PAIR OF "SHOES WITH TOPS"

Newport News, Va., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Parades may come and parades may go, but President Elect Harding will not take any chances of catching his death of cold by appearing in chilly weather with tropical low cut shoes on.

He discovered on his arrival from Panama here today he had neglected to leave out of his trunk his high shoes when he left the Canal Zone. He jumped into an automobile and was whisked away to a nearby shoe store, where he purchased a pair of "high toppers."

In the meantime the parade formed in honor of the next president of the United States waited.

"SERJEANT" KEEPS BOY OUT OF STATE SPELLING MATCH

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4.—Shumway Bird, 13 year old pupil of the Mechanicsburg graded school, near here, spelled sergeant with a "j" today and lost the right to represent Sangamon county in the state "bee" to be held here Dec. 29 in connection with the State Teachers' association convention.

Helen Christopher, 13 years old, of Auburn, and Master Bird were the only ones standing of the original twenty-eight contestants in the "bee" when 100 words had been given out and it was necessary for them to spell off the tie. Fifty additional words were selected for them and it was in this batch that Master Bird foozled "sergeant," first prize, and the right to represent the county in the state match going to the girl.

The word "gizzard" proved disastrous for most of the pupils. The adjective "woolly" and the nouns "oyster" and 'cinnamon" also were frequently fatal. Three pupils spelled ninety-nine out of the 100 words correctly.

BOY, 14, STEALS $4,500; SPENT PART IN CHICAGO

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The ticket agent in the Pennsylvania terminus was surprised today when a 14 year old boy, attired in an expensive overcoat, cap, and knickerbockers, stepped up to the window and said: "One ticket to San Francisco, please, and how much will it cost?"

"One hundred and thirty-four dollars and twenty cents," replied the agent.

"O, that's easy," replied the youth, as he reached into his pants pocket and brought forth a fat roll of bills.

George Spenser, head of the terminus police, stepped up to the window and said: "Where are you going, young man?"

After some questioning the lad said he was Elliott Michener and confessed to taking $4,500 from the pay roll of the Baldwin Locomotive works, Philadelphia. He had spent $900 in clothes, railroad fares, and hotel bills in Chicago, Philadelphia, and this city. The Philadelphia police came after him.

U. S. CITIZEN MAY LOSE 'NIP' ABROAD

Bill Proposes to Pursue Thirsty Tourist.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The latest "reform" bill is drafted by Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington and it would forbid all American citizens abroad and members of the American diplomatic and consular services to serve liquors at public or official functions, or to recognize clubs where such beverages are dispensed. The bill also would require the diplomatic service to enforce this provision.

The measure, if enacted into law, and reformers expect it to be, would prevent Ambassador John W. Davis from belonging to or attending social gatherings at the St. James club in Piccadilly, which is open to all members of the diplomatic corps. It would bar drinks from the table of every American ambassador. It might even prohibit a diplomat from handing a friendly visitor a glass of wine or beer in his home.

Six Months to Six Years.

The proposed bill goes further than any suggestion heretofore made in connection with the prohibition movement.

Drastic penalties are provided for infringement of the proposed law. The second offense would entail a prison term of from six months to six years. In such cases the sentence is mandatory, the judge being given no discretionary powers.

Unlawful for "Any Citizen."

The binding of American diplomats and consular officers is made effective in this section:

"That it shall be unlawful for any citizen of the United States or person owing allegiance to the United States to serve any of the intoxicating liquors mentioned here in section 1 at a public or official function, or give official recognition to any club or association that keeps or serves such liquors for beverage purposes."

The beverages forbidden are described as including "distilled, spirituous, malt, vinous, or any intoxicating liquors that contain one-half of 1 per cent, or more, of alcohol by volume, by whatever name they may be called."

Some members of congress and government officials in touch with diplomatic and consular affairs have commented with disfavor on the proposed bill, it was said today.

Mints Established New Coin Record Last Year

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The mints established a record in coinage during the last fiscal year, according to the annual report of Director Ray Baker, 809,500,000 coins being turned out, an increase of 446 per cent over 1915. More than 512,500,000 of the coins in the record output were 1 cent pieces.

HIGH HEELS AND LOLLYPOP MAY BE BARRED IN BAY STATE

Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.—A ban on high heels such as never carried a Puritan or Pilgrim ancestor to church is sought from the legislature by the Massachusetts Osteopathic society. Announcement that the society would introduce a bill to stop the high heel at its source—the manufacturer—was made at its annual convention today.

The bill will limit height of heels to one and one-half inches.

The fad of sucking lollypops also was attacked by Dr. Robert H. Veitch of Medford because of a danger of "functional derangement of the stomachs of our school pupils" by its excessive use.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW OF LAWSON SUES HIM FOR TWO BEDS

Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Thomas W. Lawson today was sued by his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Arnold Lawson, for twin beds once used by her husband and herself and for other furniture she claims her father-in-law has "converted" to his own use.

The action is an echo of the divorce litigation of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lawson, which is not yet ended.

"While Mr. Lawson and his son have been known as millionaires, I have been living in poverty," Mrs. Lawson said today. I was brought up in luxury, but I have had to scrub floors and do all sorts of housework. We are now living in a small apartment. I could not send the girls back to the Connecticut school. I am sleeping in the dining room on a hospital cot I borrowed."

MUMPS FORCES USE OF AUTO AS HOSPITAL

Waukegan, Ill., Dec. 4.—Gus Erickson of Waukegan has the mumps. Erickson, being brought up at the Lake Bluff orphanage, hasn't any home. He couldn't go to a hospital because the one here hasn't any contagious ward. He couldn't stay at Muller's store, where he works, because it would drive trade away. He couldn't go to the Muller home because it would be quarantined.

So he got into the Muller's sedan car in front of the store and stayed in it all day today and had his meals brought to him.

Tonight the Mullers finally got the John O'Brien family to take in the lad and submit to quarantine. The Mullers will pay the family for its trouble and take meals to its members.

Ex-Kaiserin Stronger; Leaves Bed for a Time

DOORN, Dec. 4.—Former Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany, whose illness has given some concern for several days, was a trifle stronger today. She was able to leave her bed for a time and received her sons.

MAC SWINEY'S WIDOW ASKS FOR U. S. HELP

Looks to Traditions Here for Freedom.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A young woman with a beautiful Irish smile and a fine Irish face, which told of long drawn out grief and courage, arrived in this country today to lead the campaign in America for the cause of Ireland.

In the harbor, at the pier, and in her progress through the city, Mrs. Muriel MacSwiney, widow of the lord mayor of Cork, received a welcome from New York. No marring incident occurred, but from the fervid enthusiasm manifested for her, it appeared that this youthful Irishwoman, small, shy, and refined, was probably the most powerful representative of her cause and the most persuasive suppliant for American sympathy and help that Ireland has ever sent to this country.

Hopes to Advance Cause.

Mrs. MacSwiney made it clear in her first statement that she intended to do what she can to fulfill the hope of her husband that his sacrifice would become a power in advancing the Irish cause. After a rest at the Hotel St. Regis, she said:

"I am deeply grateful for the wonderful reception, and especially to the women of America for their generous tribute to my husband's memory. I have beautiful letters from America, even from American children, and I am happy to be in a country where so many, many people are thinking about the cause of Ireland.

"You will understand, of course, that I can say nothing about conditions there until I have appeared before the nation's commission on Ireland which invited me here. The hearing is to be on Wednesday next in Washington, I am told.

Always Expected Help.

"But I should like to say that both my husband and I always expected that America would help us very greatly in winning our freedom.

"We feel in Ireland that America has a greater responsibility in the matter than any other land on account of her fine traditions and her war pledges and because there are so many millions of our kin in this country."

Mrs. MacSwiney rested for a while after making the trip to the St. Regis from pier 60, where the Celtic docked at 9:40 a. m., and at noon she received about fifty people representing newspapers and magazines and Catholic and Irish societies.

There was a striking contrast between her appearance and the tragic historical setting in which she comes to America. A mere girl, with brilliant eyes and a quick engaging smile which was easily her most marked characteristic, she presented no trace of an appeal for sympathy or pity for herself because of her individual sorrow.

Mrs. MacSwiney left her girl baby in Ireland and according to the stewardess, who attended her on the Celtic, most of her talk was about the child and little about politics or her cause. Among her visitors at the hotel today were a delegation of Longshoremen, headed by Joseph Ryan, international vice president Longshoremen's association. Mrs. MacSwiney gave her prettiest smile when she saw a picture of herself and her baby on a button in Ryan's lapel.

"Let me see that," she said. "But the baby does not look like that now. She is much bigger."

Mrs. MacSwiney was too worn by the trip, during which she never left her cabin, to undergo an interview today with some fifty cross-examiners who were ready for her. They formed a big circle around her. She shook hands with those in the inner ring and a blanket introduction served for the rest.

Young and Pretty Girl.

The visitors left after observing that she was an unaffected young girl in the early twenties, with deep blue eyes, perfect teeth, brown hair, parted in the middle, more than her share of Irish beauty, and with a strong determination to do her best for Ireland.

Thousands had gathered near the pier early this morning, and police lines were drawn from Fourteenth street to Twenty-third street. Mounted policemen clattered up and down, while scores of private detectives stood on guard, fearing Irish sympathizers might attack the property of the British steamship company.

Tribute to British Skipper.

Mrs. MacSwiney came over in a British ship under the British flag and was treated as a distinguished passenger of whom the ship was proud. Be-

Kentuckians, Revenue Men, Fight Battle

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 4.—Nine moonshiners were captured and a number of others are believed to have been killed or wounded in a battle between thirty moonshiners and fourteen revenue officers in the southern part of Bell county, near the Tennesse border, according to reports received here tonight by Chief Prohibition Agent U. G. McFarland.

None of the government officers was injured, although more than 1,000 shots were fired. Five stills were destroyed.

Pursue Those Who Flee.

Government forces were headed by Prohibition Agents Steve Cornett and Charles Winfrey. The prisoners will be taken to Pineville tomorrow.

The scene of the battle is in one of the wildest sections of the eastern Kentucky mountains. The moonshiners who escaped fled into the mountains with federal agents in pursuit.

Plans for the raid were made during the term of Circuit court in London, Ky. For more than two years the moonshiners of that section of the state have been growing bolder in their operations.

Crops In; Go to Jail.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 4.—Albert Ballard of Menifee county and Dilliard Sparks and Stort Horton of Estill county today voluntarily returned to the county jail to serve sentences for alleged moonshining. They were convicted in federal court last September, but were allowed freedom upon their pledge to return after harvest of crops.

GUARD ON ERRAND PRISONER FLEES EVANSTON JAIL

Robert Field Jr. sauntered out of the Evanston jail last night after Justice John F. Boyer had remanded him to the grand jury in bonds of $3,000 on a charge of larceny. Some vehement discussion is ensuing in the Evanston police department as a consequence.

Mr. Field, colored, lived at 1934 Jackson street, Evanston. Arrested after rigorous sleuthing, he confessed he had stolen automobile tires valued at $200 from the car of C. M. McDonald, 519 Davis street. He was brought before Justice Boyer yesterday. With him was E. P. Jones, charged with receiving the stolen tires. After they had pleaded guilty, Chief Charles Leggett ordered them conducted to cells.

Detective Sergeant Arthur Johnson and Policeman George Petska locked them up. An hour later Dennis Keeshan, night jailer, was making his rounds when Field hailed him with: "Please bring me the evening newspaper and a pot of coffee."

Mr. Keeshan departed to fulfill the request. When he returned Field's cell was empty.

Mr. Keeshan explained that he thought Field was locked in his cell, as the door was closed. Therefore he did not lock the main door of the jail when he went out to buy the newspaper and coffee.

JURY REINDICTS 4 AS REBUKE TO PROSECUTOR

Chief, Judge, Clash on Crime Writs.

The law was assisted in its battle against crime in two important particulars yesterday.

The grand jury reindicted four members of the so-called Tompkins gang on burglary charges after eight out of nine indictments (which the jury previously had voted against the prisoners) had been nolle prossed by the state's attorney's office and the quartet placed on probation. The jury characterized the procedure as "an outrage" and expressed "indignation and disgust" at the action of the prosecutor's office.

In the Superior court Judge David and Chief Fitzmorris clashed over whether Frank Raven, a pickpocket suspect, should be freed on a writ of habeas corpus before the police had an opportunity to confront him with his alleged victims. The chief told the judge bluntly that the police must have the court's co-operation. After a heated tilt, the judge reversed a determination to free Raven and ordered him held until Monday.

Mayor Thompson indorsed Chief Fitzmorris' stand.

THE TOMPKINS GANG.

The November grand jury yesterday revoted true bills charging burglary and larceny against Edward Tompkins, Myrtle Tompkins, Ione Malone, and James Harper after rebuking the state's attorney's office for what it termed an "outrage on the rights of the people."

The quartet had been placed on probation last Tuesday by Judge George Kersten after eight out of nine indictments against them had been dismissed with the consent of Assistant State's Attorney John M. Lowery. Nine victims had appeared in court and charged that there were more than thirty complaints against the defendants.

Jury Makes Protest.

In revoting the indictments the grand jury commented as follows in its report:

"We respectfully protest in the name of the people of Illinois against this apparent miscarriage of criminal justice. In this connection we avail ourselves of our rights as citizens under a representative government to record our indignation and disgust that any duly elected public prosecutor should be a party to any such outrage on the rights of the people and the state.

"We have again voted true bills in all those cases where this action is legally possible under the instructions of the court. We enter a solemn warning against any repetition of such procedure."

One Victim's Story.

The Tompkins burglar band, as it was called, operated chiefly on the north side, many of the victims being residents of Rogers Park. Among them is Fred P. Choate of 7717 Sheridan road, manager of the automobile department of Sears, Roebuck & Co.

"As one of the victims I went to the grand jury twice," said Mr. Choate. First I went alone. I didn't get in. I was as welcome as a rain storm at a lawn party.

"I then learned Henry Barrett Chamberlin, director of the Chicago crime commission, had been called. The next day I was summoned. In half an hour I had told my story. The jurors said it was at variance with that of the assistant state's attorney, whom they had asked for an explanation of his conduct. They asked me whether I would stick if new indictments were voted.

"I said I would. Today's action was their answer. If we have 10,000 crooks in Chicago we also have more than 2,000,000 honest citizens who must be protected. The action today is notice to all that the crooked element must go."

"No Evidence Heard."

Mr. Choate said originally the Tompkins band members were charged with "between thirty and forty crimes, but only nine indictments were returned and no evidence at all was heard before Judge Kersten." Thousands of dollars' worth of loot was found in their rooms, he said.

Denies Probation Pact.

Another victim of the burglars was William Kiewert, 2921 North Lawndale avenue. In a signed statement concerning the action of Assistant State's Attorney Lowery at the trial before Judge Kersten he declared:

"I made no agreement with Assistant State's Attorney Lowery or any one else to the effect that these four defendants be granted probation.

"Judge Kersten informed Mr. Benjamin (Morris Benjamin, 4853 Kenmore avenue, another victim) that the state would properly handle his case and speak for all complainants.

"I think it is safer to live in Mexico, as there you have a fair chance. Citizens can carry a gun or protect themselves. In Chicago when crooks are captured they are locked up for a day or two and then set out on the streets to get you again."

Jury's Act Stirs Tempest.

The reindictment of the Tompkins band, it became known last night, stirred a small tempest in the jury.

Some members took the attitude that the law did not permit reindictment. Others said it did.

Thomas P. Flynn, the foreman, said he did not wish to do anything that would not stand under the law. Eventually it was decided to call Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald of the Criminal court. The judge said new true bills might be voted.

Urge Drastic Crime Curbs.

A series of drastic recommendations to check crime and curb morons was made by the grand jury, as follows:

More stringent bond laws.

Better protection of children against morons.

A more drastic penalty for automobile thieves.

Legislation making it possible to indict more persons guilty of operating confidence games.

Denial of bail by judges to gun robbers.

The check system of wage payment to thwart pay roll robbers.

The report states that the grand jury passed on 508 cases, which it believes to be a record.

CHIEF AND JUDGE CLASH

JUDGE J. B. DAVID.
[Walinger Photo.]

Issuance of habeas corpus writs for criminals before their victims can be summoned to identify them caused a word battle yesterday between Chief of Police Fitzmorris and Judge Joseph B. David of the Superior court.

Judge David announced that he would discharge Frank Raven, an alleged pickpocket, whom the chief several times during the clash was striving to keep in jail, but at the close of the "battle" ordered the defendant into the sheriff's custody and gave the police until tomorrow to gather evidence against him.

Mayor Thompson and Corporation Counsel Ettelson backed the chief in his stand that the issuance of such writs tended strongly to discourage the police in their attempts to fight crime and clean up the city.

Chief Assails Writs.

CHIEF C. C. FITZMORRIS.

The chief appeared in court voluntarily when he heard the judge had attacked the police department for its failure to have the alleged pickpocket, who has a record, before the court at 3:15 o'clock on Friday, as directed in a writ of habeas corpus.

"The use of this type of writ to get criminals out of jail is a constant discouragement to the police department," the chief declared. "There is no use arresting them if you are going to let them out before we can call in their victims to identify them."

"I'm following the law—I don't care what you do," countered the judge. "But get it out of your head that you can lock these men up simply because they have records."

"Your stand amounts to an order that we must find a pickpocket's hand in his victim's pocket before we can make an arrest," declared the chief.

Clash Grows Lively.

Judge David waved his arms and beat on his desk with his fist, calling pickpockets "the most despicable criminals imaginable," but ending by declaring that in issuing writs for them he is merely "following the law."

"But your actions show that you—" began the chief.

"That is right; go ahead and criticize the judge; that is your right," interrupted Judge David.

"Mayor Thompson has ordered me to clean up the city; I can't do it if the judges issue writs as soon we get a man in jail," said the chief. "In several cases writs have been found waiting for the policeman when he brought his man to the station."

"Don't put the burden on me. There are twenty-two other judges of this court," shouted the judge.

"Yes, but they don't all issue habeas corpus writs the way you do," the chief returned with a smile. "Most of the pickpockets writs come from you."

Tells of "Dip's" Boast.

This caused the judge to hint Fitzmorris was "talking for the newspapers."

"You were once a newspaper man. I can see that," he declared.

"Yes, and it is one of my best assets," the chief countered. "My own secretary arrested a pickpocket the other day; the man told him he'd get a writ from you for his release in an hour, and he did."

"Who said that?" demanded the judge.

"Joseph Ross, a known pickpocket; I can get you the police record," put in Lieut. John Naughton, who made the arrest.

"Well, I have a reputation among pickpockets, anyway," said the judge.

"You sure have," commented Fitzmorris.

"About Face" by Judge.

Though the judge announced several times that he intended to discharge Raven, he executed an "about face" at the close of the argument.

"I'll continue this case until 11 o'clock Monday morning to give the police department a chance to prove this man was picking pockets," he said.

"He has a record, judge," said Assistant Corporation Counsel James W. Breen. "The court should show the police department some consideration."

"More political speeches," said the judge. "I don't care anything about records. I don't care if I turn loose millions of pickpockets, as long as I am interpreting the law as I see it. I'm not going to be carried away by public sentiment and clamor. I need no guidance from the public. I'm following the law. That's good advice for you: Be guided by the city law department."

"That's the trouble, we have too much law already—too much law and too many writs," answered the chief.

David Balks at Lighter Charge.

The chief suggested Raven be booked on a disorderly conduct charge in the Municipal court.

"I won't let you do that," said the judge. "I know you could get a conviction there, but it would be a miscarriage of justice. You aren't going to take him back there simply because you can't make a criminal charge against him stand up here.'"

When Judge David ordered that hereafter all writs of habeas corpus be served personally on the chief, it was freely predicted that yesterday's clash will soon be renewed.

MAYOR BACKS CHIEF

The word battle caused a stir in city hall circles.

"From what I hear, there is an effort to try the police department instead of the pickpockets," said Mayor Thompson.

"Powerful influences seem to be on the side of the pickpockets, but no one seems to worry about the little fellow who is trying to get home safely with his week's pay in his pocket.

"The next thing we know the lawyers will be getting the habeas corpus writs out three months in advance of the pocket picking. I'm against this wishywashy sentimentality when it comes to criminals.

"As soon as the criminal is picked up some one gets to work to get him away from the police before they can get the goods on him, and if they are lucky enough to send him to the penitentiary the pardon board or some other agency is on the job to get him out. Let's think less of the pickpocket and more of his victims."

Ettelson Shows Wrath.

Corporation Counsel Ettelson was aroused by the story of the proceedings before Judge David.

"Things have come to a pretty pass when the chief of police instead of the pickpocket is attacked," he declared hotly. "The citizens are aroused against crime; we've got a conscientious chief of police and a fighting state's attorney; what we need now is some help from the judges to make Chicago clean."

RAVEN'S RECORD

Raven's police record is given as follows:

As Frank Remeowicz held to September, 1914, grand jury, which voted a no bill.

As Frank Raven paroled Oct. 20, 1914, for six months by Judge Brentano after a robbery charge had been changed to petit larceny.

As Frank Raven, fined $50 and costs May 1, 1920, by Judge Stewart on a disorderly conduct charge.

As Louis Urba arrested on Madison street car Oct. 23, as a pickpocket suspect. Released by Judge David after a habeas corpus hearing.

OUR JEWELS

CHICAGO gowns, Chicago hats, and Chicago girls will be the center of attraction at the Fashion revue tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock and tomorrow night at 8 in the Gold room of the Congress hotel.

Under the auspices of the Fashion Art league and the Wholesale Milliners' association, the gown and millinery designers of Chicago intend to demonstrate that Chicago is the style center of the country.

A record atendance is expected. Buyers from exclusive shops in all parts of the country and "private citizens" both will be present to view the spring modes, the majority of which will be worn at America's winter resorts before they make their appearance in the northern states. Gowns and hats for every occasion will be shown. Between seventy-five and 100 of Chicago's prettiest models will display the designs.

One evidence of the attractiveness and ingenuity of Chicago's designers is the fact that the majority of Chicago women now purchase Chicago gowns in preference to New York or Paris creations. Young women at the University of Chicago also declare the Chicago gowns are desirable above all others. Among the most enthusiastic students are Helen Whitley, Adelaide Scanlan, and Marion Wilbur, members of the Wyvern club at the university.

TEN SQUADS OF CRIME RAIDERS GET BAG OF 100

Four Holdup Suspects Seized in Auto.

The regular Saturday night drive against gamblers and gunmen, part of Chief Fitzmorris' plan to rid Chicago of all classes of criminals, started shortly after 8 o'clock last night, when ten squads of detectives left the bureau under sealed orders.

By midnight nearly a hundred inmates of gambling houses and gunmen suspects had been rounded up.

Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes called the detectives into his office, gave them instructions, then handed the leader of each squad a slip of paper bearing the names and addresses of the places to be raided.

Raid Canadian Club.

One squad, in charge of Detective Sergeant Edward Birmingham, remained in the loop. The first visit was paid to the Canadian club on the sixth floor at 104 West Monroe street, where two poker tables were confiscated and six men arrested. Wallace Leighton was booked as keeper.

Later another squad in charge of Detective Sergeant Charles Gratton arrested eight men in a poker game at 5048 Indiana avenue. Joseph Fairman was booked as keeper.

Four holdup suspects, two of them police characters, were arrested at Racine avenue and Harrison street. The men were riding in an automobile when Detective Sergeants Riccio, Bernacchi, Killeen, and Shea leaped on the running boards and ordered them to halt. All four were found carrying guns. They were Johnny Vallo, who figured in an escape from the state's attorney's office a year ago; Patrick Dwyer, who is alleged to have figured in a $25,000 fur robbery and to have been implicated in the killing of Charles Stillwell; John Farrell, and Joseph Martion. Dwyer told the police he was private secretary to "Barney" Grogan.

Tipoff Sends Out Alarm.

Earlier in the evening Lieut. William Shoemaker's squad swooped down on Olsen & Connors' place, at Ohio and Clark streets, but made no arrests. Word was flashed along North Clark street, however, and a rush for the exits was in progress when the squad swooped down on Karr & Kenney's cigar store, at 830 North Clark street, where a handbook was being operated. Fourteen men were seized and Daniel O'Connell booked as keeper.

Forty suspects were taken out of the poolroom at 1641 West Harrison street.

Lieut. John W. Norton's squad rounded up fourteen men in George Graham's place, at Fifty-fifth and State streets. Nine gamblers were arrested in Sam's smoke shop at 843 East Fifty-fifth street.

TRACE INFANTILE PARALYSIS GERM TO GREEN FLIES

Experts Find Disease Is Spread by Insects.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota tonight issued a statement explaining discoveries which have been made and which may have an important bearing on the future treatment of infantile paralysis.

Experts of the university farm school and scientists of Minneapolis and St. Paul have been conducting experiments and as a result announce that infantile paralysis is traceable to the larvae of the green bottle fly.

Get Clew from Animals.

The first experiments showed that the larvae of this species of fly were responsible for hog paralysis and "limberneck" in poultry, a disease which brings paralysis.

In experiments a cockerel was fed on the larvae of green bottle flies which had fed on the head of a hog which had died of paralysis in the hind quarters. The result was that limberneck immediately developed. Next the process was reversed. Paralysis of the hind quarters was produced in guinea pigs by feeding them larvæ fed on a chick which had showed limberneck symptoms.

Continuing their efforts, the scientists found they were unable to produce limberneck or paralysis symptoms by feeding spoiled canned vegetables, spoiled meats, and larvæ of flies other than the green bottle fly. It is believed by the experts, therefore, that the green bottle fly alone manufactures the poisons, or at least transmits the poisons.

DR. EVANS DISCUSSES WORK.

"The experiments in Minnesota which show the connection between paralysis in lower animals and green bottle flies may prove to be of importance in tracing the cause of infantile paralysis," Dr. W. A. Evans, health editor of THE TRIBUNE, said. "For years scientists have been working on the theory that there is some connection between infantile paralysis and flies. With but one exception—an epidemic which occurred in Sweden in the winter time about fifteen years ago—all of the epidemics of infantile paralysis have occurred in fly time.

"About eight years ago Prof. M. J. Rosenau of Harvard university read a paper at the Internationa[illegible] of Hygiene, attributin[illegible] ralysis to the [illegible] house fly, not the green bottle fly. This was a popular belief for a few years, but never substantiated.

Epidemics Ran Parallel.

"It is significant that every epidemic of infantile paralysis has been attended by a wave of paralysis among lower animals—poultry, hogs, and dogs, and it has been generally believed that the same cause induced both diseases, but hitherto no one has succeeded in showing the connection between paralysis in lower animals and paralysis in human beings.

"Attempts were made to show the connection between the two seven or eight years ago at Buffalo, N. Y., and Dr. L. D. Driscoll, health commissioner of Maine, reported extensive experiments along that line, but the connection never has been clearly established."

He's Out Hunting Rabbits; Finds Stolen Ford in Straw

Beloit, Wis., Dec. 4.—The latest thing in camouflage employed by automobile thieves was uncovered by A. G. Heyerdahl, 1224 La Salle avenue. Heyerdahl was hunting rabbits on the Strong farm near Beloit when he noticed a peculiarity in the appearance of an old straw pile in the corner of a field. Investigating, he found it covered a Ford coupe, stolen from Charles Shemilt of Beloit recently.

A Weaver of India's Spell

LAURA MEAD

Chicago's most beautiful women will compete for the public's applause on Dec. 10 at the Coliseum. There will be dancing girls, flower girls, fortune tellers, crystal gazers, and bazaar maids.

All the fabled wonders of the Arabian Nights and the visions of old Omar will be limned. There will be camels, royal elephants, peacocks, basilisks, and dusky princesses and kings.

The occasion is the Pageant of the East, for the benefit of the Chicago Lying-in hospital. One of the most picturesque features will be the East Indian courtyard. Dancing girls will delight the spectators in this feature. Among them will be Laura Mead.

North shore society leaders are patronesses of the affair. They report that ticket sales indicate a generous attendance. The Chicago Lying-In hospital is one of the city's best known institutions.

DENIES NEGLECT OF CHILDREN IN 'THE BABY HAVEN'

Denying that she had neglected any of the babies intrusted to her care and asserting the fault lies with a nurse she employed, Mrs. Norma Phelps, proprietor of "The Baby Haven," 7145 Woodlawn avenue, yesterday renewed her efforts to restore her "wrecked" home for infants.

The home came to the attention of the health authorities several weeks ago when five of the nine babies in the place were found to be suffering from scabies, a contagious skin disease. A report by two investigators characterized the home as "unfit for a child."

According to Mrs. Phelps, she suffered a nervous breakdown and was taken to Hahnemann hospital. When she came back she said she found all the babies gone and all her furniture and everything of value taken, a loss [illegible] $2,000. She blamed the nurse, a [illegible]ss Kath Bremner, for all this.

"As soon as I get well enough to go out I'm going to swear out a warrant for her arrest," Mrs. Phelps said.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright, 5510 South Wabash avenue, have taken one baby, "Baby Patricia," and are anxious to adopt her. Efforts will be made to find the parents of three of the children who are still at the county hospital.

'PAY BY CHECK' PLAN THWARTS PAY ROLL THEFT

Two pay roll bandits hurled imprecations at Chief of Police Charles C. Fitzmorris shortly after noon yesterday after they had failed in an attempt to steal the pay roll of Robert Adams, a painting contractor, 128 Willard court, as a result of the company trying out the chief's new plan of "pay by check." The robbers threw down the checks of the company in disgust after entering the place with drawn revolvers.

The robbers were greeted politely by Adams when they entered. He was at the moment paying some employés with checks, and paused in his operations to obey a command to hold up his hands.

"Where's that payroll?" the leader of the pair asked.

"There is no payroll," answered the proprietor. "You see, Chief Fitzmorris issued a warning several days ago to pay employés by checks. You're too late. You should have come last Sunday."

KILLED IN FIGHT OVER BOTTLE OF WOOD ALCOHOL

A fight over a bottle of wood alcohol in front of Jake Abrams' saloon, at 416 South Clark street, last night resulted in the death of an unidentified man. George Burke, who said he lives at the Moose hotel, on South Clark street, is held by the police. The dead man carried disc No. 6919 of the Standard Oil company of Whiting, Ind., and wore a button of the International Timber Cutters' union.

The argument started in the saloon, according to John McFadden, a soldier on furlough from Fort Sam Houston, Tex.

"After a short struggle in the saloon the bartender told the men to leave the place and settle their argument in the street," he said. "They went out, and a few minutes later Burke came back into the saloon."

THEATER RIOT MAY STOP ALL WRESTLING HERE

Fitzmorris Says He's Ready to Act.

As a result of the riot which followed the wrestling bout between William Demetral and Jack Linow at the Haymarket theater Friday night Chief of Police Fitzmorris declared yesterday that wrestling bouts may be prohibited by police order.

"I am instituting a complete investigation of the Haymarket bout and the riot which followed it," the chief said. "I personally approved the permit for the bout, believing it was on the square.

To Pass on Permits.

"If I am unable hereafter to decide when a bout is to be on the square I intend to withhold a permit for the bout. If promoters of faked bouts try to slip anything over on me they will find that permits for all bouts will be denied."

Joseph J. Coffey, matchmaker for the Haymarket theater, issued a statement yesterday, in which he declared that Friday night's match, which caused a riot when Johnny Myers, the referee, declared Demetral the winner at midnight after he had won one fall of the advertised finish bout, was an "honestly contested match."

Theater Custom Blamed.

He admitted, however, that the bout was advertised as a "finish go," but declared that "it has been the custom of the last three years with the management of the Haymarket theater, without any exception, that no match continue after 12 o'clock midnight and that no matter which man gains a fall before that hour, he is declared the winner."

REAL ESTATE BOARD TO MEET WITH JANITORS

William Quesse, president of the Chicago Flat Janitors' union, announced last night that a committee from the union will hold another conference with members of the Chicago real estate board tomorrow afternoon regarding the wage demands of the janitors. The conference will be held in the board's room at 57 West Monroe street.

Quesse also said that the White City ballroom and the North Side Turner hall have been engaged for next Friday to hold massmeetings. At the meetings the janitors will be given the new agreements with orders to have the employers' signatures on them when they are returned to union headquarters.

"Negotiations with the union are to be resumed tomorrow in reference to the 50 per cent increase asked by the janitors," said James S. Carroll, chairman of the rentings division of the real estate board, last night. "But so far as I know when the representatives of the union meet with the committee of the board it will be with the understanding that the board will stand pat on its original plan not to grant an increase in wages."

DOCTOR'S AUTO KILLS A WOMAN; THEN HE'S INJURED

Soldier Dies When Machine Goes Into Ditch.

Automobile Killings in Chicago in 1920, 540

An unidentified woman about [illegible] years old was killed last night by an automobile driven by Dr. Leon Bloch, 4756 Ingleside avenue, a physician on the staff of the Michael Reese hospital. She wore a Masonic pin with "Drexel 310" engraved on the back.

Dr. Bloch had just turned into Oakwood boulevard from Cottage Grove avenue when the accident occurred.

Aids Woman; Hit by Car.

Dr. Bloch stopped his car and asked a passerby to call Dr. Ralph [illegible], 3956 Drexel boulevard. The two physicians decided to take the woman to the Micheal Reese hospital. As they were picking her up another automobile came by and knocked Dr. Bloch down, severely bruising him. The driver sped away. When the hospital was reached the woman was pronounced dead.

Dr. Bloch was released by the police on orders of Coroner Hoffman pending the inquest tomorrow.

Soldier Killed; Three Hurt.

Private Benjamin Holliday, a crippled soldier patient at Fort Sheridan hospital, was killed and three other soldiers were injured, one perhaps fatally, late Friday night when their automobile overturned on Dundee road southwest of Highland Park.

The glaring headlights of a passing car blinded the driver of the soldiers' machine, causing him to steer too far to one side. The car went into the ditch and overturned. The other car went on and the injured men were left lying by the roadside until yesterday morning, when a passing motorist took them to the hospital.

The injured were Private Owen Hollom, late of the 30th division, who lost a foot in the war, driver of the car; Private Leo Pennat of the signal corps at Fort Sheridan, and Private [illegible] Mattingly, also of the signal corps.

Pennat is the most seriously injured. His chest was hurt and an X-ray will be taken to determine the extent of the injury. The others suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

They cried out to the other car, the occupants of which could not have missed seeing them topple into the ditch, Hollom states, but the other driver paid no heed. Holliday died during the night and the others thought it best not to leave Pennat.

WILL TRY TO RID HEMISPHERE OF SOCIAL DISEASES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Plans for a three year continuous campaign against social diseases in all the countries of North and South America will be considered at the All-American conference opening here tomorrow.

It will be the first of a series of regional conferences suggested by the international health conference held at Cannes, France, under the supervision of the League of Red Cross societies.

It is the hope of some of the conferees that indorsement of a curative and preventive program may carry the suggestion that the treatment of these diseases be made compulsory and conducted under government control.

EARLY RETURN OF GIRL IN HAMON CASE EXPECTED

Will Be as Sensational as Her Flight, Belief.

BY CHARLES A. SLOAN.

Ardmore, Okla., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—That the whereabouts of Clara Smith Hamon, alleged slayer of Jake L. Hamon, millionaire politician, will become known before the end of the week loomed tonight on the horizon.

Today the first rift in the veil of secrecy surrounding the shooting of Hamon and the escape of the Smith woman appeared.

It came with the issuance of two statements—one from James H. Mathers, prosecuting attorney elect and previously retained for the defense of Clara Hamon, the other from Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the oil man.

Calls Alleged Slaying "Just."

The statement issued by Mathers acclaimed the justice of Clara Hamon's action in "slaying the affinity of ten years' standing who sought to discard her."

The statement from Mrs. Hamon upheld the conduct of her husband and attacked the reputation of the woman who fled to escape arrest.

"They can't get a jury anywhere in the United States that will convict Clara Hamon," Mathers declared. "The story of her sufferings, of the ruination of her life, is far too poignant to allow even the thought of conviction to enter the minds of any juror. They will acquit her, and, acquitting her, will acknowledge the justice of her action."

The Mathers statement is the first break in the steadfast announcement by Hamon's friends that he died of an accidentally inflicted pistol shot. This theory is still held by Mrs. Hamon.

"Accident," Widow Says.

"My husband said he was shot accidentally," she said. "I believe him. While I shall have no hand in prosecuting Clara Hamon, should she be caught, there is no penalty too severe for her. This pose of virtue on her part is but a rôle. It is simply an attempt to gain the sympathy of the public before she faces trial."

Mrs. Hamon, questioned concerning her immediate plans, replied that for many years she had followed her husband's political career with interest.

"If I should be offered the position of Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma I would feel constrained to accept it," she said. "This, in my opinion, would be greater than any monument Oklahoma might erect to Mr. Hamon's memory. I knew his purposes and plans and I believe I could carry them out as he would have wished them fulfilled."

New Disclosures Forecast.

As a result of these statements Ardmore tonight swung from the belief that Clara Hamon would never be seen here again to the opposite view. It is pointed out that with a schism arising in the ranks which heretofore had the one purpose of suppressing the news, sensational developments may be expected.

Ten men in Ardmore are given the popular credit of knowing every move Clara Hamon has made. It is said they alone know her present whereabouts and that only through them can she be located.

Previously, these men have refused to be interviewed on this subject. They are Mayor Freeman, Sheriff "Buck" Garett, Dr. Hardy of the Hardy sanitarium, in which Hamon was interested; Andy Hardy, Attorney Frank Adams, Frank Ketch, business manager of the Hamon interests; Ernest Williams, Mark Kirkpatrick, Col. H. B. Gregory, and John F. Easley, publisher of the Daily Ardmorite.

Expect Fugitive Soon.

When these men say the word, and not before, Clara Hamon will be found, it is said. If the break in the political ranks, evidenced by today's statement, is permanent, it is believed that their hand will be forced and that Clara Hamon will appear in Ardmore, waive her preliminary examination, and a strong attempt made to free her on bail.

There will be no confession, it is predicted. There will be no statements to the press or to the public. There will be no plea of either guilty or not guilty.

With her appearance, it is pointed out, there will be a flurry of publicity for perhaps two days. The case will then disappear into the obscurity from which it came.

Ardmore Gets on the Map.

That this course is the only logical one for friends of both Hamon and Clara Smith Hamon to follow, is evident. The attempt at suppression brought a score of newspaper correspondents from all over the country to Ardmore. Thousands of words regarding the case blossomed into metropolitan print.

From a scarcely known Oklahoma town, Ardmore has burst into nationwide prominence.

The only way to stop this storm of publicity is to produce the woman. Both the adherents of Clara Hamon and of Mrs. Jake L. Hamon desire to stop that publicity.

It is predicted here on the street that before forty-eight hours have passed the solution will have been effected. Search for "Wild Bill" McCauley, Hamon's chauffeur, who was reported near Cisco, Tex., has been unsuccessful. He has not been heard from since the night that Clara Hamon walked from the doors of the Mobley hotel at Cisco, to disappear completely.

Frank Ketch and Jake L. Hamon Jr. left Ranger, Tex., yesterday and are now en route for Ardmore. They are expected tomorrow morning.

The death of Jake Hamon, it became known today, adds another link to the chain of tragedy which seems to have encircled the Hamon family for thirty years. Jake Hamon's death is the third tragedy in that family, and he is the third to die of a bullet.

On the streets of Sedan, Kas., back in the '80s, when everything was wide open and liquor flowed freely in the border towns of southern Kansas, Jake Hamon's father was shot to death in the middle of the street. Arrests were made, mitigating circumstances were pleaded, and no one ever was punished for the killing.

Fifteen years ago, in the same block, Jake's brother, Alonzo, was shot and killed by Billy Robinson, a peace officer. It was alleged that Alonzo had had trouble with Orb Stallard, and that he had left his hotel at 2 o'clock in the morning to break into the bank run by Stallard's brother.

Robinson was tried on a murder charge and acquitted, it being proven that Alonzo was seen coming down the street and approaching the bank. He had been commanded to halt and refused to do so. Mr. Robinson shot quickly and accurately.

Story of Woman's Divorce.

Weatherford, Tex., Dec. 4.—Clara Barton Smith Hamon, being sought in connection with the shooting of Jake L. Hamon in Ardmore, Okla., on Nov. 21, was granted a divorce from Frank Louis Hamon, nephew of Jake Hamon, by a decree in District court here on May 23, 1917, according to court records.

The petition for divorce, filed April 23, 1917, by Frank Louis Hamon, alleges that plaintiff and defendant were married in El Paso, Tex., Feb. 17, 1917, and separated on the same day, not having lived together since.

The plaintiff further in the petition alleged that he had known the defendant in Oklahoma for two years previous to their marriage and "believing her to be a virtuous woman he expected to marry her and make her a good husband."

Bride Admitted Deception.

Later, the petition alleged, she admitted having deceived him.

A waiver of service, signed by Clara Barton Hamon, in which she waives issuance and service of citation and agrees that case be tried at April 1917, term of court is on file here. The divorce was granted on the following May 23.

The late Jake L. Hamon resided in this county, Parker, twenty-two years ago. He made his home periodically at Weatherford.

The defendant did not appear in court, nor was she represented during the proceedings in 1917, according to R. B. Hood, attorney who handled the case for Hamon.

The decree did not stipulate that the defendant adopt her original name of Smith, and neither was it requested in the petition filed by Frank Louis Hamon, according to Mr. Hood.

FORMER BANKER BLAMES WIFE FOR HIS FALL

Charging that because of his wife's extravagance and financial transactions he was reduced from the presidency of a $3,000,000 steel corporation and of a bank to the position of a day laborer on an Indiana farm, Chester E. Wirt yesterday made his reply to his wife's suit for separate maintenance and $60,000 alimony in a Valparaiso, Ind., courtroom.

Mrs. Wirt filed her suit last April at Crown Point, Ind. She charged infidelity. She also asked the custody of their 19 year old son, Louis, then in the army.

Wirt, who was at one time an organizer and president of the Aetna Iron and Steel company of Gary, Ind., countercharges that on numerous occasions his wife threatened his life; that one year he gave her $5,000 and that the same year she also drew $10,000 from his bank at Gary. She also is charged with using her husband's bank credit to run bills for $6,000, including $3,300 for diamonds and jewelry at a Chicago store.

As a result, he declares, he has had to obtain employment as a laborer on a farm.

Wirt yesterday filed his cross complaint and asks a complete divorce. The case is set for hearing Dec. 15.

CONGRESS' FIRST ACT WILL BE TO REPEAL WAR LAW

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—President Wilson is to be stripped of extraordinary powers given him under wartime legislation as the first act of congress after it reconvenes next Monday.

The house Republican steering committee decided today to present to the house Tuesday for immediate passage a resolution repealing all wartime laws that were to expire with the termination of the war, and fixing a definite date for the repeal of other wartime laws that were contingent on peace with Germany.

President Wilson's plans in connection with presentation of his regular message to congress are not known to the house leaders. They do not know whether the president will deliver his message in a speech or send it by messenger, or whether it will be received on Tuesday or later.

SON OF DIPLOMAT OF LINCOLN DAY DIES PENNILESS

The body of a man who, as a boy of 5 years of age, knew the court of Austria-Hungary as the guest of kings, lies in the morgue of the Western Casket company at 177 North Michigan avenue, and unless relatives come to the rescue will go to the "potter's field." The man was Edgar Cansius. He died more than a week ago in a rooming house on the southwest side, alone, forgotten and destitute. He was 65 years old.

When the police were called to Mrs. Ada L. Haffers' boarding house, at 6423 South Halsted street, they found Cansius dead. The body was taken to the undertaking rooms.

Among Cansius' few effects, the addresses of J. E. Stanley, Shavertown, N. Y., and Dr. P. R. Albanesius, Union Hill, N. Y., were found. They were communicated with. Dr. Albanesius did not reply, but Stanley's wire came yesterday.

"Cansius is the son of Dr. Theodore Cansius, consul general to Austria-Hungary under President Lincoln. He is also the nephew of Anthony Schmidt, president of the Anthony Schmidt Candle company of Chicago. He has a millionaire sister in London, England. Hold body until I communicate with the sister. He is also nephew of E. Snyder, president of a Chicago national bank."

Detective Sergeant William Rohan was assigned to the case, but could not find Schmidt or Snyder.

HARDING HOME; WANTS AMERICA MARITIME POWER

Praises La Follette's Seamen's Act.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Senator Harding's return to America today made an eventful day in the history of Virginia tidewater cities. From the lazy monotony of steamship days, spent in story telling, games and desultory reading, he was plunged from dawn to midnight into the heart of welcoming committees, colorful pageants of sea and sky arranged in his honor, speeches, receptions, luncheons and dinner ceremonies and all the joyous froth of a great popular demonstration. Certainly a president elect never gave evidence of greater popularity.

One of his first acts was to go to the people directly, and in an address at the Academy of Music at Newport News, he asked for help in solving the peculiarly difficult problems which he said confronted the incoming administration. He said frankly he did not blame the outgoing administration for the heritage of such problems; these were the heritage of a world in tumult for five years.

Tribute to Religion.

He paid a tribute to the influence of religion, declaring that if he did not believe there was a God to aid mankind he never would want to take the responsibilities of the presidency.

"Neither would I want to be president if I did not feel that I would have your help," he continued. "I want a united nation and I want somehow to appeal for that understanding, that will have the people of the old confederacy understand that's only a memory.

"I cannot talk to you today about public policies and proposals because there is yet a proper and respected administration in power, and I'd be the last man in America to give offense to the president or his friends by assuming responsibilities before my time.

"So I can only say that I want to know you and want you to know me, because we're going to work together; and, God helping us, we're going to preserve representative popular government.

Wants U. S. Maritime Power.

"I do not speak criticism of any party or any personality. I believed very much in an essential autocracy for the winning of war, but now that it's over I want the restoration of normal government.

"Among other things, I want to see America the greatest maritime nation on the face of the earth. I have a profound conviction that if our America had been possessed of a great merchant marine as an auxiliary of national defense our rights never would have been affronted by the central powers.

"A lot of old hidebound Democrats and a lot of miserable old mugwump Republicans have been utterly blind to the idea of the American nation giving a thought to an adequate merchant marine. If the La Follette seamen's set represents the conscience of the American people, and I believe it does, then the American government ought to step in and share the burden it imposes.

German Lines Opposed.

"I want to call attention that the chief propagandists against subsidies for American ships were the agents of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines. I don't know whether their opposition was inspired by selfish competition or whether it was due to a far reaching design of the ruling class of the central empires. Sometimes aspiring monarchs think of these things, and I believe the ruler of Germany was looking forward to world domination.

"What I want for America is that the ten million tons of shipping we builded during the war shall be turned over to private management under government encouragement. And I want above all that we shall preserve one thing more. We must preserve the majesty of government and of law and these rest on the constitution. And I want the citizens of Virginia to join the citizens of Ohio and the citizens of Maine to join the citizens of California in one concord of American union and consecration to the service of our common country."

Met by Daugherty.

Harry M. Daugherty, his chief political lieutenant, met him at Norfolk and gave him the result of the work he has been doing for him during the last three weeks. Senator Elkins, E. B. McLean, and a number of Marion friends also met him. Harding was astonished at the wealth and display of welcome this morning. He does not realize yet the greatness of the office that will be his.

A wireless telephone message from a dirigible to the captain of the Pastores told a welcome. There was great din as Senator Harding landed at Newport News. The streets were lined with crowds. Luncheon was served at the Warwick hotel. After this he boarded a destroyer and visited the navy and army bases, went through the shipyards, and saw new cruisers and battleships on the ways. He was taken to Norfolk late in the afternoon for a reception at Hotel Monticello. He was given a formal dinner, then prepared to leave for Bedford, Va., where he will speak tomorrow afternoon.

HARDING AND COLBY SHIPS DO NOT 'SPEAK'

Fortress Monroe, Va., Dec. 4.—Secretary of State Colby started today on his long delayed trip to South America. The battleship Florida, carrying Colby and his party, steamed out of Hampton Roads shortly after noon.

The travel stained United Fruit liner Pastores, carrying President-elect Harding, coming in, passed the Florida, outward bound. There was no formal exchange of salutes.

Colby sent the following message to Harding by radio from the Mayflower:

"I sincerely hope you are returning home much benefited and refreshed by your trip."

WILL NOT TAKE CABINET AIDS OUT OF SENATE

"Oligarchy" Charge to Be Proved a Myth.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—President Elect Harding in all probability will not select any member of the senate for his cabinet, according to information obtained today from reliable sources. A fairly clear understanding to this effect is reported to have been reached among Republican leaders.

Half a dozen or more prominent Republican senators have been mentioned for cabinet posts. One of the most persistent bits of cabinet gossip has been to the effect that Senator Knox of Pennsylvania would be chosen secretary of state.

Wants Knox in Senate.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania has come forward with the statement Senator Knox can better serve the nation by remaining in the senate than by accepting the post of secretary of state, which he formerly held in the Taft administration.

Senator Knox himself, it is understood, is not especially eager to assume the arduous duties of secretary of state. Pennsylvania politics, however, is said to play an important part in Senator Penrose's desire that his colleague stay in the senate. If Knox should resign to enter the cabinet, it would devolve upon Gov. Sproul, Penrose's chief rival for leadership in Pennsylvania politics, to appoint his successor. It is understood that Mr. Penrose does not look with favor on giving Gov. Sproul such an opportunity of strengthening his position.

Lodge Prefers Present Job.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts also has been mentioned repeatedly for the office of secretary of state. It is understood that he much prefers to remain in the senate where his power as Republican leader and chairman of the foreign relations committee is second only to the president himself.

Senator New of Indiana has eliminated himself from the probability of selection as postmaster general. He wants to stay in the senate, and Senator Lodge has issued a statement urging him to remain.

Behind the tendency of senators to keep out of the cabinet there is a recognition by leaders of the dissatisfaction among some elements of the Republican party over the growing dominance of the "senatorial oligarchy." This dissatisfaction was noticeable at the Chicago convention and every day during the campaign the country heard charges that Senator Harding owed his nomination to the "senatorial clique." Republican leaders want to avoid justifying fears that the senate would "run the whole show."

COMMISSION TO ACCORD HONORS TO D'ANNUNZIO

TRIESTE, Dec. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—The peace which has marked the state of war declared by D'Annunzio continues. All the Fiumans now are in a state of suspense. Arms for the moment have been put aside as D'Annunzio's legionaires and the civilian population await the arrival of the commission appointed by the Italian chamber of deputies, which is expected by steamboat tomorrow from Ancona.

The most optimistic feeling prevails that some solution will be found which will meet the approval of D'Annunzio.

The idea persists that the chamber of deputies in Rome will take account of D'Annunzio's enterprise in some formal recognition, and already Gen. Vaviglia, commanding the regular Italian troops about Fiume, had indicated to the poet that full recognition will be given him by the army and that the government will promise to reëstablish the credit of Fiume and place it on the road to reconstruction.

DEATH PENALTY FOR TRAITORS, SINN FEIN SAYS

Irish Peace Rumors Are Rife in London.

BELFAST, Ireland, Dec. 4.—The Sinn Fein has circulated a proclamation throughout the west and south of Ireland declaring that those guilty of "treasonable conspiracy," will be executed as traitors to the Irish republic. The proclamation reads:

"Whereas the Irish republic has declared war on England, we hereby give notice that any one guilty of treasonable conspiracy will be shot without warning as a traitor to the republic."

Another warning has been issued from the "Irish Republican army brigade headquarters in Belfast." It says:

"Notice is hereby given that any persons who enlist in, or give any assistance whatever to the special constable force at present being organized by the enemy will be regarded as traitors to the republic and will be treated accordingly."

IRISH PEACE PLAN

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The rumors which have been current during the past few days of new moves to bring about peace in Ireland have now developed into the suggestion that Lloyd George has been seeking to open direct negotiations with Arthur Griffith. It is being stated today that no less than three weeks ago the prime minister got into touch with the Sinn Fein leader and that everything was ready for the latter's visit to Downing street. There, according to the story, Dublin Castle, or some of Lloyd George's Tory colleagues, got wind of these secret pourparlers, and Arthur Griffith was promptly arrested in order to make it impossible for the premier to carry on with his plan.

Mr. Hogge is going to ask a question on the subject in parliament next week. In official circles Hogge is described as having got hold of a mare's nest.

To Embarrass Premier.

As a matter of fact information obtained from well qualified sources indicates that the majority of the recent reports of "peace negotiations" had their origin in quarters where there was less expectation of any success in these alleged new moves than the hope of embarrassing the government by creating an atmosphere of suspicion and doubt regarding the continuance of its firm policy.

Lloyd George's speech last night at the Constitutional club did not completely satisfy some of the extreme Tories in the coalition. There was general approval of what he said about the determination of the government to stamp out murder and intimidation in Ireland, but his reference to the courage that was needed to concede and conciliate when the terror was broken evoked some questionings.

Weaken Crown Forces.

The Morning Post speaks of the rumors that he is contemplating a more conciliatory policy, and says they have the effect of heartening the rebels and weakening the hands of the representatives of the crown in Ireland. While this is admitted in most quarters, it is still felt that the prime minister is right in looking for avenues leading to a settlement once the terror which prevents moderate opinion in Ireland from making its due influence felt is broken.

Of all recent rumors of new moves, that which is believed to have the most foundation is connected with the unofficial commission which Lloyd George is said to have intrusted to Arthur Henderson. Various reports are rife already respecting the line which the labor delegation is likely to strike out, among them being that they will recommend a constituent assembly, elected by proportional representation, which would be intrusted with the task of framing an Irish constitution subject to two conditions: Of providing protection for minorities, and giving guarantees that Ireland shall not constitute a military or naval menace to Great Britain. In some quarters it is added that, in order to secure Sinn Fein's acquiescence in such a proposal the labor delegation will undertake to submit to the British government a plea for the preliminary withdrawal of British armed forces.

SALVATION ARMY TO AID SALE OF RED CROSS SEALS

In recognition of the remarkable results that have been obtained in the winning fight against tuberculosis, made possible by the annual sale of the famous penny tuberculosis Christmas seals, the Salvation Army will throw its entire organization from coast to coast into a one-day drive next Wednesday to sell seals.

The Chicago Tuberculosis institute, which distributes the seals in Chicago and Cook county, has sent out 140,000 letters, enclosing $2 worth of the stamps. Recipients are requested either to remit for them or return them. Already the money and checks are pouring into the institute's offices in the Hartford building, where Superintendent James Minnick has an extra force of girls at work opening the letters.

SEVERAL POLES QUIT THE RIGA PEACE MISSION

WARSAW, Dec. 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—John Dombski, head of the Polish peace mission in Riga, and several other Polish members have resigned because of the diet's decision to send a delegation to participate in the peace negotiations with the Russian soviets, according to Rga advices today.

It is said their resignation may result in prolonging the peace conference, which may continue several months.

The government will appoint successors to M. Dombski and the other delegates who resigned as soon as possible.

Asquith Speech on Ireland Turns Jeers Into Cheers

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Former Premier Asquith heard both cheers and jeers while addressing a meeting here today on the Irish question, but finally left the hall with rounds of applause ringing in his ears.

The meeting was held in Albert hall this afternoon under the auspices of the Peace with Ireland council as a protest to government reprisals in Ireland.

Blames Both Sides.

The arrival of the former premier was greeted by the audience with cheers. Beginning his address, Mr. Asquith said:

"It is the primary duty of the government in its maintenance of law and order to set an example of evenhanded justice. Assassins are the common enemy of all civilization and such crimes are barbarous no matter from whence they come.

"I detest equally the crimes committed in the north of Ireland rebellion and the crimes committed by the Sinn Fein and the crimes committed by the forces of the crown in the last few months.

"Mr. Bonar Law's accusation that I am siding with the revolutionists would have been more effective had it not come from one who is inciting Ireland to acts of violence in order to extend the Irish civil war."

Uproar in Gallery.

At this juncture there was an uproar in the gallery punctuated by cries of:

"Take the army away!"

"What did you do?"

"What about the 1916 rebellion?"

Despite jeers and interruptions, Mr. Asquith continued, declaring:

"The 1916 affairs in Dublin were open rebellion and the murderers were arrested and punished."

Another uproar started, members of the audience recalling the execution of Sheehy Skeffington, editor and school teacher, and his companions, crying that they were "murdered for signing the Irish declaration of independence."

Finally the gallery was hushed, however, and Mr. Asquith explained that the Skeffington affair was the work of a soldier who afterward was tried by court-martial and declared insane.

Amid cheers Mr. Asquith proposed a resolution protesting against the "inefficiency of the government in dealing with the Irish question as shown in their allowing the reprisals to go unpunished." The resolution was carried unanimously.

Concluding his address, Mr. Asquith said:

"For my part I shall never cease to raise my voice in protest and I will never be silenced by cheap scurrility. I am accused of besmirching the men of Great Britain.

"Indeed it would be an indelible stain upon the honor of the men of Great Britain if what is happening in Ireland be silently tolerated any longer and it also would be besmirching the intelligence of the British people.

Seeks Armistice.

"Ireland is now torn by civil war. Let us have an armistice as the first step, and, in the consequent lull, let us catch the murderers and conspirators."

In his peroration Mr. Asquith begged both sides in the Irish controversy to cease murdering and to join hands in finding a basis for peace.

Jap Fishermen Form Link in Opium Smuggling Chain

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

MANILA, Dec. 4.—Officials in the Philippine constabulary state that Japanese fishermen are involved in huge opium smuggling operations carried on along the Mindanao coast. Large quantities of opium have been found in buoys recently that had been thrown overboard from ships coming from the Asiatic continent, to be picked up by the crews of Japanese fishing smacks.

MRS. MAC SWINEY LOOKS TO U. S. TO HELP FREE ERIN

Arrives to Tell Story of Wrongs in Ireland.

fore the Celtic docked Capt. R. O. Jones, skipper, paid a formal visit of courtesy to Mrs. MacSwiney's cabin. She thanked him for his courteous treatment and said that, while she did not know how long she would remain in this country, she hoped that she would be able to return on the Celtic.

On its trip from quarantine the ship was met just off the statue of Liberty by the police boat Patrol and a welcoming committee of eighty women. Among those on the boat were two cousins of Mrs. MacSwiney—Mrs. Peter MacSwiney and Mrs. Annie MacSwiney Dixon. Others were Mrs. F. P. Walsh, Helen Todd, and Mrs. Helen Hill Weed of California.

First Passenger to Land.

When the Celtic landed Mrs. MacSwiney was the first passenger allowed ashore. There were about 2,000 or 3,000 persons there. Harry Boland, secretary to Eamonn de Valera, "president" of the "Irish republic," seized her in his arms and kissed her. Several others shook her hands. The police dashed in and kept a mob from forming about her.

Mrs. MacSwiney smiled and waved her hand and got a big cheer from the crowd which followed her machine.

The band of the old Sixty-ninth struck up "Garry Owen" and sent a few bars after the retreating automobile.

Among those receiving Mrs. MacSwiney was Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation, a weekly publication, which caused the formation of a so-called "commission" to investigate the Irish troubles. Mrs. Harold Villard was the chairman of the reception committee.

Nominally, the sole reason for the visit of Mrs. MacSwiney to this country is to give her testimony about Ireland to the Villard "commission," whose announced purpose is to go into Irish matters in an "impartial way."

A procession of automobiles with the American and "Irish republican" colors, followed the car which carried Mrs. MacSwiney. Countless banners of Irish societies followed, bearing greetings. Several beturbaned Hindoos were in line with the flag of the "Indian republic," resplendent in red, green, and yellow bars and with the crescent and other oriental emblems.

SAYS PEACE OR WAR IN ORIENT LIES WITH U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 4.—The Sydney Telegraph, commenting on the league of nations, says: "The success of the league meeting is the best argument that can be addressed to the United States. The complete success of the league cannot be attained without the conversion of America.

"America is setting the pace in armaments and she can make or mar an economic blockade. Her influence can insure peace in the orient or it can make war probable.

"It is not supposed that she will accept the league as it stands, but the covenant is not perfect and the principles provided in it assuredly can be amended to satisfy any reasonable objections."

The above expression is representative of a considerable body of opinion here.

BRITISH NAVAL EXPERT AWARDS TRIDENT TO U. S.

Warns Britain of Waning Sea Supremacy.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Archibald Hurd, the leading British naval expert, in the December Fortnightly Review, publishes an article in which he declares that by 1924 America will have obtained a naval lead over the British fleet.

The article is in the nature of a serious warning to Great Britain that she must "wake up immediately" if she wishes to retain the supremacy of the sea and desires not to sink to the status of a second rate naval power like France and Italy.

Cost of New Ships.

At the same time the writer points out the enormous cost of sea supremacy with modern battleships costing from seven to eight million pounds each against an average cost of about one million pounds twenty years ago.

"Now that peace is signed there remain only three navies of importance, the British, American, and Japanese," says the article. "Disregarding vessels projected, but assuming only that those now under actual construction will be completed within the next four years, the standing of these powers in capital ships will be as follows:

"Great Britain, thirty-six vessels, tonnage 883,290; America, thirty-five vessels, tonnage 1,150,650; Japan, seventeen vessels, 497,950.

Sees U. S. in Lead.

"By 1923, or, at the latest, 1924, the British fleet will have ceased to occupy with pride the place which it has held for over 300 years. The trident will have passed into the hands of the American people.

"No battleship nor battle cruiser is under construction in this country. Three or four vessels, sisters of the Hood, under construction at the time of the armistice, promptly were scrapped by the admiralty and, in the meantime, it not only abandoned these capital ships and 608 other vessels then under construction, but either scrapped, sold or placed on the inffective list a large number of ships which had been rendered obsolete or obsolescent.

"The United States by 1924 will possess twenty-one battleships of the first class, in contrast to fourteen under the British flag, and six battle cruisers to our four."

Mr. Hurd then examines the arming of these ships and finds that while the American guns will be heavier, longer and will fire larger projectiles, the British guns will be superior in accuracy, and this, he says, may counterbalance this fact. This, he points out, will not be enough, however, to balance the immense superiority in numbers of ships and tonnage.

Praises Americans.

"It may be argued that, after all, ships constitute only one element in sea power. We pride ourselves on possessing the sea instinct and we place high confidence in the efficiency of the officers and men in the British navy. The great war has shown that this confidence was well justified.

"But the Americans have no reason to blush for the officers and men who composed the crews of their battleships, destroyers and auxiliary craft which took part in naval operations in European waters."

THIEF PINING TO DIE PICKS WRONG MAN, ALMOST DOES

Larry Benson, chief special agent for the St. Paul railroad, was walking along Fulton street, between Halsted and Union, yesterday afternoon, when a man introduced himself by shoving a revolver against Benson's chest and remarking:

"Throw 'em up quick!"

Having $350 in his pocket, Benson gave the man's wrist a sharp turn, knocking the revolver to the sidewalk, and landed an uppercut. The holdup man went down for the count. Benson collared him.

"Don't hit me like that again," the robber pleaded.

Benson escorted him to his office at Fulton and Desplaines streets and called Lieut. John W. Norton. The prisoner said he was Alex Gencher of Duluth, Minn.

"All I was lookin' for was a soft spot to commit suicide," he said. "I wasn't goin' to rob you. I wanted to kill myself. If I had a gun now I'd end it all."

Unseen by the prisoner, Benson removed the cartridges from his own revolver and handed it to Gencher.

"Blaze away," he urged.

Gencher shrank back and refused to take the weapon. He was locked up on a charge of attempted robbery.

TRAIN INJURES AUTOISTS.

Quincy, Ill., Dec. 4.—Lawrence McCoy, 10, probably will die; Edward McCoy, 12, lost a leg; and W. B. Mecker, married, a man who drove the auto, probably will recover following an accident when their car was struck by a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train when five miles north of this city this evening.

100 in Pageant

CHICAGO'S art colony is anticipating the presentation of "The Nativity," a pageant, in Fullerton hall of the Art institute on Dec. 17, 18, 19, 20. All the performances will be at night except that on Saturday, Dec. 18, which will be a matinee. It is an historical pageant-drama.

The book was written by Cloyd J. Head. The music is by Eric Delamarter and the costuming by Herman Rosse. Clarence Hough of the Art institute is executive director of the affair. It is under the auspices of the School of Design.

Donald Robertson will deliver the prologue. Miss Edna Smith will portray the Madonna. Others who will participate are Miss Virginia Devine, Miss Gertrude Neumeister, and Miss Allis Gilmore. Altogether there will be more than 100 actors and actresses.

GERMANY FIGHTS PLEBISCITE IN UPPER SILESIA

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—The government has begun the preparation of a note of protest against the communication of Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain, sent in behalf of the allies, in which it was proposed to revise the treaty provision for holding the Upper Silesian plebiscite.

It is officially said the German reply will unequivocally decline to consent to any change in the plan for holding the plebiscite on the ground that it would be a violation of the treaty and a concession which would favor the Poles during the elections.

SMALL'S JANITOR OFFERED MONEY TO KIDNAP BOSS

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Osborne of Toronto, who were the janitors at the Grand opera house three years ago, are to be the principal witnesses for the prosecution in the conspiracy to kidnap Ambrose Small, the charge against John Doughty. Osborne will say that he was promised $20,000 to take part in a scheme to kidnap the "boss," according to his deposition, made to the attorney general.

Later he gave up his position "rather than be around when something happened." He left the job and his wife stayed on because her husband would not tell her his reason for leaving. They told the police their story immediately after Doughty and Small disappeared, and are only sorry now, they say, that they did not tell Ambrose Small at the time.

John Doughty comes up in the police court again on Monday, but will be remanded again for another week to give the detectives a chance to complete their case.

POLES DECLARE REDS ARE READY FOR NEW DRIVE

Say Invasion May Start at Any Time.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—Although the Polish delegation claims it has positive information that the bolshevists are preparing an offensive in which 600,000 Red troops plan to invade Poland and join hands with Germany, Ignace Paderewski is not expected to reply to G. N. Barnes, British labor leader, who will heckle the council for not forcing Poland to abandon hostilities last spring when it started its drive on Kiev, which, Barnes declared, prompted the Red offensive against Warsaw last summer.

The Polish delegation admits that its hands are tied and that it is unable to discuss its military and political actions without divulging private conversations and secret agreements with Mr. Lloyd George and President Millerand.

Report Great Red Force.

"Forty divisions have been concentrated for use against the Poles in Galicia," the Polish general staff has reported.

Joseph Weilowieski, a Polish league delegate and a former czarist officer, who campaigned this front against the Teutons, said today:

"The soviet government is now massing between 150,000 and 200,000 men in the northern sector for use in the Vilna plebiscite zone, but lack of transportation facilities is preventing the Reds from massing more than 600,000 men along the whole front, as that many troops could not be supplied with food and munitions.

Use Wrangel Munitions.

"The Reds are well equipped and supplied with booty taken from Wrangel, including several heavy batteries, a big supply of shells, British tanks, French machine guns, and huge stores of ammunition. Some of the soviet troops from the Wrangel front are wearing uniforms which were a part of the American expeditionary force stock shipped to the Crimea.

"Weather conditions permit attack any time now owing to a premature cold wave which froze up the marshes and lakes, and military operations can continue until March. Then the mud will stop any campaigning until summer.

Germans as Officers.

"The Red troops on the Minsk sector are officered by Germans who are reported to be awaiting the substitution of Polish troops in the Vilna zone by the league plebiscite army. The principal railroad in this region would be cut should the Red cavalry charge across the twenty-five mile strip separating the Polish and Russian frontier from the boundary of the plebiscite zone."

PAVLOWA AND A BALLET

BY PERCY HAMMOND.

IT is not possible in writing of the dancing of Pavlowa to escape the stock banality that never before did she dance so well. No matter how many times you may see her, the thought persists that you are present at her greatest moment—that she is giving new significance to rhythm by translating it into fresh terms of silvery and harmonious motion. Similes have been exhausted in the endeavor to describe what she does, and the happiest thing ever said about her is Mr. Walkeley's mot, so often quoted, that the waves, the reeds, the flames, and the winds no longer boast that she is like them—it is they who are like her.

So, from the minute she floated forth from the wings at Medinah temple yesterday to join the filmy ensemble in "Chopiniana" her spirit and her reticent flesh enthralled the audience, if one may be permitted so journalistic an extravagance. She appeared younger and stronger and nearer to the zephyrs than ever before, and when Mr. Volinine held her aloft in her winged ascensions she seemed to be wafted upward by a breath or a mere gesture. There is no "technique" visible in those flights—just bewildering improvisation, mingled light, air, grace, and cadence. She and the others were in the circus skirts of Taglioni, and they danced the set of nine fragile tableaux to a shimmering Chopin pot pourri, arranged by Glazounow, who, this enraptured reporter is informed by an equally ecstatic official brochure, employed etudes, preludes, mazurkas, and waltzes, ranging from the stately measures of the polonaise in A major to the bewitching undulations of the D flat major waltz.

Be that as it may, Mme. Pavlowa later enacted the Fokine-Saint Saens "Swan," of course, in the lovely Bakst costume and made it again an impalpable impression of infinite delicacy and pathos. Her only other appearance of the afternoon was in the inevitable "Gavotte Pavlowa," with its sycophantic obbligato, and its irresistible little pivot movement. She was in this, as usual, a charming vision of knowing elegance in her quaint poke bonnet and gold boots; and Mr. Volinine stepped with her the picturesque measures of this piquant saraband with smiling gravity and grace. The demonstrations of delight by yesterday's audiences recalled the summer evenings not many years ago, when certain idealistic gentlemen cast pearls before us at the Midway gardens, and we drank beer and smoked cigarets with our backs turned toward Pavlowa while she danced.

Mme. Pavlowa's ballet, many of whom, it is said, are Americans, was handsome, properly sculptured, freshly dressed, and remarkably proficient. Led by Miss Muriel Stuart, it posed Clustine's "The Enchanted Lake" to Schubert's music and told the romantic legend of the Knights, the Nymphs, and the Pearl Necklace in dreamy and unearthly groups and friezes. The prettiest thing among the ballet's divertissements at the matinée was a dance for four, not found in the program, and hence impossible to identify. There were a Polish ballet, the "Moment Musical," and a mazurka or two, and Mr. Volinine almost stampeded the spectators by his agile leaps and boundings.

Last night another, prodigious "house" attended to see and to hear the ballet from "Thais" with the "Meditation" interpreted by Mlle. Oleneva. Domoslausk, it is said, was the fanatic cenobite, Volinine, the patrician Nicias, and there were many slaves, Greeks, mimes, and courtesans. Tschaikowsky's "Snowflakes" was the other ballet, with frequent appearances of Pavlowa, and the eight divertissements included several established favorites. There was scarcely enough of Russian scenery, and at times a trifle too much stuff from the Temple's stereotyped stock-pot and the lighting was only so-so. The dress, however, was lovely, and the band, though not numerous, was sufficiently audible. Messrs. Wessels and Voegeli announce the final Chicago appearance of the ballet for Sunday evening, Dec. 26, at the Auditorium.

Shoppers in Narrow Escape from Falling Signboard

A number of women shoppers narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday when half of a large signboard, bearing the name of Dr. C. E. Goulding, plunged down upon the heads of passersby from a building at 120 South State street. Several persons were slightly hurt, but left the scene before the police could ascertain their names.

LATINS MULTIPLY TOO FAST; ROME SEEKING OUTLET

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service]
[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ROME, Dec. 4.—There is no indication of race suicide in Italy. On the contrary, Italy's population is increasing so rapidly that the industries cannot absorb it. Since 1911, when the last census was taken, there has been an increase of 4,000,000, despite the heavy losses during the war, through the influenza epidemic, and by the emigration of 500,000 during the last year.

During the war the birth rate declined about 10 per cent, while the deaths increased. Since then the birth rate has reached the 1913 percentage, which was the banner year, and the 1920 figures probably will show 700,000 more births than deaths. The last eight years show an increase of 4,000,000.

So great is Italy's excess of man power that the ministry of labor is considering measures for shrinking the surplus.

Irish Give Ball to Aid Black and Tan Victims

The north side councils of the Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic gave a ball last night at the Arena, at which some 10,000 persons danced and were entertained. Mayor Dennis Morgan of Thurles, Ireland, and Mrs. Laurence Grinnell, wife of a former Irish M. P., led the grand march. The proceeds of the ball are to be turned over to the suffering people of Ireland; victims of the "Black and Tans."

SENATORS SEE LEAGUE END IN ARGENTINA ACT

"I Told You So," Refrain at Washington.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Argentina's abrupt withdrawal from the Geneva conference was viewed at the senate today as the beginning of the end of the league of nations.

Senators who have opposed ratification of the treaty of Versailles predicted that the South American republic's action would "start the ball rolling" and lead to rapid disintegration of the league. They saw in Argentina's withdrawal a confirmation of their oft repeated warning that the small nations would soon quit the league when they learned how it would be dominated by the stronger members.

Proves League Objection.

There was some speculation as to whether Argentina would be permitted to get out of the league immediately. It was recalled that one of the strong objections raised against the Versailles pact was that it did not permit nations to withdraw from the league until they had fulfilled all their international obligations. One of the first of the Lodge reservations undertook to make it plain to the world that the United States reserved the right to end its participation in the league whenever it saw fit. Argentina is not protected by any such reservation and senators are watching with interest how the league would deal with the bolting member.

"The inevitable disintegration has begun a little earlier than I had anticipated," was the comment of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, former secretary of state, one of the senate 'irreconcilables.'"

View of Senator Lodge.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Republican leader in the senate, and chairman of the foreign relations committee, had this comment to make:

"I am very much interested in the reports from Geneva, but we do not know enough to pass judgment upon it. The indications seem to be that some of the nations represented in the league are beginning to find out objections to it which we discovered two years ago."

Senator Borah of Idaho, an "irreconcilable" opponent of the treaty, made this statement:

"The Argentine republic has started the stampede. All except Great Britain will follow in due course of time."

Senator Ashurst of Arizona, one of the strongest Democratic defenders of the league covenant, had to resort to Latin to express his feelings.

"Sic transit gloria mundi," he exclaimed. (Thus passes the glory of the world.)

EXIT HUSBAND

Actress Who Talked Through Keyhole to "Other Woman," Then Got Divorce.

MRS. SADIE SCHLESINGER

(Josephine Davis.)

THE story of a conversation carried on through the keyhole of a door in a loop hotel won a divorce yesterday for Mrs. Sadie Schlesinger, known on the vaudeville stage as Josephine Davis, from Abraham David Schlesinger, a bond broker.

Judge Joseph Sabath indicated he would grant the decree when Mrs. Schlesinger told of knocking on the door of her husband's room in the hotel and talking to a woman who said she was the real Mrs. Schlesinger. The judge also indicated he would grant the actress' request to resume her maiden name.

Mrs. Schlesinger had her husband arrested last spring in Cleveland. "He was questioned by the police there," she said, "to determine whether he was connected with the 'Nicky' Arnstein band. He looks like Arnstein."

ARGENTINA QUITS ASSEMBLY; MAY STILL WIN POINT

Hymans to Remove Gag Law Today.

gentina will, nevertheless, withdraw. The league cannot achieve its aim unless its constitution embraces all four principles. Each of them is supported by many delegations, chiefly smaller ones.

No Allies in Stand.

"I don't know whether the other nations will withdraw when we do. We are not attempting a plot to undermine the league. We have conversed with no other delegation on this question and we have asked no one to follow us."

News of the action of Argentina spread like wildfire through the various delegations. Hurried consultations were held by delegates of the big powers.

Many others went farther and congratulated the Argentine delegation on its firm stand and promised support.

ARGENTINA'S REASONS

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Senor Pueyrredon's note to M. Hymans informing the chairman that the Argentine delegation was leaving the assembly refers to the vote of the assembly on the Scandinavian amendments, and says he voted alone against postponement, desiring that "the irrevocable decision which I had the honor to announce to the assembly be interpreted accurately."

"It is necessary to distinguish among the amendments in general," the note added. "Those that might have relation to the treaty of Versailles from those intended to modify the covenant in the noble object of guaranteeing humanity against war and assuring practical solidarity and equality among the states. All the amendments proposed by Argentina are in the second category."

Judge League by Acts.

The note asserts that it is by acts the league will be judged, and remarks: "The members of the assembly will separate in a few days without having considered great constitutional questions which might have offered to public opinion the best guarantee of the amplitude and organic vigor of the league.

"The Argentine delegation would have accepted adjournment of a proposition of secondary importance, but cannot consent to put off those that would complete and fortify the institution."

"Our Mission Ended."

Señor Pueyreddon points out that it was the principal object of the Argentine government, in sending delegates here, to coöperate by amendments to the covenant and to coöperate in the constitution of a chapter in which all hoped to find inscribed the ideals always entertained, and concludes:

"In accord with the government, I have the honor to inform the president and, through him, the assembly, that the Argentine delegation considers its mission terminated."

The Canadian delegate, C. J. Doherty, said to the Associated Press after the morning session:

"In introducing the resolution for eliminating Article X from the covenant of the league, I am only following the policy adopted from the beginning of the discussion of that article during the peace conference. We never approved it; we ratified the covenant containing it because to reject it was to reject the treaty of Versailles, but we reserved the right to take up the question again at the proper time."

Asked regarding the report that one of the principal objects was to save the way for entry of the United States into the league, Mr. Doherty said:

"Of course, if, incidentally, elimination of Article X facilitates the entry of our neighbor we shall be delighted; but it is Canadian initiative from a purely Canadian standpoint."

U.S. NOT LAND OF STRANGERS TO ALIEN JEWS

Hebrew Society Cares for Newcomers.

BY ROBERT B. PEATTIE.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—East Broadway runs from Chatham square to East river. It is a broad thoroughfare for the district and is lined with Jewish shops and tenements. All the signs bear Jewish names and the posters in the windows are in Hebrew or Yiddish. Two Jewish newspapers are there, and these journals are seen to the exclusion of their English contemporaries on the news stands. Their sellers cry their wares in the conglomerate tongue of the east side.

In the heart of this district is the headquarters of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of the United States, an institution with a branch at every port on both coasts, one at Yokohama, Japan; a bureau on Ellis island, and stations in Warsaw, Danzig, and Paris. There was one at Lemberg, but with the United States consulate there abandoned, it, too, has ceased to function.

Place to Meet Friends.

An old building, long outgrown, serves as the shelter and executive offices of the society. It is a perfect warren of immigrant Jews, newly arrived, passed through the Ellis island sieve but not yet orientated. It is here are brought all Jews who may be waiting for relatives to take them to their future homes. It is here come those who have arrived and look for employment, advice, instruction in the ways of the new world. Here they may stay for a time, and have food and lodging, if unable to get them elsewhere.

In the upper stories are the offices of the society. Every room is crowded with the newcomers, asking, asking, asking—all day and all night this goes on.

The society started thirty years ago as a shelter, has now embraced the immigrants' aid and has stretched out its arms across the sea to Japan on one hand and as far as Poland on the other.

Aids Jews in Japan.

During the war the state department advised the society that over a hundred Jewish women and children refugees from Siberia had reached Yokohama stranded. An agent was sent there, a hotel engaged for them, they were fed and their relatives found in this country. These last sent funds and the families were reunited here. Among them were some Catholic Poles, who were cared for like the rest. One died. Before his death the agent sent for a priest to administer to him.

More Jews arrived. Quarters in Yokohama and Tokio were secured and these refugees, too, came to find their fathers or husbands in this country. In three years about 3,000 Jews came here via Japan.

Then the situation in Poland became acute. Agents were sent to Warsaw and Danzig and offices were established in these cities to receive those seeking egress. Every Polish Jew seeking to come here must have a Warsaw passport.

Relatives Send Funds.

The agents investigate each case, cable to the relatives in the United States for funds, and then, making proper representations to the Polish authorities and the American consuls, secure the passport. This can only be had when the proposed emigrant shows he or she has a steamship ticket.

The voyagers are put on special immigrant trains for Danzig. Arriving there, they are obliged to go into camps by the local government, where it was charged in the past, and to a lesser extent now, they were subjected to exorbitant charges for housing and food. When the American medical authorities have examined and treated them to certain sanitary precautions they sail when the ship is ready.

There have been many stories recently concerning the number of Polish Jews who have sailed from Danzig in the last six months or so. It has been said the consul at Warsaw was viséing many thousands a week; that 250,000 were all ready to sail, etc.

Big Rush for Passports.

John L. Bernstein, the president of the society, told a TRIBUNE reporter today that when he was in Warsaw in the early part of the year the visés had increased from seventy-five to 200 a week and in May he knew of 2,000 who were waiting their turn, and that it took about six weeks to get a passport viséd.

Of these, 75 per cent, he said, were women and children seeking to rejoin their husbands or fathers, whom they had not seen, many of them, for six years.

The agents in Europe, Mr. Bernstein was careful to explain, only took action or extended help to Jews when the latter came to them as applicants. Until they applied for aid to find relatives in the United States and to secure passports the agents had no relations with them. They could not organize the Jews to leave Poland or any other country. An alien sent here by an immigrant organization was liable to deportation.

"The first step was to find the father or husband in this country. When found, he was told how much money was necessary to bring his family here. The sum paid, he was given a receipt, and the money, in American dollars, was given to the family in Europe. The only charge made was the cable bills. The tickets were then bought and the passports secured.

"When the immigrant arrives at New York and passes through the immigration test successfully, if he has relatives waiting for him he goes away in their care. Such do not come under our charge unless they come as all are invited to do, to partake of the instructions and [illegible].

What Is Done for Aliens.

"What we proffer is said to any immigrant who comes to any port in the United States: Legal assistance in making his entry; communication with relatives, no matter where they are; ministry to his physical wants; first words in English. We teach him about two phrases: 'Have you any work?' 'What are the wages?' 'Direct me to ——,' etc. Just enough to break the ice, as it were. Then we have regular classes in English in which free instruction is given.

"Every one gets instruction in the [illegible] of the United States constitution and in general civic duties. The government of the nation, state, and city is explained to him, and the difference between our public life and the one they left is dwelt upon. These are open lectures, at which all are welcome. Often they are upon America's noted men, with analogies drawn from Bible characters, the application of which appeals to a race so ingrained with the Old Testament. All legal holidays not sectarian are observed, and the significance of each explained. On those occasions there are patriotic addresses, and the national anthem is sung.

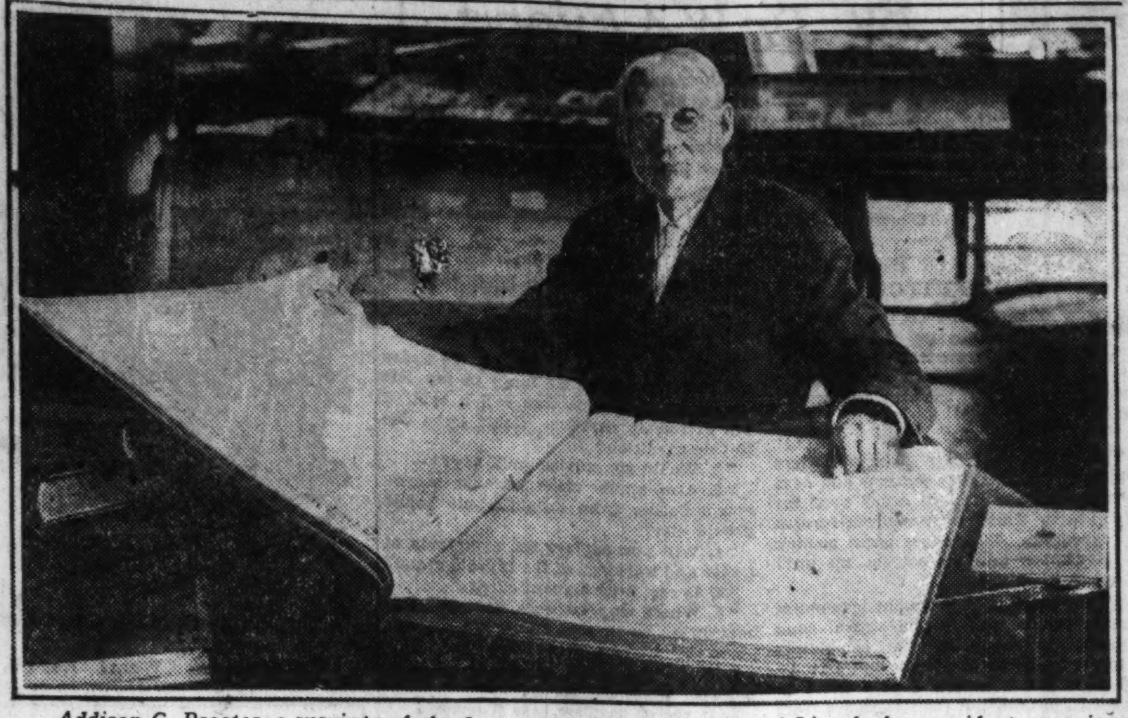
"An information bureau is maintained answering questions of every description. An employment bureau keeps in touch with the industries to which we supply many workmen. There are illustrated lectures on the country showing the various towns, with pictures of the temples, schools and industries and the audience is told of the economic, educational, religious, and cultural advantages of each city."

Has Many Branches.

The society has branches at Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, San Francisco, Seattle, and Chicago, the latter being at 1336 South Morgan street. A monthly bulletin is issued which not only contains official news of the society but information available to the newcomer. It even has reviews of books and plays it would be good for him to know.

Commissioner Wallis at Ellis island estimates that for this month the total immigration will be 100,000 and for the year 795,000. Of these the Poles and Jews will be far in the lead.

AGE HOBNOBS WITH AGE



Addison G. Procter, a survivor of the first convention that nominated Lincoln for president, scanning the Tribune files of 1860 for facts concerning stirring events of that period.

Friend of Lincoln

Addison G. Procter, the only living representative sent from Kansas to the Republican national convention of 1860 that nominated Lincoln, will lecture before the Chicago Historical society next Thursday evening on "Life on the Border with the Slave Holding Indians During the 60s."

Mr. Procter, who is 82 years old, was President Lincoln's special commissioner to the Indian Territory from 1861 to 1864.

He will remain in Chicago throughout the winter, and intends spending most of his time at the society, reading over the files of THE TRIBUNE of 1860 and surrounded by the many relics of Lincoln's time in the museum.

Mr. Procter was born at Gloucester Mass., his father being the owner of a line of fishing schooners. He will reside with his son at 6123 Prairie avenue.

Regular Army to Get 5,000 Officers Trained in War

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The war department announced tonight that 5,589 wartime officers had been offered permanent commissions in the army as a result of examinations during the year. About 300 have declined and a number have not been heard from, but it is expected that at least 5,000 officers will be obtained.

SHIP CAPACITY ONLY LIMIT TO IMMIGRATION

PARIS, Dec. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Emigration from Europe to the United States in the next few years will be limited only by the availability of shipping facilities or restrictive legislation, said Dr. Rupert Blue, former surgeon general of the United States public health service, on returning to Paris today from an inspection trip.

He is in charge of the medical examination of emigrants by American doctors in all the principal European ports. The doctors' reports, Dr. Blue asserted, show reservations which extend over a period of several years. Dr. Blue said the great increase in emigration was due mainly to misery in the home districts of the emigrants.

"There are many fine, healthy young, former soldiers among the emigrants," Dr. Blue continued, "but the women and children are in miserable health as a result of privations. This impression is universally true, but applies particularly to the Italians, Roumanians, Czechs, Serbs, Croats and Poles. The emigrants from the Scandinavian countries and Spain are quite good. The percentage of old men and women is much lower than before the war."

'MIRACLE MAN,' ONCE EXPOSED, TO 'HEAL' HERE

Announces Feats Will Start Today.

Harry Mays, former pugilist, ship riveter, and automobile mechanic, of "miracle man" fame at New Castle, Ind., has hung out his shingle at 105 South Ashland boulevard announcing that, beginning at 9 o'clock today, he will begin his "feats of healing."

"I am ready to tackle disease that afflicts humanity," he announces. "I claim nothing—guarantee nothing. All I do is lay my hands on a sick person and utter a short prayer. If any good is done, it is not by me, but by God. I have no knowledge of hynotism, mental healing, medical science, or other ism."

About a year ago Mays attracted much attention at New Castle, Ind., creating excitement among the natives by his alleged ability to cure all ailments by "the laying on of hands." He was exposed as a fakir and was not heard from until his arrival here. The New Castle sanitarium organized for him by local bankers and business men was closed and hundreds of deluded persons who flocked to the little Indiana town in search of relief from their ailments were compelled to return to other homes.

Numbers of well known persons attended his gatherings. He tells of experiencing a strange power from childhood through exercise, of which he claims some persons "treated" are benefited.

A delegation of Brady's political friends from the First ward will attend the inauguration in a body.

ARRESTED ON GIRLS' CHARGES.

A DANGEROUS INTERIM.

Senator Norris proposes an amendment to the constitution to do away with the electoral college—a debatable proposition. We think it more important to do away with the four months' delay between election and inauguration. The sole reason for this passed away with the post chaise and the sailing packet. Less than a week is now necessary for the most remote congressman to reach the capital. Of course a reasonable time should be provided for the retirement of an administration, but not four months.

The experience of the nation at the outbreak of the civil war should have been enough to bring a change. The four months between the election and inauguration of Lincoln were a costly period for the north. The southerners in Buchanan's administration were able to get prepared for secession to an extent that made prompt suppression of the rebellion impossible and cost the nation a ghastly waste of life and almost its unity.

The government chosen by the people should not be compelled to wait for four months in inaction while the government to which the people have refused a vote of confidence remains in power. We hope there never will be traitors again in any administration as there were in 1860, but what has happened may happen again. But the case need not be put in this extreme form. Granted that the outgoing administrations will always be as loyal as the incoming and as anxious to serve the best interests of the nation, still they cannot function efficiently. They must necessarily confine themselves to closing up. It is not in human nature to begin things for others to take over, and, indeed, if an outgoing administration were to attempt it there would be waste and confusion, since the incoming would often undo what its predecessors and political opponents had begun.

In short, the four months between election and inauguration must be a period in which the executive departments run down and even the legislative branch of government, where party changes have taken place, must confine itself virtually to unfinished business. In ordinary times this involves a great loss. In critical times it is dangerous. Mr. Taft after his defeat felt obliged to mark time on the Mexican situation, wishing not to commit the government or force Mr. Wilson's hand. If Mr. Hughes had been elected in 1916 a very serious embarrassment would have occurred, for he could not have taken charge of our critical relations with Germany during the very period in which, as it turned out, they were culminating.

The present situation is about as undesirable as it could be and emphasizes sharply the need for change. Mr. Wilson's party has been defeated on issues of international policy which are of urgent moment. Mr. Wilson must either mark time, as we assume he will do, or act inconsistently with his own convictions or in disobedience of the popular decision, neither of which is probable. Our foreign affairs, to say nothing of our domestic, must therefore wait for definite and vigorous handling during a period of great strain and momentous possibilities.

This is inefficient government, and congress should act at once to initiate amendment.

PAVLOWA.

In the dancing of Pavlowa you are reminded again that in the fine arts the difference between the best and the second best is immeasurable.

This is one of the most interesting of the mysteries and beyond explanation or even illumination, like the mystery of religious faith which escapes definition and can never be reached by argument.

Men have always been trying to define beauty, yet always failing, and all the erudite works on its laws are able to aid no one who needs aid. We devise words and formulae to express our perception of the nature of beauty. We speak of genius and of talent, genius which creates the best, talent which brings forth the good which is not the best; but like the skeptic poet seeking the key to the riddle of the universe, though we consult doctor and saint and hear great argument, we come out by the same door wherein we went.

Words, however subtle, cannot create the perception of beauty, though often they may stimulate it, not by way of the reason but by arousing the emotion of beauty, for words, having a beauty of their own, may do this. But theorizing about beauty and genius is perhaps more likely to produce a barrier between the free and therefore sensitive perception and the thing of beauty. They are likely to lead the mind into fixed channels and give it a false idea which shuts out the appeal of beauty. Thus we have aesthetic snobs who are afraid to give themselves to the enjoyment of what is not authoritatively labeled.

Doubtless these victims are not gifted with a very strong sense of the beautiful and are not losing much. Nevertheless their influence is not good, as they contrive to do a good deal of damage, though it is not lasting, for genius is so intense and vital a thing that it usually survives neglect and conquers hostility.

Words cannot serve beauty, therefore, by way of the reason, by explaining and defining. They may create beauty which leaves the reader where he began—with or without its perception—but they may at least aid by turning the reader away from words to beauty itself and perhaps induce him to observe beauty without prejudice or preconception, to give himself freely to its enjoyment so far as his perception can give him enjoyment.

This perception varies not only among individuals but within each individual. In a fortunate few it is sensitive in a very high degree. In many it is not strong and requires stimulation and direction, but this should be by way of experience and not by way of precept.

In Pavlowa we have genius producing that best of its kind which is beyond measure superior to what the highest of talent produces. The mystery of it is beyond explanation, beyond statement. Why does this one woman, beautiful with what is to us an exotic beauty, yet not as beautiful as others we know, having two legs, two arms, and a nervous organism in no way different, so far as the acutest science could observe, from that of any other woman, having no more training in her art than many others of her school, having no more access to the culture which enrichens the imagination and colors or inspires the [illegible] of art, why is Pavlowa a genius, why is the dancing of Pavlowa in the high realm of the best?

We cannot know, but we can enjoy, which is a deeper sort of knowledge, the only sort that matters in the world of beauty.

A $2,000,000,000 PLAN TO REVIVE BUSINESS.

Plans for the organization of a syndicate giving promise of rehabilitation of American industry, encouragement of American agriculture, and stabilization of world trade by arrangement of a $2,000,000,000 commercial credit for Germany are well under way in New York and Washington. They deserve the attention and, we believe, the support of agricultural, industrial, and financial interests throughout the country. They offer what appears to be a specific practical plan to help pull this country out of its business slump and at the same time to help put Europe on its feet in such a manner that Europe can move with us toward general prosperity.

Briefly, the plan is to utilize some $400,000,000 worth of German property, now held by our alien property custodian, as the basis of the proposed $2,000,000,000 commercial credit. Sponsors of the plan argue without contradiction that this credit will immediately enable Germany to buy necessary raw materials in this country to an extent which will not only greatly improve our market but will allow Germany to employ all its available labor at productive and profitable work, thus aiding in the rehabilitation of that country and assisting in the payment of war debts and indemnities so that all Europe would benefit.

At present our market for cotton, wheat, leather, and wool is at a dangerously low ebb. Many farmers and rural banks and businesses are in distress. The recent huge crops appear to their producers as a liability rather than an asset. There is danger that production next year will be reduced. The proposed credit is designed to overcome this trouble.

It would not only provide a market for products which we do not need but would provide business for our merchant marine and tend toward a permanent improvement in our foreign trade. It would improve foreign exchange sufficiently to protect us from German competition in countries where Germany can now undersell us in certain lines because of the low cost of German labor and the high price of dollars. It would relieve our banks of some of the foreign trade financing which they have been handling. It would thereby release funds for such needed purposes as railroad, waterway, and highway improvements, manufacturing extensions, and general building in this country.

The general advantage to Europe would lie in the possibility of demonstrating exactly what Germany would be able to do in the way of reconstruction if ample raw materials and food supplies were made available. This, with the stabilization of the mark, would form a basis upon which Germany's ability to pay indemnities could be estimated. All Europe would profit. We might be able to collect regular interest on our $11,000,000,000 foreign war debt and obtain assurance of payment of the principal.

If the plan merely provides a market for our excess crops it will not only relieve the farmers but will thereby increase demand for all domestic products. General industrial and business revival will follow.

There are some obstacles to be overcome. Attorney General Palmer holds that there are legal technicalities in the way of using alien property in this manner. The treaty of Versailles if ratified without proper reservations would obstruct, but that is not likely. Secretary Colby, however, indicates the state department will help to surmount difficulties arising between the two countries. A bill is being prepared for action by the next congress to clear the way for application of the plan. For selfish reasons if no other it should be pushed to adoption and at the earliest possible moment.

A DISGRACE TO THE NATION.

"Ten thousand disabled war veterans are quartered in cellars, poorhouses, and insane asylums."

This statement, coming from Col. T. W. Galbraith Jr., national commander of the American Legion, should do what the Legion says it will do, namely, "take steps to see that these disabled men are properly cared for by their debtors—the people of the United States."

It is a sad commentary upon the people of the United States that the care of these men, maimed for life in our service, should have sunk, through penuriousness, politics, and inefficiency, to a point where such an indictment can be returned. Dr. C. W. Lavinder, an assistant surgeon general, in charge of hospitals for the public health service, admits Galbraith's charge is true. He blames congress for not appropriating the necessary funds. Whoever or whatever is to blame, the nation must feel itself in disgrace.

The suffering caused these maimed heroes can never be compensated for. It can be prevented from continuing, and it must be.

The Legion has prepared a bill whereby all activities connected with discharged disabled veterans will be coördinated. It plans to fix responsibility, prevent dodging, and assure immediate relief. If there is anything in the American government worth fighting for, this government will prove it by favorable action on that bill.

Editorial of the Day

LEADERS SELDOM GO TO JAIL.

[Omaha Bee.]

In a ringing pronunciamento, emitted at [illegible]ton, Charles S. Barrett, president of the [illegible] Farmers' union, advises the members in Kansas to go to jail rather than submit to any effort to require them to market their crops. Perhaps the devoted followers of Mr. Barrett will take his advice, and the empty jails of Kansas will be filled with men who harvested big fields of wheat, but are unwilling to dispose of the grain at market prices. It is not necessary to consider here the further admonition of the president that the farmers cease to plant until the world is starved into paying a price fixed by the union. It was just that sort of spirit that brought denunciation on the coal miners a year ago, when they were willing to let the country both freeze and starve if their demands were not met. Yet the leaders of the miners did not go to jail, nor will the president of the National Farmers' union. They may advise their supporters to thus sacrifice themselves, but as a rule they keep a safe distance from the jail door themselves.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"THE entertainment committee of the Union League Club," so it says, "is with considerable effort spending some of your money to please you." In the clubs to which we belong there is no observable effort.

CERTAIN toadstools are colored a pizenous pink underneath; a shade which is also found on the cheeks of damosels and dames whom you see on the avenue. Poor kalsomining, we call it.

UNLEASH THE BLOODHOUNDS, WATSON!

Sir: Am I the only interested observer of a solitary young woman who hikes along the Midway after dark smoking cigarettes? Intermittent arc lights disclose an ensemble too mature for a co-ed and too independent for an instructress.

A MIDWAY MAN.

ALTHOUGH ongweed to the extinction point by the subject of names, we have no right to assume that the subject is not of lively interest to other people. So let it be recorded that George Demon was arrested in Council Bluffs for beating his wife. Also, Miss Elsie Hugger is director of dancing in the Ithaca Conservatory of Music. Furthermore, S. W. Henn of the Iowa State College was selected as a judge for the National Poultry Show. Moreover, G. O. Wildhack is in the automobile business in Indianapolis, and Mrs. Cataract takes in washing in Peoria. Sleepy weather, isn't it?

THE GARDEN OF THY HEART.

Within thy heart a garden men can see
Wherein the flowers of loveliness do grow;
Where happy thoughts do wing them to and fro
And build their nests in many a magic tree,
And there doth pity's fountain hold in fee
Mossed banks of peace where shadows come and go;
And there are quiet paths that few do know,
Yea, only those who love and worship thee,
Or those in whom is perfect friendship born;
For hid within this garden of thy heart
A holy temple stands, wherein at morn
And eve, before an altar heaped with myrrh,
A vestal spirit bids a bright flame start
To heaven with prayers already granted her.

[From the Rosendale, Mo., Signal.]

A person coming from the south, going west, should go around the band stand, and a person coming from the east, going south, should go around the band stand, that would put him on the right side of the road and there would be no danger of a collision.

WHEN we begin to read a book we begin with the title page; but many people probably most, begin at "Chapter I." We have recommended books to friends, and they have read them; and then they have said, "Tell me something about the author." The preface would have told them, but they do not read prefaces. Do you?

ECHO!

Long have I called you, and with song have wooed
In noon-day woods by summer sunshine gilt,
When the last thrush had stilled his hermit lilt
Expectant of your answer's interlude:
Or on cool heights, where benedictory brood
The homely hills, my lonely heart has spilt
Its longing. Echo only, the sad jilt,
Laughingly mocked my random solitude.

Thrilling across the years, at last your voice
Replies to hope, ever rebuffed before,
But even now I half dare not rejoice,
Lest phantom love prove just one echo more.
I can not doubt, yet still some fears remain.
Tell me your love again—again—again!

HOT DRY AIR BRINGS WINTER ITCH.

"WHAT can I do," J. B. writes, "to stop the itching in my legs from the knees down. It is worse at night than at any other time. I wash with salt water, but it does no good."

This is the first of a flood of letters which will flow in between now and next spring. It has been so every year for nine years. This winter will not furnish an exception. The letters begin coming in November and do not let up until about April.

Winter itch is a frequent complaint among people who live in warm, snug houses. In the main the complaints come from north of Mason and Dixon's line. A few southern people write in about it, but most of the letters are from people who live in the warmer, drier houses of the north. When I kept count one winter, it seemed to me a subject in which New Englanders were especially interested.

In winter itch there are no pimples, blisters, ulcers, or anything else to see on the skin until marks made by scratching appear. The skin is dry and sometimes a little gooseflesby in appearance. That is all that can be seen. The only symptom, itching, generally starts on the back part of the inner side of the leg, just above the knee. It extends up and down from the region of the knees, presently involves the arms, and sometimes affects all covered parts of the body. It is worse at night.

It results from living in houses in which the air is too dry and too warm. Rarely does it affect young people. It is essentially a discomfort of the middle aged and the old. Before the winter is over I suppose fifty remedies will be reported. Each has its merits. All remedies that relieve itching are of service. The best are those containing some carbolic, but there is some danger from absorption of carbolic acid through scratch marks. Greasing does some good. A trip to Florida cures in twenty-four hours. Living out of doors anywhere effects a speedy cure.

Those people who cannot go south for the winter and cannot live out of doors will be relieved of their trouble if they will keep the room temperature down and the humidity up. I doubt if there would be any winter itch if room temperatures were kept below 65 degrees except during sleeping hours. When one sleeps in a well covered bed the air around his body becomes very hot. I also am certain that there would be little winter itch if room humidities were kept above 50 degrees. A few old people might need to grease themselves occasionally, but that would be all.

YOU'RE STILL IN THE RING.

J. J. B. writes: "I am nearly 75 years old and a former Union soldier. A medical examination a short time ago indicated I was threatened with paralysis of left arm and vertigo, had obstinate constipation and blood pressure 190. Kindly tell me if this report does not mean a very short life for me? Is not the blood pressure alarming, and is there no cure?"

REPLY.

I do not think you need be alarmed. You stand a good chance to live out your expectancy which means you can vote in a few more presidential elections. Overcome your constipation by eating bran, sour milk, vegetables, and fruit. These are the best remedies for high blood pressure. Some authorities hold that a moderately high blood pressure in an old person is necessary to overcome obstruction in the senile organs; 190 is not very high for your age. I knew a man who married three times and outlived three wives after his blood pressure reached 200.

WORRY IS OF NO VALUE.

Mrs. J. L. writes: "1. I am 24 years old and have a small lump in my left breast which the doctors call a cyst. I am extremely nervous. Could it be due to this condition?

"2. Would you advise an X-ray?

"3. Also kindly state whether a person suffering from exophthalmic goiter should diet?

"4. Will you explain the symptoms of goiter and workings of the thyroid gland?

"5. Is rest a permanent cure?

"6. Where may I secure further information as to thyroid trouble?"

REPLY.

1. Cyst of the breast does not cause nervousness. Worry and fear do.
2. If you do anything have it removed.
3. Some persons with goiter are benefited by careful eating and avoiding indigestion. Beyond that diet is not of importance in goiter.
4. The thyroid gland secretion is absorbed directly into the blood stream. It is necessary for health. If there be too little of it the person is dull mentally, slow physically, and the work of many organs is poorly done. If there is too much of this secretion the nerves are on edge, the person has too much pep, is irritable, his heart is nervous, there may be diarrhoea, his hands tremble, and the work of many organs is improperly done. In the main this last group embraces the symptoms of goiter.
5. As a rule, no.
6. I know of no book on goiter written in nontechnical terms.

DEPENDS ON YOUR WEIGHT.

H. J. writes: "Is there any harm in taking a nap just after eating? One usually feels a little heavy after a hearty noon dinner. Is not this nature's hint to lie down for a half hour's snooze as the animals seem to do?

"I think some one has recommended a short nap before dinner, but who wants to sleep then? Is not the advantage all in favor of the after-dinner nap, when also one wants it?"

REPLY.

There is no direct harm. If a person is disposed toward obesity he will find that a nap soon after eating tends to make the food go to fat. On the other hand there is no better plan for a thin person who wants to get fat than to take a nap immediately after eating.

GOITER PROBABLE CAUSE.

Mrs. O. F. writes: "I am a housewife and mother, 37 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weigh 125 pounds. I am short winded, troubled much with headache, and can only lie on my left side a short time, as my heart seems to pound so hard. I have a goiter, which troubles me when I am very tired, have a headache, a cold, and during menstrual periods am miserable. Would you say my goiter was the cause of all this, and what would you advise?"

REPLY.

It is altogether probable that your goiter is responsible. You should have a physician with some experience in goiter cases take care of you.

IT'S A MONEY PRODUCER.

Mrs. R. H. R. writes: "Any one suffering from neuritis, rheumatism, or injured bursa or any trouble with the shoulder will find a cure by using an electric pad on the sore spot every night for a month. Bind the pad on so as to keep it in place all night."

REPLY.

Your remedy will give much relief, will cure a few cases, and will bring a good deal of money into the coffers of the electric light company.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

OUT OF SUCH AS THIS—A NEW ERA.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 21.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—It is fortunate that the W. G. N. believes in the principle of free speech. Were it not for the V. of the P. column, I would soon wither from lack of humor and the constructive opinions that its contributors are responsible for.

I therefore take my pen in hand to enable my fellows to gain first hand information from one that is a "bolsher" himself as to the attitude we of the crimson race hold on such questions as immigration limitation, blue laws, Ireland, etc. Strange as it may be, we support THE TRIBUNE in many of its ravings!

Though not writing as "commissar of the local soviet," I feel confident in stating that we uphold and O. K. THE TRIB'S editorial broadside against all foreigners. We are undoubtedly in favor of keeping them out, for any reason. It is an advantage to us to work among workers that are now aware of how much liberty this country contains when liberty is the "big idea"—I refer to wartime.

We crimsonites are also against giving Ireland absolute freedom. We prefer to think of Ireland as one part of a great English speaking soviet. However, the effect would be the same to the Irishmen—the English aristocracy would necessarily go to extinction and the component parts of the now British empire would naturally be free.

We are against blue laws and the like, and in favor of boxing and fighting. Practice makes perfect.

We are, however, against the W. G. N. and with the Ford element as regards the Jews. It takes suffering to bring on the realization that the Jews must soon unite with the Irish and other elements for the purpose of offering a united front. Persecution will do that better than anything else.

THEODORUS BOLSHEVEE.

A NORTH DAKOTA VIEW.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I read the editorial, "When Farmers Close the Banks," with surprise. Will you permit one who has just come from North Dakota to state the true situation?

North Dakota farmers are not on a strike. No power, agricultural or political, has given such a command. They are simply following the law of self-preservation and holding their wheat in the hope of securing at least the cost of production. North Dakota cannot raise wheat at present prices, nor can more productive states where larger yield is offset by higher land values. To sell now would mean heavy loss to all, and ruination to hundreds. It is true the banks are in hard lines, and always are with the farmers. With the matured paper on the one side that cannot be met now, and with the squeeze of the federal loan on the side that ought not to be pushed at a time like this, they will suffer. All interests rise and fall and suffer with the farm.

Perhaps the country will see the meaning now of what the agricultural interests are asking—"temporary farm credits."

Now, in regard to "hostile legislation," what do you mean? I defy any one to point to a single feature of legislation hostile to any interests of the state except the cigaret, gambling and houses of ill fame. You speak of "experiments in communism and radical doctrines." Is it hail insurance, given by the state at cost, 28 cents an acre, while private companies demand 70 cents for the same protection? Remember our own government is writing millions of life insurance at cost. Is it the building of a state mill and elevator whereby the farmer gets 16 cents a bushel more for wheat, and the consumer pays 65 cents a barrel less, and the state makes 50 cents a barrel above its overhead expenses? To serve its agricultural interests, New York is building two of the largest terminal elevators in the world. South Dakota has bought a mine and is preparing to save her [illegible] from the extortionate price of coal.

Or perhaps you mean the housing commission, whereby North Dakota is [illegible] ing the housing problem by building [illegible] selling homes at cost to her people [illegible] only state in the union that [illegible] to meet this great need.

MRS. HIRAM W. THOM[illegible]

TUT-TUTTING MR. LEACH.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 24.—[Editor of [illegible] Tribune.]—We folks of Racine read with astonishment this morning the "[illegible] Popping" of E. W. Leach of Racine, who endeavored to prove that THE TRIB[illegible] still is "great but not good." He makes this positive statement:

"Every brewer, saloonkeeper, brothel keeper, saloon and brothel habitué, purveyor to the vices of men, gambler, burglar, I. W. W., anarchist, [illegible] bum, and bolshevik takes aid and comfort from its [THE TRIBUNE'S] attitude [illegible] many years, and, with others here, I am at a loss to know when he interviewed "every brothelkeeper, burglar, saloonkeeper," etc., and obtained their views on civic affairs. We have always looked upon him as a church-going and [illegible] loving man who never spoke to [illegible] characters as those whom he [illegible] definitely. Is it possible that after the adjournment of the sessions of the [illegible] ciety to Make Virtue Odious he [illegible] forth in disguise, shielded by the [illegible] of night, and discusses these matters with the Other Half of our population? I cannot believe it of him.

IRVING WI[illegible]

ANOTHER PLEA FOR IMMIGRATION RESTRICTIONS.

Chicago, Nov. 30.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—We would like to have it explained to us why there is such an effort made toward increasing the population of our large cities, to have the streets congested most of the time like they are on Madison and State streets.

An intelligent observer will notice what class of people are pouring into the cities. They are a class that invariably flock to the cities. Very few go to the farming districts as producers. On West Madison street you will find principally foreigners who have little [illegible] they eke out a dirty, scanty existence. When they are successful they car[illegible] the idea that a white man or an Amer[illegible] can is out of place to locate among them. The rooming houses can scarcely supply the demand for rooms by foreigners that are pouring into this country. There certainly should be a great restriction put on immigration.

CITIZEN.

A "HANDSOME GUARANTEE" OF 5½ PER CENT.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A letter in this morning's issue by An Observer attacks the Adamson eight hour law, terming it class legislation and advocating its repeal. The writer seems to know little of what he writes, as the increased freight rates are the direct result of the enactment of the Cummins-Esch law and what could be better termed class legislation than such a law because of its handsome guarantee to stockholders. He would render a greater service in advocating the repeal of the Cummins-Esch law, because he, poor farmer, will help pay the bill.

Since the enactment of the Adamson law, railroad men in road service have worked more hours than ever before in the last ten years. If the men in yard service had demanded an eight hour day during the recent outlaw strike, the railroads would not have been permitted to operate as successfully as they did. The writer, Observer, might come to the city and secure one of these good eight hour jobs on a railroad, but I venture to say in six months he would be glad to return to the farm.

Chicago, Dec. 2.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—The janitors pay $20 a year dues into our union. We have 9,000 members, totaling $180,000, also many thousands in fines, also $50 initiation each. Where does it all go?

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers at a leading Chicago book store were:

FICTION.

"The Captives" [Doran], by Hugh Walpole.
"In Chancery" [Scribners], by John Galsworthy.
"Poor White" [Huebsch], by Sherwood Anderson.
"Johnny Kelly" [Houghton-Mifflin], by Wilbur S. Boyer.
"Main Street" [Harcourt, Brace & Howe], by Sinclair Lewis.
"Trumpeter's Swan" [Penn Publishing company], by Temple Bailey.

NONFICTION.

"Margot Asquith: An Autobiography," [Doran].
"The Sea and the Jungle" [Dutton], by H. M. Tomlinson.
"Cycle of Adams Letters" [Houghton-Mifflin].

Last week's six best circulators at the public library were:
"Mary Wollaston," by Henry Kitchell Webster.
"Steeplejack," by James Huneker.
"White Shadows in the South Seas," by Frederick O'Brien.
"Poor Wise Man," by Mary Roberts Rinehart.
"Outline of History," by H. G. Wells.
"Caliban," by W. L. George.

"POOR WHITE" is Sherwood Anderson's third novel and his second record of small town pseudo city life, and so surpassingly more powerful than anything else he has ever done that "Poor White" may well be the foundation of a prophecy that Sherwood Anderson will be, one day, the great American novelist. His "Winesburg, Ohio," which created such a sensation—a series of sharp sketches of small town life, often bitterly realistic—shocked a critical world into adulation by its sheer frankness.

It won for Mr. Anderson much acclaim abroad as much because it pictures American small towns as our foreign well wishers like to think American towns are as because it was a work of literary art. Its lack of restraint, its bludgeoning, its, at times, disgusting honesty were extremely healthy signs, and were, therefore, interpreted as realized beauty instead of as an attempt at beauty through honesty, which it really was.

But all that "Winesburg, Ohio," attempted, "Poor White" accomplishes. It is the powerful heroic figure of which Winesburg was only the model. Scaled to heroic size, the shocking frankness of the model becomes impressive, godlike honesty. "Poor White" is a literary Colossus, the Apollo of the new age in America, the age of machines, industry, man's dreams singing in a fly wheel instead of in a triolet. It guards the entrance to a new Rhodes—a Rhodes of flame painted skies, of ways clattering with chugging engines, of houses wherein dwell men and women sick for something they call power or wealth or comfort, and which in reality is poetry.

It is the story of a poor white tormented by lazy dreams, driving himself into deep problems of mechanics as an escape from his longing to lie in the sun and feel its glow. It is the story of his complete absorption in new dreams—of a machine to save his fellow men body wrecking toil— and his realization that "the gods have thrown the towns like stones over the flat country, but the stones have no color. They do not burn and change in the light."

It is not only the story of how one sleepy town in Ohio became an industrial center. It is not only the story of how a poor white boy became a millionaire. It is America—America during those years, perhaps a generation ago, when the foundations were laid for what is called our great industrial and mechanical preëminence.

"Hunger" is the only book of Knut Hamsun which American readers have had a chance to own—unless they were fortunate enough to get an English edition of "The Growth of the Soil," which was published in translation in England this year. And yet Knut Hamsun—a writer practically unknown to English reading peoples—is such an artist that even the English, who have complained bitterly as the Nobel award each year passed by Hardy, gracefully admit that so long as Thomas Hardy wasn't honored they think that Knut Hamsun deserves the laurel.

Knut Hamsun is a Norwegian—not, as has been said, a Swede. Since the death of Strindberg he has been regarded as the greatest native writer by his fellow countrymen. He is 60 years old. He was born in Norway, but he spent part of his youth on a farm in North Dakota, and at one time he was a conductor on a Halsted street horse car here in Chicago. After he was discharged for incompetence—he read books instead of collecting fares—he went east and worked on a Newfoundland banks fishing boat.

He returned to Norway in the early nineties, and in 1893 brought out his first volume, a collection of "Pan" poems. More than twenty years ago "Hunger" was translated into English, and before the war "Shallow Soil" was brought out in translation, but he attained real recognition only with the translation of "The Growth of the Soil." All of his novels will be translated now, of course. In the meantime one reads "Hunger" and shudders at its sheer gnawing pangs.

"Charlemagne," an anonymous Elizabethan drama credited to George Chapman, has just been brought out with editions, a critical introduction and notes in French by Frank L. Schoell of the University of Chicago. There is a war history to the book. The manuscript of the old play was unearthed by M. Schoell at the British museum, and he did all of the work of editing and annotating, and sent his manuscript to the University of Berlin. The University of Louvain press was burnt to ashes in August of 1914. M. Schoell had to rewrite the entire book. Through a colleague at Princeton the Princeton University Press came to know of the book and has finally brought it out. It's rather a fine case of international intellectual solidarity—of America helping a French scholar to contribute his share to the study of Elizabethan literature.

A note in a London newspaper says that Hugh Walpole has just bought himself a handsome house in Regent's Park, with blue ceilings—the house, as well as the park. Some American paper called him "apple cheeked Hugh," and the name has stuck. "Apple Cheek Hugh," according to the jaunty paragraph about him, declares that Americans demand in their fiction "moral uplift and romantic glow." Good heavens! He really understands us!

Col. Repington's diary, "The First World War," was an international publishing event. It was brought out simultaneously in London by Constable, in France by Payot, and in America by Houghton-Mifflin. It is the most intimate semi-official writing to come out of the war, in places frivolous as only charming, inconsequential chat about serious things can be and in places serious as only "inside" talk can be. Col. Repington was spoken of as an unofficial member of the British cabinet during the war, and he was probably the only man so close to the central dynamo who kept a diary.

Compton Mackenzie is said to have an extraordinary passion for islands. He owns about half of Capri, and his recent acquisition of Herm and Jethou in the Channel islands caused much press comment. He is now off to the south seas to look over the line there. He will probably return with a choice Marquesa to add to his collection. His "Vanity Girl" is still popular, and age cannot wither nor custom stale the infinite humorous variety of his "Poor Relations."

"Windchaff" is the first novel of Mercedes de Acosta, lately become Mrs. Abram Poole, and thus sister-in-law to Ernest Poole. Her "Moods" last year created much discussion, as much because she was beautiful and socially elect as because it was what she believed to be a new art form. "Windchaff" has just blown off the presses. More of it—perhaps—anon.

Rebecca West, whom H. G. Wells thanks for her aid in the "Outline of History," who is always called in England "our youngest and cleverest critic," has gone to Capri for six months with Mrs. Compton Mackenzie while Mr. Mackenzie goes island hunting. She has given up her work on the New Statesman and Time and Tide, and it is rumored that she will finish "The Judge," her novel, which despite long delay still is being awaited with palpitant eagerness by English critics and by the few Americans who had the unforgettable experience of reading "The Return of the Soldier," the only other novel she has ever written.

The letters of William James are promised for the end of this month. Judging from the few which have been available in a magazine, the volumes will be wholly charming and quite unlike the somewhat stodgy, theatrical letters of his brother, Henry James. He had a sense of humor which his brother lacked. He wrote one time that he couldn't afford to go abroad. "I have a chance to give $1,500 worth of summer lectures here which won't recur." Hitting the Chautauqua trail. When I was a young person in high school a teacher confided to me that William James wrote philosophy as if it were fiction and Henry James wrote fiction as if it were philosophy—a judgment which might well be passed on the letters of the two brothers.

"Flame and Shadow" is the latest collection of Sara Teasdale's lovely lyrics. There is no one writing poetry in America today who surpasses Sara Teasdale in that exquisite, clear quality of sheer lyric beauty. "Compensation," for instance:

I should be glad of loneliness
And hours that go on broken wings,
A thirsty body, a tired heart
And the unchanging ache of things,
If I could make a single song
As lovely and as full of light,
As hushed and brief as a falling star
On a winter night.

"The Beauty and the Bolshevist," by Alice Duer Miller, is an amusing little tale of a fiery young radical editor who wanted to play the deus ex machina and snatch his brother from the claws of a terrible (but beautiful) dragon whose father was one of the despised capitalistic class—the tale of how the most powerful though the least clothed of the dei stepped around in his machine and settled the formerly completely comfortable life and principles of the aforementioned fiery young radical editor. It's a cute little story, as the ladies in "This Side of Paradise" might say.

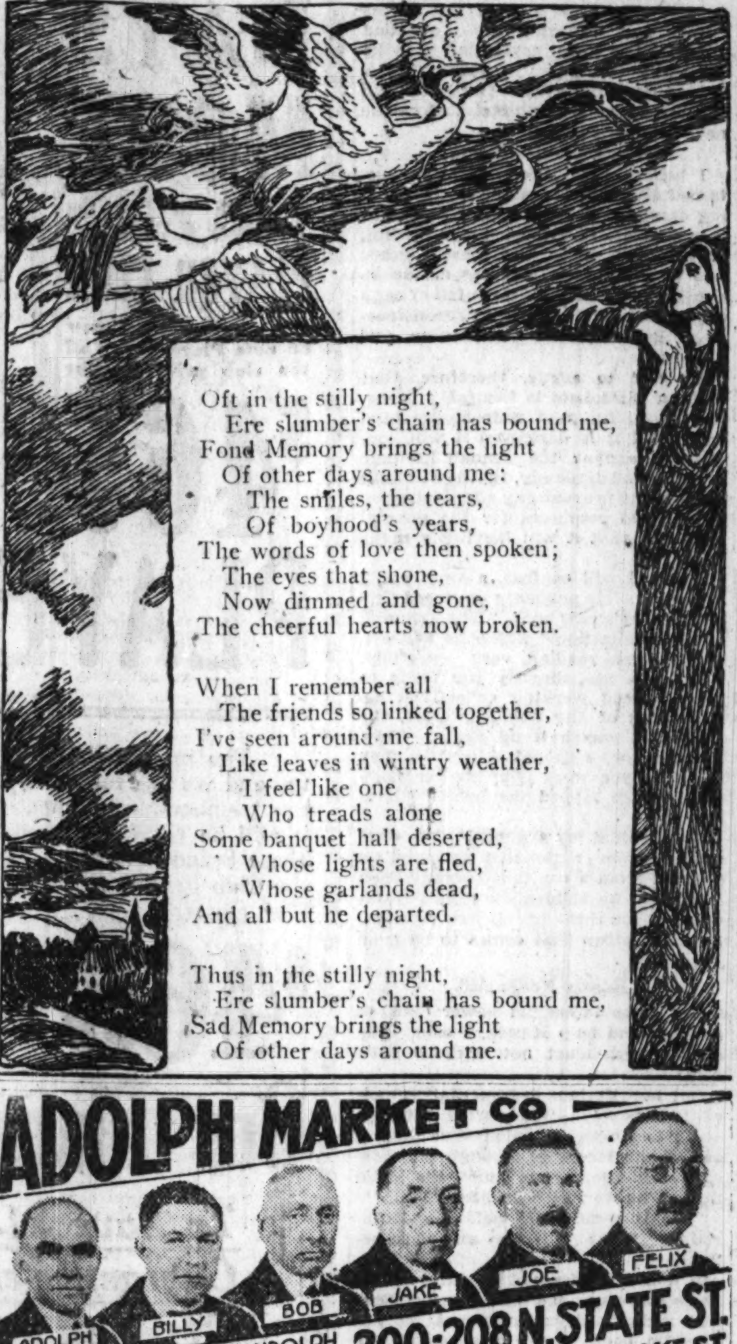
"The Purple Heights," the title of Marie Conway Oemler's new novel, is spiritual, not geographical. It is the story of the rise of the last of the Champneys from an odd jobsman to the book's title. Mrs. Oemler's "Slippy McGee" ought to make of "The Purple Heights" a best seller.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

OFT IN THE STILLY NIGHT.

By Thomas Moore.



Oft in the stilly night,
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Fond Memory brings the light
Of other days around me:
The smiles, the tears,
Of boyhood's years,
The words of love then spoken;
The eyes that shone,
Now dimmed and gone,
The cheerful hearts now broken.

When I remember all
The friends so linked together,
I've seen around me fall,
Like leaves in wintry weather,
I feel like one
Who treads alone
Some banquet hall deserted,
Whose lights are fled,
Whose garlands dead,
And all but he departed.

Thus in the stilly night,
Ere slumber's chain has bound me,
Sad Memory brings the light
Of other days around me.

LENIN PAINTS BRIGHT FUTURE FOR SOVIETISM

Soul of Russia to Be Made Over.

BY H. G. WELLS.
ARTICLE 7.

[Copyright: 1920: The New York Times Co.]
[Copyright in Canada.]

My chief purpose in going from Petersburg to Moscow was to see and talk to Lenin. I was very curious to see him, and I was disposed to be hostile to him. I encountered a personality entirely different from anything I had expected to meet.

Lenin is not a writer; his published work does not express him. The shrill little pamphlets and papers issued from Moscow in his name, full of misconceptions of the labor psychology of the west and obstinately defensive of the impossible proposition that it is the prophesied Marxist social revolution which has happened in Russia, display hardly anything of the real Lenin mentality as I encountered it.

Backbone of Russia.

Occasionally there are gleams of an inspired shrewdness, but for the rest these publications do no more than rehearse the set ideas and phrases of doctrinaire Marxism. Perhaps that is necessary. That may be the only language Communism understands; a break into a new dialect would be disturbing and demoralizing.

The arrangements leading up to my meeting with Lenin were tedious and irritating, but at last I found myself under way for the Kremlin in the company of Mr. Rothstein, formerly a figure in London Communist circles, and an American comrade with a large camera, who was also, I gathered, an official of the Russian foreign office.

Lenin Well Guarded.

The Kremlin, as I remembered it in 1914, was a very open place, open much as Windsor castle is, with a thin trickle of pilgrims and tourists in groups and couples flowing through it. But now it is closed up and difficult of access. There was a great pother with passes and permits before we could get through even the outer gates. And we were filtered and inspected through five or six rooms of clerks and sentinels before we got into the Presence.

This may be necessary for the personal security of Lenin, but it puts him out of reach of Russia, and, what is perhaps more serious, if there is to be an effectual dictatorship, it puts Russia out of his reach. If things must filter up to him, they must also filter down, and they may undergo very considerable changes in the process.

Meets Lenin at Work.

We got to Lenin at last, and found him a little figure at a great desk in a well lit room that looked out upon palatial spaces. I thought his desk was rather in a litter. I sat down in a chair at a corner of the desk, and the little man—his feet scarcely touch the ground as he sits on the elge of his chair—twisted around to talk to me, ptting his arms around and over a pile of papers.

He spoke excellent English, but it was, I thought, rather characteristic of the present condition of Russian affairs that Mr. Rothstein chaperoned the conversation, occasionally offering footnotes and other assistance.

Lenin has a pleasant, quick changing, brownish face, with a lively smile and a habit (due, perhaps, to some defect in focusing) of screwing up one eye as he pauses in his talk; he is not very like the photographs you see of him, because he is one of those people whose change of expression is more important than their features; he gesticulated a little with his hands over the heaped papers as he talked, and he talked quickly, very keen on his subject, without any posing or pretenses or reservations, as a good type of scientific man will talk.

Motilfs of Interview.

Our talk was threaded throughout and held together by two—what shall I call them?—motifs. One was from me to him: "What do you think you are making in Russia? What is the state you are trying to create?" The other was from him to me: "Why does not the social revolution begin in England? Why do you not work for the social revolution? Why are you not destroying capitalism and establishing the communist state?" These motifs interwove, reacted on each other, illuminated each other. The second thought brought back the first: "But what are you making of the social revolution? Are you making a success of it?" And from that we got back to two again with: "To make it a success the western world must join in. Why doesn't it?"

In the days before 1918 all the Marxist world thought of the social revolution as an end. The workers of the world were to unite, overthrow capitalism, and be happy ever afterward. But in 1918 the Communists, to their own surprise, found themselves in control of Russia and challenged to produce their millennium.

Excuse for Delay.

They have a colorable excuse for a delay in the production of a new and better social order in the continuation of war conditions, in the blockade, and so forth; nevertheless, it is clear that they begin to realize the tremendous unpreparedness which the Marxist methods of thought involve.

At a hundred points—I have already put a finger upon one or two of them—they do not know what to do. But the commonplace Communist simply loses his temper if you venture to doubt whether everything is being done in precisely the best and most intelligent way under the new régime. He is like a "[illegible]" housewife who wants you to recognize that everything is in perfect order in the middle of an eviction. He is like one of those now forgotten suffragists who used to promise us an earthly paradise as soon as we escaped from the tyranny of "man made laws."

His View of Communism.

Lenin, on the other hand, whose frankness must at times leave his disciples breathless, has recently stripped off the last pretense that the Russian revolution is anything more than the inauguration of an age of limitless experiment. "Those who are engaged in the formidable task of overcoming capitalism," he has recently written, "must be prepared to try method after method until they find the one which answers their purpose best."

We opened our talk with a discussion of the future of the great towns under communism. I wanted to see how far Lenin contemplated the dying out of the towns in Russia. The desolation of Petersburg had brought home to me a point I had never realized before—that the whole form and arrangement of a town is determined by shopping and marketing and that the abolition of these things renders nine-tenths of the buildings in an ordinary town directly or indirectly unmeaning and useless. "The towns will get very much smaller," he admitted. "They will be different—yes, quite different." That, I suggested, implied a tremendous task.

Scrapping of Towns.

It meant the scrapping of the existing towns and their replacement. The churches and great buildings of Petersburg would become presently like those of Novgorod the Great or like the temples of Paestum. Most of the town would dissolve away. He agreed quite cheerfully. I think it warmed his heart to find some one who understood a necessary consequence of collectivism that many even of his own people fail to grasp. Russia has to be rebuilt, fundamentally has to become a new thing.

And industry has to be reconstructed—as fundamentally?

Did I realize what was already in hand with Russia? The electrification of Russia?

Project Shows Courage.

For Lenin, who, like a good orthodox Marxist, denounces all "Utopians," has succumbed at last to a Utopia, the Utopia of the electricians. He is throwing all his weight into a scheme for the development of great power stations in Russia to serve whole provinces with light, with transport and industrial power. Two experimental districts, he said, had already been electrified.

Can one imagine a more courageous project in a vast flat land of forests and illiterate peasants, with no water power, with no technical skill available, and with trade and industry at their last gasp? Projects for such an electrification are in process of development in Holland, and they have been discussed in England, and in those densely populated and industrially highly developed centers one can imagine them as successful, economical, and altogether beneficial. But their application to Russia is an altogether greater strain upon the constructive imagination.

I cannot see anything of the sort happening in this dark crystal of Russia, but this little man at the Kremlin can; he sees the decaying railways replaced by a new electric transport, sees new roadways spreading throughout the land, sees a new and happier communist industrialism airsing again. While I talked to him he almost persuaded me to share his vision.

"And you will go on to these things with the peasants rooted in your soil?"

But not only are the towns to be rebuilt but every agricultural landmark is to go.

Hopeful of Agriculture.

"Even now," said Lenin, "all the agricultural production of Russia is not peasant production. We have, in places, large scale agriculture. The government is already running big estates with workers instead of peasants, where conditions are favorable. That can spread. It can be extended first to one province, then to another The peasants in the other provinces, selfish and illiterate, will not know what is happening until their turn comes."

It may be difficult to defeat the Russian peasant en masse, but in detail there is no difficulty at all." At the mention of the peasant Lenin's head came nearer to mine, his manner became confidential. As if, after all, the peasant might overhear.

It is not only the material organization of society you have to build, I argued; it is the mentality of a whole people. The Russian people are by habit and tradition traders and individualists; their very souls must be remolded if this new world is to be achieved. Lenin asked me what I had seen of the educational work afoot. I praised some of the things I had seen. He nodded and smiled with pleasure. He has an unlimited confidence in his work.

"But these are only sketches and beginnings," I said.

"Come back and see what we have done in Russia in ten years' time," he answered.

Amazing Little Man.

In him I realized that communism could after all, in spite of Marx, be enormously creative. After the tiresome class-war fanatics I had been encountering among the Communists, men of formula as sterile as flints, after numerous experiences of the trained and empty conceit of the common Marxist devotée, this amazing little man, with his frank admission of the immensity and complication of the project of communism and his simple concentration upon its realization, was very refreshing. He at least has a vision of a world changed over and planned and built afresh.

He wanted more of my Russian impressions. I told him that I thought that in many directions, and more particularly in the Petersburg commune, communism was pressing too hard and too fast, and destroying before it was ready to rebuild. They had broken down trading before they were ready to ration; the coöperative organization had been broken up instead of being utilized, and so on.

That brought us to our essential difference—the difference of the Collectivist and Marxist—the question whether the social revolution is in its extremity necessary; whether it is necessary to overthrow one social and economic system completely before the new one can begin.

Would Civilize Capital.

I believe that through a vast sustained educational campaign the existing capitalist system could be civilized into a collectivist world system; Lenin, on the other hand, tied himself years ago to the Marxist dogmas of the inevitable class war, the downfall of capitalist order as a prelude to reconstruction, the proletariat dictatorship, and so forth.

He had to argue, therefore, that modern capitalism is incurably predatory, wasteful, and unteachable, and that until it is destroyed it will continue to exploit the human heritage stupidly and aimlessly, that it will fight against and prevent any administration of national resources for the general good and that it will inevitably make wars.

I had, I will confess, a very uphill argument. He suddenly produced Chiozza Money's new book, "The Triumph of Nationalization," which he had evidently been reading very carefully. "But, you see, directly you begin to have a good working collectivist organization of any public interest, the capitalists smash it up again. They smashed you national shipyards; they won't let you work your coal economically." He tapped the book. "It is all here."

And against my argument that wars sprang from nationalist imperialism and not from a capitalist organization of society he suddenly brought: "But what do you think of this new republican imperialism that comes to us from America?"

Russia Needs Aid.

But some industrial power had to come in and help Russia, I said. She cannot reconstruct now without such help.

Our multifarious argumentation ended indecisively. We parted warmly, and I and my companion were filtered out of the Kremlin, through one barrier after another, in much the same fashion as we had been filtered in.

"He is wonderful," said Mr. Rothstein. "But it was an indiscretion——"

I was not disposed to talk as we made our way under the glowing trees that grow in the ancient moat of the Kremlin back to our guest house. I wanted to think Lenin over while I had him fresh in my mind, and I did not want to be assisted by the expositions of my companion. But Mr. Rothstein kept on talking.

This article will be concluded in The Daily Tribune tomorrow.

DRY RAIDERS GET AID FROM OLD MAN COINCIDENCE

Beer Arrives on Truck Just in Time.

A new and powerful ally joined the prohibition forces yesterday. His name was "Old Man Coincidence," and like providence, he moved in mysterious ways his purpose to perform.

A merry crowd had gathered at John Biggio's saloon at Chicago and Western avenues. It was wet without but who cared, it was still wet within. The same feeling was shared by the patrons in Sabbetello's saloon across the street. Patrons crowded around the saloon bars two deep.

Wettest Spot in City.

Eight strangers stalked into Biggio's place as one convivial soul staggered to the bar.

"This is the wettest spot in Chicago," said he.

"I'll say it is," said one of the strangers jumping over the bar. It was Joe Callahan, leader of a squad of dry agents. A truck load of whisky, wine and beer was confiscated in the saloon.

Eight other agents under "Big Potter" searched the Sabbetello saloon, finding a case of whisky and a large quantity of beer.

The raids over, the agents were waiting outside the saloon for a government truck, when suddenly a big truck rumbled down the street. In it two happy citizens told the world in song how they felt.

Tries to Charter Truck.

"Hey! Wait a minute!" called out Callahan when the truck came up alongside. "We want to use your machine. It's government business."

The men were strangely silent for a moment.

A dry agent climbed into the truck. In the bottom reposed four cases of beer—real alcoholic beer. The Ruehl Brewing company was marked on the cases.

The two men gave their names as James Stewart of 2620 West Fifteenth street and Joseph Wirsching, 244 North Talman avenue, when they were taken to the Central station. They will be questioned by the federal authorities tomorrow. An investigation will also be made to determine who is responsible for the manufacture of the beer.

WATSON FAVORS EXTENDING WAR DEBT 60 YEARS

Indiana Senator Would Help Business.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Extension of the time for the payment of the war debt over a period of sixty years was advocated today by Senator Watson of Indiana. He urged that to lighten the tax burden. Repeal of the excess profits tax and reduction of the surtaxes on large incomes also were urged by him.

Senator Watson discussed the tax situation following his return from a conference at Philadelphia with Senator Penrose. The Pennsylvania senator is chairman of the finance committee. It was Senator Watson's opinion that hearings on either tax or tariff legislation should start soon after the holidays to get it well under way by the time a special session is called under the new administration.

Longworth for Repeal.

Representative Longworth favored repeal of the excess profits tax and the substitution of a tax on undistributed profits of corporations. He said he did not believe congress would approve a sales tax.

Senator Watson's declaration for the extension of the time for payment was significant as showing a decided drift of opinion among the Republican leaders. It has been the program of the treasury department to pay up the war debt within twenty-five years.

Representative Longworth in advocating a tax on undistributed profits of corporations goes counter to the views expressed by Representative Ira Copley of Illinois, another Republican member of the committee. Mr. Copley wants the repeal of the excess profits taxes, but does not believe any other tax than the 10 per cent normal tax should be levied against corporation profits.

Wants Different Tax.

"We must repeal the excess profits tax, but in so doing we must find a substitute," Representative Longworth said. "There are so many objectionable features of a sales tax that I do not believe congress will approve it. In the first place, it is difficult to draft a bill which will deal with the situation adequately. Just what transactions should be covered by the sales tax is a difficult problem.

"If we were to adopt a tax on retail sales only a 1 per cent tax would not produce more than $300,000,000 at the most. In order to take the place of the revenue anticipated from the excess profits tax in the next fiscal year a 3 per cent tax would have to be imposed. It is futile to think congress would ever approve a 3 per cent tax on retail sales."

MORTENSON BARS BALLET DANCING IN CITY SCHOOLS

Ballet dancing in public schools entertainments is taboo. The lid on performances including this form of the terpsichorean art was clamped down tight yesterday by Supt. Mortenson in an address at the regular weekly meeting of principals and head assistants in Fullerton hall, Art institute.

Mr. Mortenson said that ballet dancing has become a fad in public school entertaniments and that solo toe dances by girls attired in tights and organdy skirts not reaching the knees seem to have taken a greater hold in the schools than sketches symbolic of the arts which the pupils are studying.

"This thing should be checked before it encroaches upon more important school activities," said Mr. Mortenson. "I am not against these dances, but I think there is a place for them, and that place is not in the entertainments of school children."

UNCLE SAM IS READY TO BUY 300 AIRPLANES

Will Spend $6,000,000 on New Models.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The war department is preparing to call for bids within a few days for 300 new airplanes on designs worked out by the army aviation section, which include all latest improvements demonstrated to be valuable by recent tests.

Approximately $6,000,000, it is estimated, will be spent on the planes, this being the minimum provided in the present army appropriation bill for this purpose.

The total appropriation for the air service—exclusive of pay and maintenance of men, which is carried in other sections of the army bill—was $83,000,000, of which it was provided that not less than $5,250,000 should be spent for experimental and research work and not less than $6,000,000 for new machines and equipment.

The air service last year asked for $80,000,000 and will ask the session of congress which opens on Monday for $60,000,000. Senators on the military affairs committee and members of the house military committee today said that nothing like this much money could be allowed in view of the great pressing need for cutting governmental expenses.

LOSS OF BONDS GROWS.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—Local American Railway Express company officials today announced that the amount of Liberty bonds that disappeared Oct. 11 last probably would reach $80,000 instead of $36,400, as announced yesterday.

JAPS OPPOSE LAND LAW OF GOLDEN STATE

'Gentleman's Agreement' Satisfies Tokio.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A cablegram received in official quarters here from Tokio today says at a meeting on Dec. 1 of twelve or more Japanese associations, a resolution was passed condemning the California land law and efforts to conclude a treaty which would abrogate the so-called gentleman's agreement.

"First, the California land law is an infringement on the universal principle of humanity and righteousness," the resolution reads, "it will wreck absolutely the spirit of friendship between Japan and the United States.

"Second, we disapprove absolutely of the conclusion of any treaty which will abrogate the working of the gentleman's agreement."

Many Organizations Attend.

Among the organizations represented were the Japan Peace association, the Japanese Emigration association, the Japan-American Relations commission, the Association of the League of Nations, and others. The object of the meeting was to consider the present relations between the United States and Japan.

Among the notable persons attending were Dr. Juichi Soyeda, representing the Japan Associated Chambers of Commerce and who was a delegate to the United States in 1912 to investigate into the causes of anti-Japanese agitation in this country; Baron Yoshiro Sakatani, former cabinet minister; Viscount E. Shibusawa, president of the Japan Peace association; and a large number of other prominent leaders, many of whom are political opponents of the Hara ministry.

Massmeeting to Be Held.

A committee was appointed which will call a massmeeting of all members of the societies and associations represented, to be held in the near future, at which Japanese-American relations will be further considered.

The policy of the Hara government towards the United States was assailed by delegates hostile to the Seiyukai, [illegible] at times is reported to have assumed a decidedly partisan aspect, resulting in a refusal on the part of some of the associations to participate in the massmeeting.

STEAMFITTER IS SHOT; SUSPECT LABOR FEUDIST

Arthur O'Connor, 3334 South Wallace street, a steamfitter, was probably fatally shot last night while leaving the Illinois restaurant, 2144 South Halsted street. The shooting is ascribed to a labor feud. His assailant escaped.

O'Connor, wounded five times, was taken to the county hospital. He was unconscious and could not be questioned by the police.

He had eaten in the restaurant, and as he opened the door to step out his assailant, on the outside, fired five shots through the door and fled.

ALLIES DISCUSS RUSSIAN TRADE IN DOWNING ST.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The conference of the Big Three at 10 Downing street ended this morning and Premier Leygues of France and Count Sforsa, the Italian minister, will start homeward tomorrow. The following statement was issued tonight:

"Conversations between the British, French, and Italian delegates were resumed at 10:30 this morning. Several questions left over from the previous meeting were discussed.

"These included the question of trade relations with Russia, the forthcoming conference of experts at Brussels on the subject of reparations, and financial steps to be taken in the event of the return of Constantine to the throne of Greece."

May Boycott Greece.

It is reported that the three powers agreed to impose a rigid boycott upon Greece in case of Constantine's return, which would mean the economic extinction of Greece. They also have agreed not to help her uphold her claims in new Greek territory if disputed by the Turks.

It has been learned, however, that if the Greek throne should be ascended by Crown Prince George, who is about to marry the Roumanian princess, thus allying himself through the queen of Roumania with the British royal family, the powers will continue to help Greece.

Hand of Roumania Seen.

Roumanian intercessions are said to have had much to do in impressing this view upon the allies. All depends, however, on the result of the Greek plebiscite and on the attitude Constantine adopts regarding the stand of the allies.

Regarding trade with Russia, England and Italy have been in agreement for some time, both desiring the speediest possible resumption. Premier Leygues is said to have been favorably impressed by the two powers' viewpoint, but was unable to commit France to a change of policy without further consultation with his colleagues in Paris. It has been reported for some time that M. Leygues personally favors resumption of trade between Russia and France.

How the Franklin Meets Conditions of Today

New Schedule of Franklin Prices

Type	New Price	Old Price	Reduction
Runabout	$2400	$3050	$650
4-Pass. Roadster	2500	3100	600
Touring	2600	3100	500
Sedan	3600	4350	750
Brougham	3500	4300	800
Runabout (Convertible)	2750	3300	550

Effective September 23, 1920. Prices F. O. B. Syracuse

While Franklin prices are in full accord with the spirit of the times—the big thing is that the saving involved does not stop when you pay the price; it goes right on throughout a long period of performance.

In the ownership of a Franklin Car, you get economy which for eighteen years has been a national standard:

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% slower yearly depreciation

There is the freedom from tire troubles and their entailed expense. Light weight and flexibility make possible the Franklin average of only three punctures in the life of tires, with practically no blowouts.

Cooling troubles and the inevitable bills are likewise off Franklin owners' lists. Direct air cooling does away with leaky radiators, anti-freeze mixtures, and the draining and refilling nuisance. No concern over hard starting in winter, or overheating in summer.

Counted in this value as an investment are Franklin comfort, safety, ease of handling, minimum of routine care—each one of them an element in extending the usefulness of the car.

Finally you have the measure of reliability and durability in terms of used-car values. The 50% slower yearly depreciation of the Franklin is only another way of indicating fewer repairs and longer car life.

This present careful scrutiny of value throws light on two most important factors—price and performance. In both respects, the Franklin position is to its advantage.

SAYS CHILE AIMS AT EVEN CLOSER TIES WITH U. S.

Diplomat Describes His "Model" League.

BY FLOYD GIBBONS.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Replying to THE TRIBUNE editorial headed "Chile and Japan," which appeared in the Paris edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE last Tuesday, Alejandro Alvarez, noted Chilean, secretary general of the American Institute of International Law, and a member of the permanent arbitration board at The Hague, says:

"England has turned over to Chile only one of the two dreadnaughts which the latter ordered from England before the war. This naval increase is practically insignificant when the enormous coast line, which Chile guards, is taken into consideration.

Seeks U. S. Friendship.

"Relations between Chile and the United States have always been marked by great cordiality, and this should exempt my country from unjustified suspicions and reproaches. Chile, less than any other country in Latin America, fears the United States as a future aggressor, for it has striven more than any other country to tighten the bonds of friendship among the American countries, as well as between them and the United States.

"This Pan-American policy is the natural consequence of historic and geograhpical conditions in the new world. It has been developed steadily, especially during the last half of the nineteenth century, with the aim of maintaining peace and prosperity in the American continents and keeping them free from the antagonisms, the rivalries, and the suspicions which have dominated the European nations.

No Asiatic Alliances.

"There is no interest for Chile to seek alliances with nations on other continents, and especially the Asiatic continent, with which, as yet, we have only feeble commercial ties.

"Our commercial policy certainly is not opposed to our tightening the bonds of friendship and commerce between the countries of the new world and the countries of Europe. The attitude of the Latin-American nations, and especially Chile, at the meeting of the league assembly at Geneva fully justifies this statement.

"Everybody recognizes the fact that the league of nations will be established and fully on its feet before the United States joins."

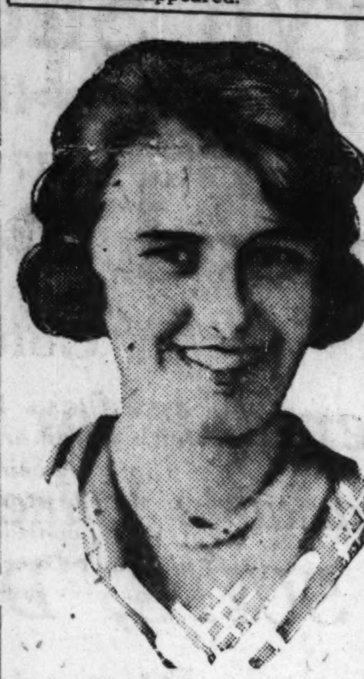
Police Officer Offers $200 Reward for News of Daughter Who Disappeared.



HELEN FLEMING.

Lieut. James Fleming of Maxwell street station yesterday offered a reward of $200 for information concerning the whereabouts of his daughter, Miss Helen M. Fleming, who disappeared on Nov. 14 while on her way to church. The lieutenant and his son have spent days scouring the city for her without success.

Miss Fleming is 17 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 122 pounds, and is of slender build. She has a dark complexion, brown hair, and gray eyes.

When she left her parents' home at 4020 Jackson boulevard she wore a green dress, black stockings, high tan shoes, a long black plush coat with a gray fur collar, and a blue velvet hat trimmed with wooden beads.

CAPITAL TAKEN; ARMENIA NOW A SOVIET REPUBLIC

"Wilson Is Not Needed," Moscow Tells World.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Russian soviet troops captured Erivan, the Armenian capital, on Thursday, and Armenia has declared itself a soviet republic, it is asserted in a wireless dispatch received from Moscow today.

The troops of the old Armenian government have placed themselves at the disposal of the soviet administration, the dispatch declares.

"Azerbaijan," the message adds, "has voluntarily renounced the disputed provinces of Zangemar, Nakhiohevan, Anne-Nagorny, and Karabagh, which have been handed over to soviet Armenia.

"In one blow," said the wireless, "the age long enmity between Armenians and Mussulmans is finished by the establishment of solidarity between the workers of Turkey and Azerbaijan. Neither Great Britain's assurance nor President Wilson's promises, nor the league of nations, could save Armenia from massacre and annihilation. Soviet rule has brought peace in Armenia."

Assume Control of Seaport.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—[By the Associated Press.]—Control of Ineboli, a seaport on the Asia Minor coast of the Black seat, has been assumed by the Russian bolsheviki, according to a report reaching this city. Col. Cullenoff, who has been identified with the Russian soviet government, is said to have appeared when a steamer reached Ineboli and to have prevented the landing of passengers. It is asserted he declared that he had orders from the soviet not to permit assistance to reach the Turks except from the bolsheviki.

ARMENIA APPEAL BY WILSON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—President Wilson, who a few days ago offered personal mediation to end the outrages in Armenia, issued an appeal to the American people today to aid the suffering refugees of Armenia, Assyria, and other stricken lands of the near east.

"We dare not let them perish now," said the president after describing how 110,000 orphans in the near east are now absolutely dependent on the near east relief.

"None of the allies in the great war," says the president's appeal, "suffered more severely in proportion to their numbers than did the Armenians, Assyrians, and other peoples of the near east who fought so bravely with us and for us.

Caught by New Disaster.

"During the last few years these people have suffered untold hardships and losses, and now at the beginning of the winter, when it was hoped these burdens would be lightened, another great disaster has overtaken them. Through the activities of their enemies on all sides—Turkish nationalists, Kurds, and bolshevists—the Armenian republic has been overrun and thousands of people who had begun to rehabilitate themselves have been driven from their homes. Recent cables state that the roads to Batum are jammed with refugees, women and children shoeless and without food. Large numbers of refugees are also appearing at Tiflis, Aleppo, and other centers in the near east. At least a million people will be in immediate danger of starvation unless aid is again sent to them.

"Relief work in this section of the world is entirely under the direction of Near East Relief, incorporated by congress. Since this organization was formed it has raised and disbursed with great economy and efficiency more than $11,000,000 in cash. It has commissioned more than a thousand workers of whom more than 500 are now in the near east, administering 229 orphanages, 63 hospitals, 11 rescue homes, and numerous industrial enterprises in addition to an enormous relief work. A nation has been saved and at least a million persons are alive today who would have perished but for the generosity of Americans.

"The 110,000 orphans who are now being cared for by Near East Relief and wholly dependent upon it for all the necessities of life, will furnish the future leadership of the near east. We dare not let them perish now."

Scholle's Good Furniture for Christmas

Some new designs in hand carved furniture for Christmas suggestions, finished in Antique Italian Polychrome.

Living Room Table	Special Price, $85.00
Console Table	Special Price, 75.00
Cabinet with shelves	Special Price, 80.00

WHAT are you going to give this Christmas?

You are especially anxious that the things you give will be entirely satisfactory to those who receive them, and we believe that on this point we can be of help to you.

Furniture isn't always suitable as a gift, but in most cases it is. In a store like ours it is possible for nearly every man, woman and child to find an article that fills a need or a want; but it's sometimes difficult for the buyer of a gift to be sure of the need or want of the one who is to receive it.

The business of this store is built on giving complete and unquestioned satisfaction; this has been our theory, our practice, and our pleasure, and is also a sure way to get and hold customers.

Allow us to suggest. Buy what you think would be an acceptable gift; attach to it a note saying—"This came from Scholle's; if you prefer something else, if it isn't just the thing you like, they ask to be allowed to exchange it for you to your entire satisfaction."

This may help to make your Christmas shopping less of a perplexing question.

RUGS

Rugs make a suitable gift and they offer you a wide range of choice in sizes, colors and prices. We handle only the best in fine oriental and domestic rugs and sell them just as we do furniture, with the Scholle guarantee of satisfaction.

Many of our friends may not realize how great a variety of beautiful, and useful, and inexpensive things suitable for Christmas gifts are to be found in a store like this. We offer some suggestions here with prices from lowest to as high as you choose to pay.

GOOD FELLOWS, YOU MUST HURRY TO MAKE GOOD

More Appeals than Offers So Far.

"Stir up, we beseech Thee, O God, the wills of Thy faithful people; that they, plenteously bringing forth the fruit of good works, may by Thee be plenteously rewarded."

This is our prayer for you this Sunday morning, Good Fellows of the city of Chicago and vicinity. That your hearts may be stirred up by the realization that there is much for you to do this glorious Christmas in the year of our Lord 1920, to bring holiday cheer into the lonely lives of God's less fortunate children of our great city, and to carry Christmas remembrance to the sick and suffering men who are spending their third Christmas in hospital since taking part in the great war to make the world safe for you and your children to live in.

Must Speed Work.

The first week of the Good Fellow campaign has passed and less than three weeks remain before Christmas eve. We must speed up our work, Good Fellows, for the appeals are coming in faster than the applications for families to be provided for.

You do not have to live in Chicago to be a Good Fellow. Requests have come from Good Fellows living in Oak Park, Elmhurst, Hinsdale, and other western suburbs. What's the matter with you Good Fellows out on the north shore? Come on, Evanston, Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Highland Park, Lake Forest, Lake Bluff, Libertyville, and the rest of you.

A traveling man has written in to suggest that a fund be started for the wounded men in the service hospitals of Chicago. Come ahead with your contributions. That fund is already started and is growing daily. Specify whether you wish your cash contributions to be spent for the service men or for the children, otherwise we will have to guess at your intention and divide your offering between the two.

Service Men's Hospitals.

We promised to publish the list of hospitals in Chicago where there are any large number of service men, and so here is the list:

U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE HOSPITAL NO. 30, 4659 Drexel boulevard—More than 600 wounded, maimed, or diseases ex-service men are patients in this hospital at this time.

U. S. PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE HOSPITAL NO. 5, 4141 Clarendon avenue—More than 100 ex-service men suffering from wounds or disease are patients in the former "Marine hospital."

LOVELL GENERAL HOSPITAL, U. S. ARMY, FORT SHERIDAN—Houses more than 100 patients, men in the regular army, who are hospital cases.

NAVY HOSPITAL, U. S. NAVAL TRAINING STATION, GREAT LAKES—Has about seventy-five patients, bluejackets and marines.

COOK COUNTY INFIRMARY, OAK FOREST—Under contract with the United States public health service in caring for seventy-five tubercular ex-service men.

One Thousand to Care For.

That makes about 1,000 ex-service men and regulars of the United States army, navy, and marines, who are looking forward to their Christmas in the five hospitals mentioned in or near Chicago. When you realize, or did you know, that there are today more than 26,000 men, "the boys who went overseas," lying in bed suffering from wounds or diseases contracted in the great war, and now under the care of the United States public health service in fifty hospitals all over the country, you will want to bring something of the Christmas cheer and good things of your home into the lives of these living heroes of the war in hospitals near your home, in order that they may know you have not forgotten.

GOOD FELLOWS!

Here's a Form to Fill Out. It Will Aid You in Stating Your Plans for Helping Poor Kids.

If you will be a Good Fellow on Christmas day to some family of poor children in Chicago please fill out the attached blank and send it to "The Tribune," Good Fellow Department.

I will be Santa Claus to .... children.

Wilson Succeeds Earl as Willys-Overland Head

Toledo, O., Dec. 4.—Announcement was made here today that Clarence A. Earl had resigned as vice president of the Willys-Overland company and that Charles B. Wilson of Pontiac, Mich., had been appointed his successor. Wilson is general manager of the Wilson Foundry and Macine company of Pontiac.

BOISE PREFERS HORSE TO HERO, VETERANS SAY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Denunciation of agitation in various localities against the location of hospitals for ex-service men, particularly tuberculosis sanitariums, was made here tonight by the American Legion's national legislative committee. The legion from "the national committee commander on down to the lowliest buck private in the ranks is going to bat" against "mercenary meddlers whose patriotism died when the bands quit playing," the statement said.

"In Boise, Idaho, is a hospital of at least 200 beds which the public health service has leased," it continued. "Powerful local influence in Boise object to the treatment of tuberculosis there, and prefer a remount station instead. Things have come to a pretty pass when horses are to be taken care of in preference to disabled American soldiers.

"Petty politicians in Johnson City, Tenn., raised heaven and earth to prevent the government opening the national soldiers home for ex-service men suffering with tuberculosis. Up in Minneapolis, Minn., mercenary meddlers whose patriotism died when the bands quit playing have raised $100,000 to keep the United States public service from getting Asbury hospital for ex-service men. Officials of the health service have admitted to us that one of the things they have been up against the hardest in getting hospitals has been the political pressure brought to bear against them in local communities."

The committee said that it had been advised that 450 "tubercular ex-service men in Tucson, Ariz., were destitute and without shelter."

GIRL ROUTS ROBBERS, IS ALMOST ROUTED BY CONGRATULATIONS

BLANCHE GODFREY

Miss Blanche Godfrey, the sister of Joseph Godfrey, who operates a delicatessen at 4140 Drexel boulevard, was not much distressed Friday when three bandits came to rob the place. She swatted one on the chin, knocking him cold, and chased the others away with a revolver.

But she was somewhat distressed yesterday when the residents of the Jordan apartments, in which building the store is located, began dropping in to congratulate her, gauge her sturdy right arm, and look in awe at the revolver she used to chase out the bandits. Scores of others made the pilgrimage.

NEW TRAIN RATES GO INTO EFFECT MONDAY NIGHT, 12

The new 3.6 cents a mile passenger rate in Illinois ordered by the Interstate Commerce commision becomes effective on all railroads at midnight Monday. A surtax of 50 per cent on Pullman berths becomes effective at the same time.

No rebate certificates will be issued. Attorney General Edward J. Brundage is preparing to bring suit in the United States district court next week attacking the validity of the order.

NORTH AMERICAN SALAD DRESSING RECIPE No. 2

(Watch for No. 3 Next Sunday)

French Dressing

¼ teaspoonful of salt, a dash of white pepper and paprika; add 6 tablespoonfuls of olive oil and stir until thoroughly mixed and somewhat thickened. Add 2 tablespoons of vinegar. Mix thoroughly. French dressing quickly separates, so make only the amount you wish to use. If desired, add a few drops of onion juice or rub the mixing bowl with a slice of onion or garlic.

Our Common Sense Plan Keeps Quality and Portions Up And Prices Down

When the cost of food stuffs and help started to soar every restaurant and hotel owner faced a serious situation. It was obviously impossible to stay in business unless some solution was found.

Most restaurants raised prices—others cheapened quality and cut the size of portions. Some did all of those things.

The North American Restaurant, always a high class restaurant, refused to cut quality or portions one bit. And we didn't want to raise prices. So we did the only common sense thing. We eliminated the costly and useless plan of serving food and asked our customers to wait on themselves.

The result is that the North American today provides you with food which can't be beaten anywhere, and at prices that are lower than they ever were.

Why not find out for yourself? Dine here just once. Compare our food qualities, and portions, and prices with those of any other first class restaurant or hotel. It will be a revelation to you. You will be surprised at what you have been paying merely to have your food brought to you. You will probably never do it again.

Served every day and Sunday too, 11 a. m. to midnight

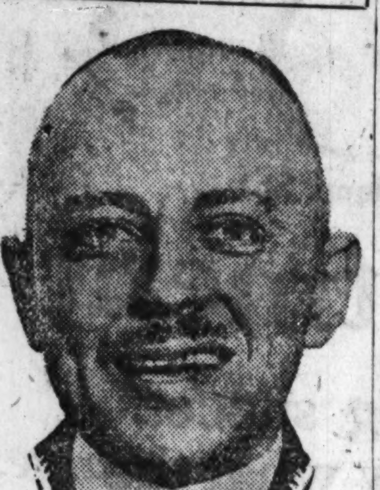
POLITEST MAN OF DAY AIDED IN HIS ROMANCE

Prize Enables Him to Visit Girl.

IN LUCK

Politeness Prize Winner Whose Romance Is Aided.



HOWARD G. GERRISH.

Howard G. Gerrish was hurrying down State street late yesterday afternoon. He was on his way to get a wrist watch for a young lady who lives in Buffalo. Yep, it's a romance.

"A dapper looking bird," said THE TRIBUNE'S politeness reporter to himself. "Very alert and snappy. Probably won't have time to talk to me, but——"

He stepped in the path of the approaching citizen.

"Pardon me, can you tell me where the Art institute is?" asked the reporter.

Unaffected by Weather.

It was still sprinkling. Impatient shoppers were rushing up and down the damp sidewalks. A curt answer, like others the reporter had received, was expected. He didn't get it.

"The Art institute's over on Michigan avenue. Do you know where that is?" began Mr. Gerrish pleasantly.

The reporter nodded his head rather vaguely.

"Well, I'll tell you. Go east two blocks. Then walk down the boulevard three blocks. The Art institute is opposite the end of Adams street. You can tell it by the two lions standing in front."

Here was the politest person the reporter had met in his day's ramblings. Others—shop girls, box office men, newsboys, pedestrians—hadn't especially hurt his feelings, nor had they made him feel particularly welcome.

Take, for instance, the pair of sweet young things in the basement of one of the largest loop department stores. The politeness seeker, eager to escape from the dreary drizzle without, had wandered down there in search of some one to give the $50 to. The aisles were thronged with bargain hunters.

Within a minute or so the reporter found himself looking over an assortment of children's gloves. Absent mindedly he pawed among them, while an eye roved watchfully in the direction of the salesgirls.

Gets No Attention.

One, with a red pencil stuck in her brown hair and her engagement finger adorned with a ring, stood directly in front of him. She was idly talking to a young lady whose left wrist was decorated with a gilded bracelet. Aslant upon the latter's bosom was a barpin.

"I don't think she ought to do it." No. 1 was saying to her confrere.

The reporter waited a few minutes. Then, not getting any offer of service, he walked down the counter a ways. Here a nymphlike blonde, whose slender waist was begirt with a sash of blue, smiled and offered to wait on him.

Gloves were trotted out in rapid succession—kid, woolen, fur. Finally the reporter informed the young lady that he wasn't purchasing anyway, today.

"Well, I can lay them away for you," she said, indicating a pair that had found his favor. "They go awfully fast, you know."

Eager to Get Away.

Here was politeness all right, but the mechanical sort of politeness that the salesfolk are instructed in. Besides, she was too obviously eager to get through with her customer and talk to the male friend who had just arrived at the counter.

The reporter sought the bemoistened streets once more. His footsteps led him towards the Rialto and up to the box office of the Garrick theater. Here he discussed the returning of some mythical tickets.

"It's against the rules. Can't do it, sir," returned the personage behind the wicket. He was busy counting money, and his manner, though not exactly discourteous, was don't-give-a-care.

Back once more to State street, where a newsboy at the intersection of Washington displayed indifferentness when asked for a certain edition of THE TRIBUNE.

"Naw, ain't got it!" said he brusquely, and the reporter, standing bewilderedly at the corner, sought another victim for the fifty. She arrived in the shape of a pretty young woman carrying a lot of bundles. Like Mr. Gerrish, she, too, was in a hurry.

"Pardon, I'm looking for——"

But the woman was gone. She had taken one sudden look at the reporter—then her chin had lifted haughtily and she had moved on. The politeness seeker had evidently been taken for a flirt.

Quest Finally Ends.

So it was that, five minutes later, he found himself telling Mr. Gerrish that $50 was awaiting him at THE TRIBUNE plant if the latter had enough time to come around and get it.

"I should say so," grinned the winner, showing his dimples. "I was just on my way to get a watch for my girl and wondering how I could raise the car fare to Buffalo, so I could take it to her Christmas time. I guess I'm not the lucky boy!"

Mr. Gerrish is 35 years old. His home is in Kankakee, but he works in the stock department of the Standard Oil company here.

Finds Politeness Pays.

"It pays to go out of your way as much as you can," he explained. "I had it drummed into me from childhood that good manners are essential. Mother especially was a stickler for that.

"As a matter of fact," he added, "an ill mannered person is at a disadvantage in business and social life. There is so much that is gruff and abrupt in life that a pleasant person gets along much better than the average. And if he is brought up to be polite, it is second nature for him when he gets out into the world."

ONTARIO TO BUY POWER PLANTS FOR $32,734,000

Toronto, Ont., Dec. 4.—A deal, subject only to ratification by the Ontario government, was completed today for purchase by the province for $32,734,000 of most of the Mackenzie power interests in and around this city.

The date of the bargain is made as of Dec. 1. There will be no immediate cash payment, bonds guaranteed by the Ontario government being the principal consideration.

A NIGHT ALARM, 18 BOLD POLICE, TERROR IN BANK

Or, What's the Matter? What's the Matter?

Saturday depositors of the Sixteenth Street State bank, at the northwest corner of Sixteenth street and St. Louis avenue, shivered in the rain last night, then hurried in, warmed by thoughts of the festive morrow. The pendulous lights of the institution blazed invitingly inside and President Maltz looked pleased while he watched J. A. Kalis, cashier, perform his duties with neatness and dispatch.

Suddenly the doors burst open and eighteen men with revolvers, rushed in crying, "Stick 'em up!" and "where are they?"

Silence, Queries, Cussing.

The rattle of the adding machine ceased. Clinking coins clinked no more. There was a moment of silence.

"What's the matter? What's the matter? What's the matter?" cried President Maltz.

His hectic query broke the strain.

Several women screamed, men elevated their hands, and the eighteen with revolvers—they were policemen—cussed.

Six Months Too Late.

"Where are the stickup guys?" asked the sergeant in charge. "You called up the station and said the place was being held up by bank robbers."

"Bank robbers nothing!" answered President Maltz. "We're just doing our regular Saturday night business. We were held up about six months ago. Are you just getting here?"

The sergeant made an about face and the policemen marched out.

All's Well That Ends Well.

The busines of banking was resumed. The clinking of coins began anew. The rattling of the adding machine came as a symphony to the ears of the president.

Somebody had turned in a bogus alarm to the station.

SENATORS HEAR COAL MEN NAMED AS PROFITEERS

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Allegations of wholesale profiteering in coal by wholesalers and retailers in New York and New England were placed before the United States senate special committee on reconstruction and production, at a hearing beginning this morning at the Engineering Societies building, 29 West Thirty-ninth street.

The charges embrace the specific allegation that a number of coal operators have combined to fight publicity which would expose profiteering. This charge was made by District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn, who will act as counsel at the hearing. He asserted that a fund of $1,200 had been raised by the coal operators for this purpose.

The hearing will last only one day here and then will move to Washington, where the findings of the committee during its recent tour over the country will be placed in the report.

PIANOS!
Uprights
Grands Players

WE make no glowing statements but we do offer you real bargains at prices lower than you can get any place along the street. Our salesrooms are filled with the best display of good pianos and we have decided to move them even though we have to sacrifice money upon them.

We have listed them at prices which will surprise you when you see the names on the fall boards. Fine old standard makes are represented. All we ask is that you come in and see them. We know that once you see the beautiful cases and hear the fine tone of the pianos we offer at these special prices, you will appreciate what this advertisement means to those who wish to save money.

Penny wise merchants may not be satisfied with a reasonable profit but insist upon adding to original cost all kinds of fancy charges. When they offer a piano to the public it is overloaded with an unreasonable price. We DON'T look at things that way. We are satisfied to make a small profit because we are sure of large turnovers. That view is to your benefit. It makes money for you because you save money if you are shrewd enough to come in and see some real bargains.

Special Offer!

We will allow you to come in and make your choice of any type piano we have on display, and we will deliver it to your home for a 30-day trial. You can put it to any test within reason and you will find it exactly as represented. Then you can start to make payments as low as $1.50 a week. You cannot better this offer anywhere. Come in and see for yourself.

Terms as Low as $1.50 a Week

REVELL & CO.

Wabash Ave. Adams St.

(A Business Editorial)

Caution, but Confidence and Progress

Because of the quick response of buyers in our Price Readjustment Sale we are pleased to state that we have, during the past week, placed large orders at fair and reasonable prices for goods in every department.

There must be deflation, but there must also be sane reconstruction wherever possible. The REVELL house shall not lay down on the job. We propose to do business; if not on a normal basis, then as nearly so as possible. When others sell to us for our factories and retail store at prices commensurate with the times, we will promptly pass the goods on to our customers at the same low prices adapted under the readjustment plan we are now pursuing.

If common sense and optimism prevail, this wonderful and wealthy nation will go through with flying colors, and be stronger than ever. As the Scotchman said: "We must not be stingy, but keerful." Manufacturers, jobbers, retailers and consumers should continue to work and buy within reason. Then, with the splendid assistance the bankers are giving, and which labor will also give, each of us will have a share in the reconstruction period.

We must all be human first, solicitous for the welfare of all the people. As business men and individual consumers we should come second.

We can make no mistake if we rely with the utmost confidence upon the greatness and richness of our country's resources.

Successful banks, captains of industry, and leaders of labor should not be afraid to act, even at some temporary and substantial sacrifice, whenever it shall favorably affect the general public good. When disposed to be unalterably firm, remember that the times call for tolerance, patience, and above all, TEAM WORK.

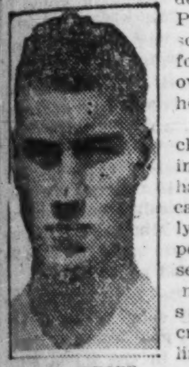
THREE GRIDIRON BREAKS IN CONFERENCE

OAK PARK'S DASH IN SECOND HALF UPSETS DAYTON

Hands First Reverse in 2 Years to Steele, 19-6.

Dayton, O., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—In a downpour of rain and on a field ankle-deep in mud, Oak Park [Ill.] High school hung up a football victory over Steele High here, 19 to 6.



HERB STEGER
[Oak Park Captain].

After being clearly outplayed in the opening half, the visitors came back strongly in the final periods, and by a series of smashing line plays succeeded in crossing the goal line three times, scoring the first win that has been registered against Steele in two years.

Two Dayton Attacks Repulsed.

In the first period Steele had the ball six inches from the goal only to lose it on downs when one of the backs slipped and fell. Later in the quarter they reached Oak Park's 5 yard line, but lost this opportunity the same way.

In the second quarter Steele was on Oak Park's 40 yard line and by a series of passes and end runs advanced to the 1 yard line, whence Keefer dived for a touchdown.

Steele kicked off to the Oak Park 20 yard line in the second half and the Chicago lads began a march down field with Stange and Loomis alternating at gains.

Steger Scores, but Is Hurt.

On Dayton's 32 mark Capt. Steger went around the end for a touchdown. He was injured on the play and had to leave the game. The final quarter began with Oak Park's ball in midfield. Loomis and Stange hit off-tackle to the 20 yard line, from where Robinson circled left end for a touchdown.

Carpenter then kicked off to Steele, but on the second play Keefer fumbled and Meese grabbed the ball and ran 22 yards for the final touchdown. Heile, who missed the previous two goals, kicked this one.

The speedy backfield of the Steele team was greatly hampered by the heavy field, falling frequently when it seemed they would get away for long gains. Toward the end one could not distinguish the players, owing to the mud from head to foot.

Stange and Meese Star.

Stange played a nice game in the backfield for Oak Park. The local seemed unable to stop his off-tackle smashes. Steger's bad ankle kept him from doing much. Meese played a swell defensive game, breaking through to block two of Klee's punts, the first time the trick was turned this year. He also recovered a couple fumbles.

Keefer did the best work for Steele, gaining mostly through tackle. Lineup:

SCANDAL TALK BRINGS RELEASE TO JEAN DUBUC

Toledo, O., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Jean Dubuc, manager of the Toledo club in 1920, today was given his unconditional release. President Roger Bresnahan in announcing the release stated it was for the best interest of all concerned. Bresnahan is in the field for a playing manager of big league caliber to lead the Mud Hens in 1921.

It has been suspected for some time that Dubuc would not return next summer because his name was connected with the recent exposure of crookedness in the 1919 world series.

Because of his connection with the New York Giants at the time, and because of his friendship for Hal Chase and Heinie Zimmerman, Jean was the target for the finger of suspicion.

No Impropriety in Two Positions, Says Landis

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—Federal Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, selected head of organized baseball, in an address here tonight, asserted he could see no impropriety in his accepting the baseball position and retaining his place on the federal bench. The speaker emphasized, however, that whenever congress decided his baseball position interfered with his judicial duties and demanded his resignation from the bench, he would telegraph it to Washington.

Fatal Hunting Accident List Reaches Fifteen

Bloomington, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The toll of hunting accident fatalities in central Illinois was increased to fifteen this week when Howard Seward was killed while hunting rabbits near Hammond. While in a field near his home the gun he was carrying was accidentally discharged, the contents penetrating his head. William Thompson was perhaps fatally injured while hunting near Armstrong. While a companions was trying to remove a cartridge the weapon was discharged and the bullet entered Thompson's abdomen.

In the Wake of the News

MARKET LETTER.

STOCKS ended the week in comparative dullness with underlying strength (or perhaps lying strength). Any strength at all, however, after many weeks of declining values, is a relief to tired holders, although no cause of elation to retired holders.

The bourse appears to be following the accepted verdict that stability around these levels will make for a rise later—in the absence of some specific bad news. (It always is advisable in market letters to have some qualifying clause enabling an "I told you so," no matter what happens.)

Grains, cotton, and the oils reflected improvement, possibly due to retirement of short contracts. Coalers, inclined to be weak early, gained on the impression there would be no janitors' strike. Janitors' strike, less coal burned, was the theory. Probably true (constructively).

Among the specialties, Public Service was of little service to any one. National Leather took a tanning. Peoples Gas and Lindsay Light were dull. Briscoe's brakes failed to hold. Piggly Wiggly squealed. Albert Pick was picked clean early, but rallied.

We still favor conservative commitments, amply margined, for a long pull, but with guarded opinions as to becoming the stroke oar.

Life's Lessons.

My brother learned a lot of things
When he fought for us in France—
Any guns or shells or planes or things,
He can name them at a glance.

And he learned a lot of "Parlez-vous"
While they stationed him in France;
It's "Voulez-vous?" and "Dansons-nous?"
When he asks a girl to dance.

But the GREATEST thing my brother learned
'Mid the battle-fields of France,
Was to darn his sox and mend his shirt
And sew buttons on his pants. MAIZIE.

Bolshevik Poker.

Recital in this column of the sad fate of The Wake in learning from Evanston neighbors the intricacies of Bolshevik with the One-Eyed Johns wild elicited several inquiries as to modus operandi. The motive prompting the inquiries we can only surmise. Here is the prescription for home bruise:

Deal the cards around, five to a player, as for the real game. Then place the deck in the center of the table and expose one card. The game then becomes stud with the cards in your hand and the card exposed eligible to form a hand. The game continues as in stud, with betting after each additional card exposed, until five are in the center. You then have ten from which to build your hand. One-Eyed Johns wild means that the two one-eyed Jacks may be called anything you wish in making your hand.

If any Wake reader has anything more weird than this, please write. We would like to slip a little revenge to our tutors. And perhaps we will publish the new weirdness for other readers who go in for that sort of thing.

The worst we ever saw—not as a participant, thank you—was stud poker, low hands best, with clubs wild. Can you imagine it?

Heart-Rending Thought.

Suppose, when Burleson resigns
(The thing is customary)
And mails his said, reluctant lines,
THAT letter should miscarry?
Suppose THAT letter should be lost

O Gawd! Would then our mail be bossed
By him ad infinitum? H. M. S.

Setting the Missus Right.

"What have you been doing now?" inquired Mrs. Wake as we returned from a day of toil in the loop.

"Why," we inquired, trying to recall any past omissions.

"Because the bailiff of Judge Barrett's criminal court phoned and seemed very anxious to reach you" with emphasis on reach.

"Probably that cider you served to bridge guests," we remarked flippantly, and refused to discuss the matter further until after investigation.

Investigation, however, proved it was only a summons to attend the inauguration of State's Attorney Crowe and Board of Review Member Charles Barrett in Judge Barrett's courtroom tomorrow.

ECKERSALL PICKS 7 BIG TEN STARS ON ALL-WESTERN

Gipp, Coughlin, Wallace, and Voss Chosen.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

[Copyright: 1920: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Although western conference universities produced a number of excellent football warriors during the past season, there were players on other elevens in the middle west whose consistent playing during the year warrants recognition. For this reason it is only fitting to honor these men by selecting All-Western first and second elevens.

WALTER ECKERSALL.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Ever since football has been played in our American institutions there have been men who have ended their careers unheard and unsung. It has been unfortunate that such players were members of smaller college elevens and did not receive the support to make them the really great players they were.

Pier Naval Team Recalled.

Football fans in the middle west will remember the municipal pier eleven of Chicago in 1918. The team of that naval post was composed of great players. Half Back Johnson was looked upon as one of the great backs in the country, but he was never heard of outside of the state of Iowa when he was a member of the Morningside college eleven. There have been many such cases.

There were three really great players who were members of minor college elevens this fall who would have been given serious recognition for the honorary elevens had they been members of stronger elevens. These men are Milsted, tackle on the Wabash eleven Ogden, center on De Pauw, and Haussler, half back on Illinois Wesleyan.

But in the season recently brought to a successful close such players generally were marked men in every contest, and it was impossible for them to do anything against a team with a strong defense.

Great Center at Iowa State.

While none of these players can be placed on either the first or second team, there is a man who played on a smaller institution team who is without doubt one of the greatest pivot players developed in the west since the days of Schulz of Michigan and Des Jardien of Chicago.

This player is "Polly" Wallace of Ames, a veritable demon on defense and one of the steadiest men in the country in passing the ball. He was the outstanding forward of the Missouri Valley conference and commanded the respect of every team which the Iowa state institution met.

Wallace weighs 181 pounds and is 5 feet 10 inches tall. In 1918 he held down the pivot position for Minnesota, and was considered the best man in the position in the section. In 1919 he was in the navy, and if his S. A. T. C. year at the Gopher college does not count against him he will be eligible for competition next fall.

Holds Strong Hawkeyes Alone.

It will be recalled that Iowa defeated Ames, 14 to 10, for the Hawkeye state championship. No other person than Howard Jones, coach of the Hawkeye eleven, is authority for the statement that his team would have been the victor by at least three touchdowns had it not been for the great defensive playing of Wallace.

In this contest the Ames center, who has a nose for the ball, not only plugged his center holes, but did most of the tackling on the wings. He repeatedly nailed Aubrey Devine on attempted end runs, and he was Iowa's menace in breaking up the short forward pass attack. Although a big man, he tackled with the same effect of a lighter player. Taking all angles of the position into consideration, he is rightfully entitled to the honor.

Voss of Detroit at Tackle.

Football fans in the section probably will recall such great tackles as Joe Maddock and Joe Curtis of Michigan, and Art Curtis of Wisconsin. They also will remember later tackles in Buck of Wisconsin and Walker of Minnesota, players who were selected for the All-American teams because of their sterling play.

There have been many good men in the positions since the days of those warriors, but the nearest approach since their time is Voss, tackle on the University of Detroit eleven. This player weighs 210 pounds, possesses football instinct, and knows the play of the position thoroughly.

This player is so solidly built that he wears little of the armor used by most linemen. He does not even wear head harness, and there is little padding on his uniform, which tends to slow up players. But above all he possesses football intuition. He was always in the vicinity of the ball and tackled hard and sure. He was a much better tackle than any seen in the conference.

Coughlin for Other Tackle.

The other tackle position is given to Capt. Frank Coughlin of Notre Dame who piloted his eleven through the season without a defeat. Coughlin would make an admirable mate for Voss. He knows the position thoroughly and at Notre Dame is rated with the best linemen in the history of the institution.

The Notre Dame leader was one of

SPANISH-AMERICAN BOUTS CALLED OFF AS CROWD GROANS

Three thousand friends of clean boxing in Chicago, including a goodly sprinkling of the city's representatives in the state legislature, were gathered in the Seventh regiment last night for the advertised boxing and wrestling program sponsored by the Spanish War Veterans association, when a telegram from Adjt. Gen. Frank S. Dickson, in Springfield, was read, canceling the glove exhibitions.

Gen. Dickson wired that inasmuch as it was illegal, under the present state laws, to hold boxing in Illinois, and in view of protests raised by the Baptist Ministerial conference and organizations of Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal clergymen, he could not allow boxing on state property.

Telegram Brings Groans.

Maj. Frank White, custodian of the armory, made the announcement in a disappointed tone from the ring and a groan, 3,000 strong, echoed the reading of the telegram. Following it, the war veterans announced that any of the crowd who desired their money back could get it at the box office.

One hundred took the money, while 2,900 waited to view the mat bouts, either because they wished to see the contests or because they approved the purposes for which the admission money of about $5,000 aggregate was intended—to furnish a clubhouse for the Spanish war veterans and to boost a clean boxing bill for Illinois.

Announces Support of Bill.

The boxers who had been billed were introduced from the ring, and State Senator Tom Healy, recently elected from the Fifth district, ascended the same forum to announce his support of a legislative bill which would chase the killjoy from future occasions of the kind. His sentiments were echoed by the following state legislators observed around the ringside:

S. E. WEINSCHANKER, Second district.
MICHAEL F. MAHAR, Twenty-first district.
JOHN F. BERRY, Nineteenth district.
SHADRACH TURNER, First district.
GARRY NOONAN, Third district.
BERNARD CONLON, Twenty-ninth district.
JOSEPH PERINA, Fifteenth district.
SENATOR PADDY CARROLL, Ninth district.

Fighting Chaplain Disappointed.

Chaplain Father O'Donnell of the 122d infantry in the world war, the "fighting chaplain," was as disappointed as any, as was Assistant State's Attorney M. A. Kaufman, who represented the state's attorney's office, but as a spectator.

Results in the wrestling bouts were:

John Kilonis, Greek middleweight, threw Tom Cannon, Syracuse, two straight falls, 25:10 with head scissors and 13:00 with leg hold.

John Schultz threw Rolando three falls in heavyweight bout. Rolando being dissatisfied with the decision in the second fall and claiming another chance. The falls were gained in 8:17 with head lock, 1:30 with half nelson, and 3:00 with toe hold.

Pete Katausky, welterweight, threw Nick Buyer two falls, 11:30 with toe hold [conceded] and 1:00 with head lock.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

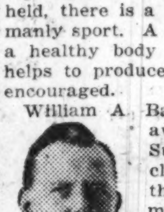
Do you approve of a bill for clean boxing for Illinois?

Where Asked.

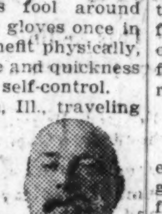
Dearborn street, between Harrison and Polk streets.

Answers.

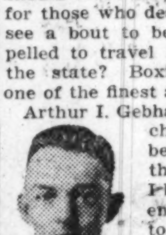
John W. Fomer, 1631 North Lawndale avenue, chemist—I heartily approve of a bill for clean boxing in the state of Illinois. It seems a shame that here in the most central point of the United States, where all the big fights should be held, there is a prejudice against the manly sport. A strong mind demands a healthy body and everything that helps to produce the same should be encouraged.



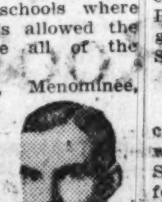
William A. Bache, 6407 University avenue, inspector—Sure, I'm in favor of a clean boxing bill. If there is anything we must have it is fairness and fair play in sports. It is a good idea to let the kids fool around with the gloves once in awhile. Besides the benefit physically, it teaches self-confidence and quickness of decision; in a word, self-control.



John A. Logan, Elgin, Ill., traveling field deputy—We should have a law allowing good clean boxing in this state. Why should it be necessary for those who desire to see a bout to be compelled to travel out of the state? Boxing is one of the finest sports we have today.



Arthur I. Gebhart, Y. M. C. A. hotel, chemist—Boxing would be the greatest thing in the world for Chicago. I believe it would awaken the manly spirit and, to my knowledge, in certain schools where boxing is allowed the boys are all of the finest type imaginable.



Joseph B. Madden, Menominee, Mich., secretary—I surely do approve of such a bill. There is nothing I enjoy more than a good scrap. I believe that we should encourage boxing as part of the physical training in all schools. It should be made compulsory.

New York Yankees Seek Training Berth in South

Shreveport, La., Dec. 4.—Bob Connery, scout of the New York Americans, was here today to look over Shreveport as a training camp for the Yankees. Connery will leave tomorrow for Alexandria, La., and will visit New Orleans the latter part of the coming week. He also is in search of a camp for the Brooklyn Nationals. The two clubs will train in cities in close proximity to each other.

BIG TEN MAKES GRID NUMBERS A REQUIREMENT

BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

Faculty representatives of the Big Ten conference colleges, meeting at the Auditorium hotel yesterday, passed a resolution ordering the numbering of players in all future games. This action was taken in response to public demand for a means of identifying the participants in gridiron contests.

I'M A MARKED MAN

There was practically no opposition. The faculty representatives a year ago had recommended the practice, but found some coaches unwilling to take chances of their rivals failing to number, hence deemed it wise to make the order mandatory. They also specified that the numbers should be eight inches in height and plainly discernible.

Coaches Voice Approval.

Coaches present to arrange football schedules for next fall generally expressed approval since the rule was applicable to all.

While the rule, as such, will apply only to games between conference elevens, it is presumed Big Ten elevens will insist that nonconference teams on their schedule conform to the regulation.

With this concession—which THE TRIBUNE has advocated for many years—to the public, which supports the game, made obligatory, the professors then took cognizance of professional football by passing a rule debarring official who officiate in "pro" games from acting in Big Ten contests. This rule was not made retroactive.

Move for More Games Dies.

Iowa, seconded by Indiana, presented a suggestion that the number of games allowed per season be increased from seven to eight. After discussion the proposed change was allowed to die without a vote.

As a little sidelight, the possibilities of which were not announced, a committee was appointed to investigate and report back at a later meeting the amount of time devoted to football by players, and whether this was interfering with school work. One source of information said the reform was aimed at night practice sessions. The committee consists of Profs. J. F. A. Pyre, Wisconsin; R. W. Aigler, Michigan, and Thomas E. French, Ohio State.

Some Opposition to Ohio's Trip.

Incidentally it came out in private conversation that several colleges, while voting permission for Ohio State's trip to the coast to meet California on New Year's day, were opposed to the jaunt, in view of the conference rule against post-season contests, and another rule against games on grounds not controlled by the colleges.

The wording of the rule requiring the numbering of players follows:

> Resolved, That all players competing on football teams representing members of the Conference wear numbers not less than eight inches in height, the color to be such as to show same distinctly.
> Contesting teams shall exchange lists of players, together with the numbers to be worn by such players, at least one week before the game.

Five Places Score in Track.

With football problems off their athletic as well as scholarly chests, the professors voted approval of the five place system of scoring for the annual track meet, subject to adoption by the alumni management committee.

They also ruled that teams outside the conference participating in the track meet must start five men to be eligible for points or medals. This was to prevent a one or two man star team from coming on pot hunting jaunts.

Athletic dates were allotted as follows:

March 11-12—Gymnastic meet, Indiana.
March 17-18—Indoor track meet, Northwestern.
March 17-18—Swimming meet, Northwestern.
May 25-28—Tennis, Chicago.
June 3-4—Outdoor track meet, Chicago.
Nov. 19, 1921—Cross country run, Indiana.

One eligibility question was defined to correct what many considered a previous injustice. Students allowed six semesters of athletic competition will be permitted three seasons in each sport, providing residence and other rules are complied with.

MICHIGAN, OFF CHICAGO LIST, STUNNED BY ACT

Illinois Drops Minnesota; Ohio-Wisconsin Split.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

In a rather turbulent session of Big Ten football coaches yesterday at the Auditorium hotel schedules for the 1921 season were framed and were featured by three breaks between traditional rivals for gridiron honors. Chicago dropped Michigan, Illinois dropped Minnesota, and Ohio State dropped Wisconsin. At the same time Chicago resumed gridiron relations with Northwestern after a year's split.

A. A. STAGG
[Chicago Coach].

Surprise was expressed over the result, especially in the case of Chicago and Michigan, always considered the hottest of rivals in the old days before Yost and his warriors broke away from the conference. It was Director Stagg of the Midway school who always was given credit, more than any other man, for getting Michigan back into the fold, and since the Wolverines returned it was supposed the old time rivalry of the two institutions would be resumed.

No Ill Feeling, Stagg Says.

Mr. Stagg stated that there was no ill feeling connected with the break, but it simply was a matter of dropping one of the big teams from the schedule and that a two year agreement entered into with Michigan had expired. Other coaches of the conference took the "Old Man" to task for his stand, hinting that he had gone out of the conference to book a game against Princeton for the next two years, while he always had advocated sticking to conference games.

JOHN R. RICHARDS
[Wisconsin Coach].

Both Coach Yost and Director Bartlemee of Michigan took the action with no show of resentment, but both expressed keen disappointment in the break of old time rivalry between the two schools.

Ohio-Wisconsin Dispute.

The break between Ohio State and Wisconsin led to a rather stern statement from Coach Richards of the Badger school, who laid the blame for the thing on Coach Wilce of the Ohio champions.

"Ohio has refused to come to Madison for the game next fall," he said, "and I absolutely refuse to play in Columbus out of turn. Wilce formerly played for me and I feel that I had a large part in placing him in the position he holds today. I vouched for him when Ohio State was afraid to take him. I told the authorities there he would turn out champions for them if given three or four years. He has made good and I can't understand why he now would take the attitude he does against Wisconsin.

"One thing I will say, and I said it direct to Wilce, is that this stand of his means that never again will Ohio State have a chance to play Wisconsin in football."

Wilce's explanation was that he found it impossible for Ohio State to schedule the game away from home and when Richards refused to play in Columbus no game was scheduled.

Illinois and Minnesota Friendly.

No ill feeling was expressed by Minnesota or Illinois in the break of football relations there. In fact, Coach Zuppke of the Illini stated plainly that he would rather have kept Minnesota on the list than some of the others.

"Ever since I went to Illinois," the coach declared, "I have been accused of making too tough a schedule. As a rule, we have played one more big game than the others. This year I felt compelled to drop one of the big games, and Minnesota was the only one that could be dropped. We always have found Minnesota clean in football."

The University of Indiana, represented by Coach Stiehm, sprung another surprise of the meeting, as well as showing a means of righting some of the wrongs claimed by the Hoosier school, which has been rather left in the cold by the big teams of the conference. Coach Stiehm announced that he had accepted an invitation to play Harvard at Cambridge on Oct. 8.

Indiana to Play Harvard.

The Indiana leader waited to see what chances would be offered for games against conference teams first and when he learned he was relegated to the bottom of the list as usual, hastened to the telegraph wires and sent his acceptance of the date against the Crimson eleven.

The dropping of the Michigan game by Chicago makes it possible for Director Stagg to take on the Princeton team without taxing the Midway athletes beyond their endurance.

The Maroons will open with a game against Northwestern on Oct. 1, the earliest date of any of the Big Ten games, and follow a week later with the customary game against Purdue. No game will be played on the following Saturday, so the team will have two full weeks to prepare for the battle with the Tigers in Princeton on Oct. 22. The Saturday following the Tiger contest the Maroons have left open for some game against a nonconference team, then will close with games against Ohio State, Illinois, and Wisconsin in the order named.

Dissatisfaction at Northwestern.

Director Evans of the Purple was dissatisfied with the date allotted him by Minnesota and Chicago, but was unable to make a better arrangement.

Playing Chicago on Oct. 1, he will be compelled one week later to take his team to Minnesota and follow with the contest against Wisconsin the next week. Purdue will be met on Nov. 5 and the season will be closed on Nov. 19 with a game against Iowa at Evanston.

The Purple leader stood out for some time against the Minnesota date, but was informed by Doc Williams of the Gophers that it would have to be the early date or nothing.

10,000 N. Y. FANS SEE BUFFALO NIP CANTON PROS., 7-3

New York, Dec. 4.—In the first professional football game played in this city in many years, the Buffalo All-Americans defeated the Canton Bulldogs, 7 to 3, at the Polo grounds this afternoon. The teams were so well matched that consistent gains were out of the question. The game drew a crowd of 10,000.

Jim Thorpe, former Carlisle Indian school star, kicked a field goal from placement for Canton in the third period, following the recovery of a Buffalo fumble, and a few minutes later "Swede" Youngstrom, one of the greatest linesmen ever developed at Dartmouth, picked up a blocked punt from the toe of Thorpe and ran over the line for Buffalo's touchdown, from which Weldon kicked goal. DETROIT WINNER OVER TULANE U. BY 7-0 COUNT

New Orleans, La., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Playing on a field ankle deep in mud, which made accurate handling of the ball next to impossible on some plays, Detroit defeated Tulane today, 7 to 0.

The Wolverines scored early in the first period by use of the forward pass and straight plays, but Tulane came right back and fought the visitors for the remaining three quarters with a determination which nearly resulted in scores. It only was the strong defense of Detroit that prevented its goal line from being crossed. Lineup:

NOTRE DAME TO PLAY IN WEST IF GIPP RECOVERS

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A dash of spice was sprinkled on the fading football season at Notre Dame today when announcement was made that the athletic department had accepted an invitation to send the 1920 squad to the coast for a Christmas day game with the Pacific Fleet eleven. The contest will be played at San Francisco.

The university authorities consented to the trip with a reservation clause covering Gipp's recovery. Should Gipp's illness prove fatal, the game will be canceled. The star half back has been in a critical condition for the last week with pneumonia and infection of the throat. He has shown slight improvement the last two days, but still is within the danger zone.

ART FOLZ.

Chicago's public high schools played an advanced form of football during the season just closed, and the teams reflected great credit on the coaches, who developed enough stars among the boys to construct several all-star teams. Naturally, the Englewood champions who went through the season without a defeat, and only once had their goal line crossed, must furnish the largest number of players for the selected team. Five players wearing the Purple find places, and other good ones are left off.

The most brilliant performer in the Chicago league was Art Folz, Englewood quarter back, and he is placed at quarter and made captain of the stars. Not in years has a prep lad come forth with such speed in open field running and such cleverness in handling and running back punts.

Folz's Run Beats Hyde Park.

Folz's showed fine generalship in running the champions in all their battles. He weighs about 152, and still is growing. The toughest game Englewood had was against Hyde Park, when several men on the team were out of condition because of illness, but Folz won the game by running something like sixty-five yards for a touchdown after catching a punt. Other quarter backs who stood out were Rigali of Crane and Sparks of Senn.

There were a lot of splendid ends, the best being Stair of Englewood. This boy has the weight and knows how to turn end runs into the line. It was seldom the interference of the opponents put him out of the play. The best mate for him was Simmons of Hyde Park, who played a whale of a game against Senn. Simmons also is one of the best punters in the league.

Two Heavy Purple Tackles.

One can't well go beyond the Englewood team for tackles. Westenberger and Ryan were the best in the league. Both have the weight, the former being close to 190 pounds and the latter about 180. They spoiled the plays of rival teams many times before they started. Westenberger is the surest goal kicker in the league.

Men picked for the other positions all were flashy performers, particularly Brown of Senn. His work during the season was marked by numerous long runs. Gentry of Englewood was a back of speed and great defensive strength.

CARDINALS PLAY STALEYS AGAIN AT CUB PARK TODAY

Four good attractions are offered local followers of professional football this afternoon. Three of the games are for titles.

One of the contests is a replay between the Cardinals and Staleys at Cub park, two of the best teams in the middle west. Until last Sunday, when the Cardinals gave them a 7 to 6 defeat, the Staleys had a string of successive victories for the season. The game is billed as for mid-western honors.

At Pyott field the Stayms and Boosters will clash for the championship of the Chicago league. The Stayms have been defeated only once during the season, while the Boosters have not been beaten.

The Forest Parks and Melrose Parks, contenders for the suburban championship, will play off the scoreless tie of last Sunday at Oak Park baseball park. The Original Thorns of Pullman will play Hegewisch A. A. at Pullman athletic field, One Hundred and Third street and Corliss avenue. Following are the games:

Cardinals and Staleys at Cub park.
Stayms and Boosters at Pyott field.
Forest Park and Melrose Park at Oak Park.
Original Thorns and Hegewisch at 103d street and Corliss avenue.
Wolves and Lightning Midgets at Hegewisch.

ECKERSALL PICKS 7 BIG TEN STARS ON ALL-WESTERN TEAM

the main factors in the victory of his team over the Army. His sterling playing brought forth praise from eastern critics, some of whom place him on a par with Keck, the great Princeton tackle. Coughlin's long experience—this being his third year on the Notre Dame eleven—is one of his best assets. He knows how to do the right thing with the least effort, and like Voss mixed in every play.

In the Northwestern game it was a frequent occurrence to see him run back of his own line and tackle a Purple player, who had crossed the scrimmage line on cut-back-in plays. He was also down the field under punts and was a natural leader.

Gipp Is Great Half Back.

George Gipp, the great Notre Dame half back, is placed at right half back. This player is probably the greatest back developed at Notre Dame in years, and ranks well with the leading fall carriers ever turned out in the section. There is little about football which this player cannot do and do well.

The first All-Western team, like the All-Conference honorary eleven selected a week ago, would be fortified in all departments. Gipp would be delegated to do the punting and field goal kicking. He also would be used to run or forward pass from punt formations. Aubrey Devine would be assigned to some of the forward hurling, with Weston and Carney on the receiving ends after criss-crossing behind the defensive line.

Stinchcomb also would be used in the receiving department, and would be stationed at defensive full back when the ball was in possession of an opponent.

LANSING ELEVEN HOLDS HYDE PARK TO TIE GAME, 7-7

Michigan Lads Even Score in Final Period.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A penalty inflicted on Hyde Park for holding in the final minutes of play, together with a short forward pass, enabled the Lansing High school football team to tie the score in its game here with the Chicago team today, 7 to 7. The game was played in a sea of mud, which slowed up play and confined the successful attack of both teams to straight football.

Hyde Park outgained Lansing principally because their heavier line charged through the Lansing forward wall effectively. Despite this the Lansing eleven enjoyed opportunities and had they taken advantage of every opening, the score would have been of a different complexion.

Hyde Park Scores First.

Hyde Park scored in the first play of the second quarter, the final play in the initial period advancing the ball to the 1 foot line. Ballentine, quarter back of the visiting aggregation, scored the touchdown, but the efforts of Smith, the visitors' huge full back, was in a great measure responsible for the score.

The big back carried upon his broad shoulders practically the entire attack of his team, gaining at least one-half of the yardage which materialized from the efforts of the Chicago backfield.

Lansing showed real straight football power on but two occasions, their attack at one time taking them to the 2 yard line. In the final quarter they carried the ball from midfield to Hyde Park's 30 yard line. Here the penalty which proved so decisive was inflicted and a pass, Richards to Johnson, placed the ball on Hyde Park's 1 yard line. Even then it took three plays to take it over.

Smith and Kile Star.

Smith and Kile were easily the stars of the Hyde Park team. The big captain and tackle was a tower of strength of defense, stopping practically every play directed at his side of the line. Lineup:

STAMFORD HIGH BEATS ELGIN IN 7-0 CLASH; LOSERS' DEFENSE GOOD

Stamford, Conn., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Stamford High school football team defeated Elgin (Ill.) High here today, to 0, before 5,000 people.

Stamford scored five minutes after the start of the game. Two forward passes in succession, Hunt to Williams, and Burr to Williams, netted Stamford 30 yards and brought the ball to the visitors' 5 yard line, La Guardia carried the ball over on the third play. Capt. Brennan kicked the goal.

Elgin Often Threatened.

Stamford completely outplayed the boys from the middle west. Three times Stamford brought the ball to the Elgin 1 yard line only to lose it either by a fumble or a grounded pass over the goal. The local boys had the ball inside the Elgin 25 yard line on a number of other occasions.

Elgin never got inside Stamford's 25 yard line. Apart from Britton, the tall heavy full back of the visiting team, Elgin made little impression on the Stamford team. Britton made a number of gains of 5 to 10 yards through the line and around ends. "Duffy" Williams of Elgin also did fairly good work on the offensive.

Work the Lateral Pass.

Hunt at quarter back, Williams at half back—especially the latter—Capt. Brennan, and Ingalls were the outstanding figures on the Stamford team, although the entire team played good ball. One of the best plays of the game was a lateral pass, Williams to Hunt, on which the latter gained 20 yards, being forced out of bounds on the Elgin 3 yard line. On the next play Hunt lost the oval to Elgin on a fumble. Lineup:

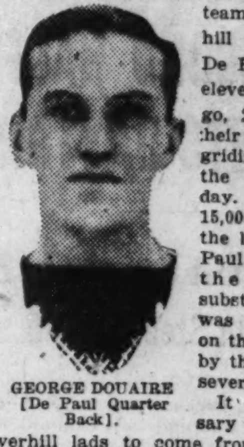
ST. JAMES ELEVEN DEFEATS DE PAUL BY 21-10 COUNT

Touchdowns in Last Half Turn Tide of Battle.

Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The crack St. James High football team of Haverhill defeated the De Paul academy eleven of Chicago, 21 to 10, in their intersectional gridiron battle in the stadium today. More than 15,000 witnessed the battle. De Paul outweighed the easterners substantially, but was handicapped on the other hand by the absence of several stars.



GEORGE DOUAIRE
[De Paul Quarter Back].

It was necessary for the Haverhill lads to come from behind to win, as the De Paul eleven got away fast and at the close of the first half was in the lead, 10 to 7.

In the third period Haverhill opened up with a lightning-like forward pass attack and De Paul was swept off its feet. Under a powerful and puzzling offensive the easterners swept over two touchdowns in the two final periods, Moynihan crossing the goal line on one occasion and Minehan tallying the other. The visitors could not solve the puzzling and rapid play.

At the start De Paul got into the battle fast, and soon began to look like a winner. A goal from the 33 yard line by Douaire in the initial period was a pretty piece of work, the De Paul player booting the oval from a hard angle.

Rattigan's touchdown came about the middle of the second period. He took the ball on his own 40 yard line and twisted and dodged through the entire St. James eleven to the goal line. Buckley, the last Haverhill player, leaped upon the runner 10 yards from the goal line, but was pushed off.

Rattigan was injured in the third period and replaced by Gillis. In this period Douaire tried for another goal from 22 yards, but missed. Lineup:

OES OF BOXING SHOULD SEE JACK TRAINING FOR GO

Champ Devotee of Music, Books, Good Hours.

BY HARRY NEWMAN.

JACK DEMPSEY. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—If those who have been maligning boxing as a relic of the barbaric period would pay a visit to the U. S. S. Granite State one of these days and have a talk with and watch Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion, go through his healthful training stunts preparing for his contest with Bill Brennan on Dec. 14, they probably would revise their opinion.

The big fellow was busily engaged in cuffing the dickens out of various sparring partners when we dropped in on the scene.

To watch this rollicking young American go through these healthful and instructive motions is marvelous. The million dollar smile never deserts the kindly face of this great boxer. Dempsey is just a big boy who loves to see everybody happy, but is a veritable lion when unleashed in the ring with an opponent.

Expects Trouble in Ring.

"How do you feel, Jack?" we inquired, by way of opening up the conversation.

"Fine," the champion responded, and his appearance sustained the truth of his assertion.

"How about Brennan? Do you expect to have any trouble?"

"I always expect trouble from my opponents and have never yet neglected to prepare accordingly. Brennan is a big, shifty fellow, and he gave me a great fight the last time we met. You bet your life I expect trouble, any time I step into the ring.

"It doesn't pay to underestimate the ability of any man nowadays. The practical unknown is just as likely to sneak one across on you as the prospective champion, and you must always be prepared against these things."

"Doesn't the work of training pall on you at times?" we queried.

"No," the big fellow responded. "I live a sort of methodical life, and the work just about enters into my every day idea of living."

Agrees with Benjamin Franklin.

"What is that every day idea of living, Jack?"

"Why, early to bed and early to rise," the great boxer said. "I get up every morning at 7 o'clock and go out for a short walk, returning for breakfast, which usually consists of toast with some eggs and fruit. After that I take to the road for a walk or run, just as my fancy strikes me, and then back to the house for a rubdown—lolling about there reading the papers or a magazine until lunch time."

"How about your food? Are you a heavy eater?"

"I don't think I am what you would call a heavy eater, as pugilists go," the champion said. "I like good, substantial food, but prefer vegetables. I am very fond of potatoes, beans, and vegetables of every description, but of course I can take a healthy wallop at a nice brace of chops or a juicy steak. On the whole, I do not think I belong in the big eaters' league.

Trouble Keeping Sparring Mates.

"Lunch over, I usually read a book until it is time to go to the gymnasium."

"Ever have any trouble retaining your sparring partners?"

"O, yes," Jack replied. "You see, I sometimes forget that it is only a training stunt and frequently cut loose. Some boys don't like being mussed up, and the next day they forget to come back."

"How about your recreations?" we inquired further.

"O, I love music, classy and jazzy. A good book will stop me longer than any punch I have ever encountered. Also, I like to keep in touch with the history of the world day by day, and I read my newspapers religiously. I usually hit the hay about 9 o'clock, but very often I am in there at 8 o'clock, and I never have been bothered with insomnia."

Worry? What Is Worry?

"Ever worry the night before a big contest?"

"Not on your life," was Jack's quick retort. "I haven't got any time for worry. Plenty of exercise and careful attention to one's hours and food can lick worry any time it starts. I can imagine that worry has beaten many a good man, but if it ever comes along my way I am going to get out of the game."

At this point Jack was dressed for the street, and as he bade us good-by and stepped out of the door with the agility of a bantam, we couldn't help admire this wonderful specimen of manhood, who looks good enough right now to fight for a king's ransom.

ONLY TWO CHAMPIONS SAFE PROPOSITIONS FOR RING WAGERING

BY RAY PEARSON.

There are just two champions in the ring today who might be termed safe betting propositions. These two are Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, and Benny Leonard, world's titleholder in the lightweight ranks.

That isn't a very large percentage when it is considered that there are men who occupy the proud position of titleholder in seven recognized divisions of pugilism. The other champions are Johnny Wilson, who heads the mob in the middleweight class; Jack Britton, the leading light of the welterweights; Johnny Kilbane, the best of the featherweight crowd; Pete Herman, champion of the bantamweights, and Jimmy Wilde, boss of the flyweights.

Wilde Is Real Top Notcher.

Not one of the five just mentioned, unless it happens to be Jimmy Wilde, is really a good betting proposition. Wilde is a better bet than the other four, chiefly because there is little opposition for him among boys of his own weight. Wilde very frequently goes out of his class and battles the bantamweights in order to keep busy and garner the coin that goes with pugilistic action.

It would seem that a champion always should be a favorite when entering the ring to box a contender for his crown, but that doesn't always apply, and many instances could be recalled of a challenger being the choice, or at least an even money shot in the betting, when battling a champion. It is a natural favoritism that is accorded a titleholder when he faces a challenger and he is made that to a great extent on sentiment, not on actual dope.

Why Dempsey Is Great.

But why are Dempsey and Leonard safer betting propositions than any of the other champions?

Take Dempsey first. When a champion wades through every man who opposes him and does it without even taking a punching it must be admitted that his superiority is marked. In Dempsey's case it is remarkably marked because he has done that very thing, scarcely taking a slap, let alone a solid punch. He is clever, far more clever offensively than defensively.

A knockout puncher with either hand, who is fast and clever offensively and an unrelenting warrior, is something rarely seen in the heavyweight ranks.

Take Benny Leonard next. The lightweight champion differs in some respects from Dempsey because he hasn't the same style. Leonard is a one handed knocker out, using his right to put 'em to sleep. But Leonard isn't the artist offensively that Dempsey is, just because he doesn't knock them out with either mitt.

Defensively it might not be out of line to state that the champion of the lightweights is as good as they make 'em. Then add to this that Champion Benny has a wonderful fighting brain and a viciousness that never fails to finish a man once he has him going, and there you have Benny Leonard.

Thomson, Young Skating Star, Cleared as Amateur

George Thomson, playground skater, who represented the Avondale playground last winter, was given a clean record as an amateur at a meeting of the board of control of the Western Skating association. Young Thomson was brought on the carpet for competing last winter and winning medals in the boys' races under 16 years of age, when he was over the age of 16. He was cleared because entry blanks for the races in which he competed were not clear on the age requirements.

BROMWELL GETS SIXTY BULLSEYES FOR RIFLE MARK

Several surprises developed in the Chicago Rifle association's second weekly match in the competition for THE TRIBUNE trophy.

Four competitors, Walter Wolff and John Turner of Centennial, A. F. Bronwell of Commonwealth Edison, and H. V. Roberts of Chicago, each shot perfect scores of 200 or 20 consecutive bull's-eyes.

Bronwell Shoots 60 Straight.

Continuing the match for the honor of the greatest number of additional consecutive bullsyes [Roberts not competing], Wolff missed on his sixth and Turner on his seventeenth, but Bronwell shot faultlessly until his forty-second additional shot before getting out of the small one-half inch bull.

This record of sixty consecutive bullseyes by Bronwell is the highest made in the association for the last four years and is likely to stand as a high mark for some time to come.

Team Averages Also High.

The team records also were of a high average, and a decided improvement over last week's scores. The Centennial and Irving Park teams tied at 993 out of a possible 1,000 points, and the Chicago and Commonwealth Edison teams tied for the second best, two points behind the leaders. The standing follows:

May Bar Tennis Players Who Advertise Names

New York, Dec. 4.—Efforts to discontinue the practice of naming rackets and other tennis paraphernalia after players are being pushed in this country and in Europe. At the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association in this city in February a change in the by laws will be offered barring players who permit the use of their names in this manner. The British association plans similar action.

PICKING WEALTH OFF TREES!

BILLY SULLIVAN.

MANY years ago, as fictionists say, when Billy Sullivan was premier backstop of the baseball world and near to the hearts of Chicago fans, he invested part of his salary in an apple orchard in one of the fertile valleys of Oregon, near the town of Newberg.

Friends kidded him for "falling for" the apple game of the northwest promoters, but Billy met their jokes with arguments, and kept on feeding dollars into the growing fruit ranch. When his days as a big leaguer were over Sullivan retired to the apple factory, which he had paid for in full, and has made good in that, too.

KIECKHEFER AND MAUPOME TAKE FAST CUE GAMES

BY JOE DAVIS.

PIERRE MAUPOME.

Two remarkably fast games featured the opening matches in the play-off of the quadruple tie in the preliminary series of the world's three cushion championship yesterday. They lasted less than two hours, Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago taking the first game from John Daly of New York, 50 to 37, in fifty-six innings, and Pierre Maupome winning from Alfredo De Oro of New York, 50 to 41, in forty-two innings. These two attractions drew a packed house.

Kieckhefer's Great Game.

Kieckhefer, who has been improving each game, scored a trio of threes in his first thirty inning and counting more consistently than the New York veteran, gained a lead of 23 to 13 in thirty innings. Both played some fine billiards after this, Daly keeping step with the local southpaw, but not being able to reduce his deficit. Augie ran 2, 3, and 5, and Daly had 2, 4, and 3 in the latter stages.

Score at each tenth inning:

Kieckhefer	8	16	23	33	43	50
Daly	4	8	13	19	32	37

Maupome who lost to De Oro, 29 to 50, in the regular schedule, set the veteran Cuban a merry pace, the latter remarking after the battle it "was tough to lose after scoring forty-one points in forty-two innings. The brilliant Mexican was at his best, while De Oro many times brought applause by spectacular shots. It was a slam bang contest, De Oro leading 9 to 2, and having Maupome respond with a fine quintet. When Maupome was in front 19 to 16, De Oro duplicated this run of five.

Maupome Again Leads.

Once more Maupome forged ahead eight points only to have De Oro gather a fine run of seven in the twenty-sixth period, and bringing his total to thirty as against thirty-one.

There was no stopping the Mexican who again flashed in front with counts of two, one, and five, making the count 39 to 28 in his favor, in the twenty-eighth inning. Maupome counted nine times in his last fourteen innings, notching seven singles and two doubles. De Oro finished with runs of one, two, and three. Score at each tenth inning:

Maupome	12	27	40	48	50
De Oro	12	22	30	36	41

Augie Beats De Oro Again.

Augie Kieckhefer for the second time in the series defeated Alfredo De Oro, winning the first night game, 50 to 42, in sixty-one innings. The win insures Augie of a position not lower than fourth. Score at each tenth inning:

De Oro	5	7	11	21	32	42	42
Kieckhefer	5	9	18	34	42	48	50

John Daly of New York defeated Pierre Maupome, 50 to 47, in 82 innings in the final game last night. It was a close match, the players being within two points of each other all of the way. Daly had a high run of 4 and Maupome 3. Score at each tenth inning:

Daly	7	7	15	26	31	35	43	48	50
Maupome	5	7	17	26	27	35	42	47	47

TRIVIAL THINGS CHANGE CAREERS OF BALL PLAYERS

Speedy Work Gains Rice Name "Man o' War."

BY BILLY EVANS.
[American League Umpire.]

Minor happenings, trivial incidents, often shape the career of some star ball player. Take the case of Sam Rice, outfielder of the Washington club.

BILLY EVANS

It was the last half of the ninth inning, the bases were filled, the score a tie, and two men out. How often you have read such a description of a tense moment in some important ball game. Such was the situation in Washington one day last summer. Sam Rice, outfielder extraordinary, was the next man up. There was a wild cheer from the Washington rooters as Sam went to the plate swinging a couple of bats. Most of the fans figured the ball game just about over, for there are few more dangerous batters in a pinch than Sam Rice.

Clouts Measly Roller.

The opposing pitcher worked carefully on the Washington star. He probably would have passed him had there been an open base. With the count two balls and one strike, Sam got a fast ball and took a healthy swing. Instead of a crashing line drive as the fans had expected Sam topped the ball—a slow rolling grounder toward third.

At the crack of the bat all base runners started to advance. Getting off to a flying start, Rice came down that first base line at a dizzy gait. When Rice was but a few feet from the base the fielder made a one handed pickup of the ball and cut it loose to first. That was the thrilling moment.

Would Rice beat the throw and win the game? With that thought uppermost in the mind of every spectator, a lusty lunged rooter in the right field pavilion summed up the situation, and Sam Rice, when he shouted:

"Come on, you 'Man o' War.'"

Started as Pitcher.

Some fans may not know that Sam Rice came to the Washington club as a pitcher. He wasn't just the ordinary pitcher either, for he had considerable promise. However, he couldn't seem to get started. His ability to hit had been more impressive than his pitching.

A few weeks after the incident I have related the scene shifts to Detroit. It was perhaps ten minutes before the start of the game. I was sitting on the Detroit bench next to George Dauss, the crack pitcher of the Tigers.

At that moment Rice, on his way to the Washington bench, passed us. Perhaps you wonder what caused Sam Rice, the average pitcher, to develop into Sam Rice, the extraordinary outfielder. I will let Pitcher George Dauss explain.

Doubtful Credit.

As Sam walked by Dauss yelled at him:

"Say, Sam, didn't I make a great outfielder out of you?" Rice stopped and replied:

"I don't know whether to give you credit or slip it to the infielder who made the error that allowed you to come to bat."

"Tell the boys all about it, Sam, while I throw out my chest," said Dauss.

"All you fellows who have ever seen Dauss try to hit will appreciate what I am about to say," Sam started. "I was working against Dauss and having fairly good luck. It seemed that I was to win a game, when, with a man on third and two out, one of our infielders kicked an easy grounder, letting the tying run go over the plate. That error sent the game into extra innings. In the last of the twelfth, with a man on first, two down, and Dauss up, there seemed to be nothing to worry about. Unfortunately I pitched the ball just where Dauss was swinging. It went to the flagpole in center field, the runner on first scoring easily, ending the game.

Triple Shapes Career.

"That hit for three bases by Dauss shaped my career. As the winning run went over the plate I decided my days as a pitcher were ended. I planned to assert myself when I reached the clubhouse. Stepping inside, I sought Manager Griffith.

"'I am an outfielder or nothing after today,' was my greeting. He tried to argue me out of my decision, but to no avail. I never pitched another ball as a big leaguer. I have proved I was an outfielder if not a pitcher."

It is remarkable how some minor happening will change one's entire career, as did that three base hit by Dauss. Rice, however, has never regretted it.

FOR PLAYERS OF WHIST

by A. R. METCALFE

FORCING discards is very little understood except by experts. Working out double dummy problems is very good training for this particular branch of the game. The deal which follows was given to ten players, all of whom were well above the average, but the result was failure in every case.

The hands were as follows:

S.—K, 8, 6, 3.
H.—10, 9, 3, 2.
C.—A, Q, 9, 3.
D.—9.

S.—A, J, 10, 5.

S.—9, 2.
H.—8, 5.
C.—J, 10, 8, 7, 2.
D.—10, 7, 5, 2.

West dealt and bid one heart, which closed the bidding. North had the initial lead.

West secured a grand slam.

The play of the declarer at trick two was by no means the important feature of the deal.

It was necessary to plan the play of the entire deal at the beginning. It was easy to secure twelve tricks, but the grand slam depended on whether the declarer immediately led out every trump that he had.

This play forced north to a losing discard at trick eleven, which won the necessary trick required for the grand slam.

It was important for declarer to discard the queen of spades in dummy and keep a small spade, in case it developed that a finesse in that suit was advisable.

The ten players to whom the deal was submitted merely led enough trumps to secure all of those held by the adversaries, and this gave north the queen of spades at the finish.

THE writer watched a rubber during the last week, which was lost entirely on account of the trey of clubs.

In the first deal of the rubber north bid two hearts, which closed the bidding. East led the king of clubs from the following combination: A, K, 10, 5, and dummy put down the Q, 9, 7, 2 of clubs. West played the trey and the declarer the four.

East continued with the ace of clubs and lost the game, as the declarer trumped and afterwards obtained an important discard on the club queen.

The play of the trey of clubs by west should have told the leader that the declarer had one more club or none at all, and that it would be fatal to lead the second round of the suit.

The second game of the rubber was won by east and west.

In the third game the final bid was three spades by north. East again led the kind of clubs from the following combination: A, K, 9, 4, and dummy put down Q, J, 6, 2. West played the five and declarer the seven.

East stopped the club suit because the play of the ace would establish the queen-jack in dummy. He should have continued, on account of the absence of the trey on the first trick. It was possible, of course, that the declarer held the trey and was false carding.

But it was far more probable that west had started an echo and could trump the third round of the suit. Therefore, on account of the absence of the trey of clubs, east should have continued the suit, and this again would have saved the game.

The result of these two plays gave north and south the rubber, whereas the score should have been one game for east and west and none for north and south.

85 PER CENT IS HIGH COST OF "BABE" RUTH

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 4.—Southern association club owners have been notified by Messrs. Hutson and Ruppert, owners of the New York Yankees, that if the Yanks play in their parks during the spring the Yanks must get 85 per cent of the gate at each game; otherwise Babe Ruth will not put in an appearance at the park, or take part in the practice games.

Yankee scouts in the south arranging games say the Yanks will not play exhibitions where they are not given the 85 per cent, since the Boston Reds and New York Giants usually get 85 per cent for playing spring games.

Johnson Bros.' Pin Team Still Leads Chicago Meet

The first week of the annual tournament of the Chicago Bowling association finished last night at Petersen's alleys. Johnson Bros.' five show the way in the main event with a grand total of 2,893, which is sure to land them high in the prize money. They are followed by the Blouin-Brucks with 2,879. T. Retinger and Stemm are tied for first honors in the two man event with G. Kase and W. Lahn, each pair having a collection of 1,237 pins. Jimmy Stevens and L. Vaughan are next with 1,213. The poorest shooting is in the singles, where 642 is high, with G. Letzger, F. Bliss, and P. Bruck tied.

DELIBERATE PASS STILL A SORE SPOT WITH RABID FANS

BY I. E. SANBORN.

The nemesis of the intentional base on balls still pursueth, and demands by the fans for its abolition before another playing season, seem to be as numerous and insistent as in previous winters.

They are already rooting for Babe Ruth to break his own world's record of fifty-four home runs next year, and don't want the pitchers to be permitted to deprive the Tarzan of the green diamond of any chance to smash that record by passing him intentionally.

If accused of rooting for the New York Yankees to win the 1921 pennant, these fans indignantly deny it and defend themselves by declaring they want to see the Gotham club licked, but licked on the level, and they do not consider an intentional pass on the level. Strategy never did appeal to the average baseball fan, anyway, and the strategic base on balls least of all.

WOODS AND WATERS—By Larry St. John

DUCK HUNTING GOSSIP.

A READER who signs his letters "Green Wing" writes: "I have been a duck hunter for twenty years, and am considered a fair shot, but I have trouble in getting birds flying across my decoys from right to left. Do you think that this is due to faulty vision, that could be corrected by glasses? At first I blamed it on the drop and bend of my gun stock, but trying several guns shows the same trouble."

LARRY ST. JOHN.

The answer is easy, I think. A long time ago I had the same trouble, until an old market hunter with whom I was shooting told me how to correct it.

The trouble, Green Wing, is this. "When a bird crosses from left to right you swing with him and pull the trigger WHILE THE GUN IS SWINGING, which is correct, but when one crosses from right to left you swing, stop your gun, and then pull, the result being that the bird is quite a bit past the extreme spread of your shot pattern by the time the charge gets to where he was. This is a common fault, even with old shooters, and it accounts for the fact that nearly all misses on crossing birds are due to shooting behind them; one seldom leads such birds too far.

All this brings up the interesting question, "How far do you lead a crossing bird?" It depends on how far out from your blind the bird is, how fast he is going, and your particular style of shooting. Last fall I was shooting blue bills with an old timer who can shoot circles around me. But this day I was knocking 'em and he wasn't. Finally he asked, "How far are you leading 'em?"

"I'm swinging four feet ahead of them," I replied.

"Then I'm shooting 'way behind them," he said. From then on he brought them down with his customary regularity. Now, as a matter of fact, I was not holding four linear feet ahead of those birds. I was merely holding the distance that duck hunters call four feet when speaking about shooting ahead of crossing ducks.

"Green Wing" mentions glasses in his communication. They make wonderful shooting glasses these days, and no hunter should lay his gun away because of defective vision without looking into what modern opticians—or whatever fancy titles they sail under—have to offer. They work near miracles in making shooters out of men with pretty poor lamps.

Have you ever noticed a lone mallard drake coming into a stool of those profile, folding decoys. Gallant knight that he is, he throws discretion to the winds and sails majestically in. If you do not shoot you will see him get the surprise of his young life.

When he gets directly above the decoys he can no longer see them and he stretches his neck almost to the point of dislocation. Then he passes over and turns, when they again come into view. When he arrives they are all gone again. By now he may be ready to give up in disgust, but one plaintive little feminine "wren-n-k" on the call will bring him back.

"Painted ladies!" he will squawk, after looking them over. Then he makes his departure, a wiser and sadder duck—providing that you do not up and plaster him.

YALE BALL SQUAD WILL GO SOUTH IN SPRING TO TRAIN

New York, Dec. 4.—William Lauder, coach of the Yale baseball team, announced tonight that the Eli squad would do its spring training at Macon, Ga., next season. This decision follows a southern trip just completed by Capt. Peters and Trainer Walter Mace.

The team will go to Macon at the commencement of the Easter vacation, remaining throughout the holiday period. During its stay exhibition games will be played with big league teams.

The mayor of Macon offered the use of the city's ball park while the Yale team is there. This park was used by the Detroit Americans last year.

Red Sox Reduce Training Arrangement to 3 Weeks

Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.—The training season for the Red Sox in 1921 will be cut to three weeks instead of the customary month or six weeks, according to Manager Duffy.

AS TO BRIDGES, NEW YORK HAS BEATEN CHICAGO

But the Horn Is in Fairly Good Repair.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Chicago's "fixed assets in bridges, viaducts and tunnels" are given by the city controller in his latest report as $7,937,000. That excludes the Michigan avenue bridge and the Roosevelt road improvements now under way. These will add perhaps $11,000,000 more. The total indicates what Chicago has spent to span the river and its branches at more than 60 points.

New York sees a much greater economic value in free and convenient means of communication between Manhattan and the Bronx, the Jersey shore and Long Island.

Have You Heard Horn Blowing?

The total it has invested in bridges and bores is difficult to segregate in its system of accounting, but the aggregate exceeds $150,000,000.

The Michigan boulevard improvement, over which Chicago autoists are elated, cost $16,000,000, of which the bridge and approaches may be credited with $7,000,000. Another avenue of prospective pride is the revamped Roosevelt road which will cost $8,300,000, of which $4,500,000 will be chalked down against the bridge and long viaduct.

In four bridges alone New York has invested $88,000,000. These are the Brooklyn, Manhattan, Williamsburg, and the Queensboro. The first three are said to be the longest suspension bridges in the world and the Queensboro the second longest cantilever span.

A Study in Towers.

In Chicago from Madison street to Chicago avenue is one mile and the boulevard link is two blocks short of that length. The Brooklyn bridge has a channel span of 1,505 feet and a total length, excluding extensions, of 400 feet in excess of a mile. The Auditorium tower in Chicago is 270 feet high. That is eight feet short of being as tall as the towers of the Brooklyn bridge above high water. The footpath of the bridge is 135 feet above the water, which is only three feet short of the height of Rothschild's store in Chicago.

This as well as the other three span the East river between Manhattan and Brooklyn. The Manhattan bridge with a total length, including approaches, of 6,855 feet, has towers 322 feet above the mean high water mark and its original cost was $24,000,000. The Williamsburg bridge is credited with the longest channel span of any suspension bridge in the world.

It's a Fair Sized Bridge.

An idea of the Queensboro bridge is contained in the following advertisement of it:

"The sustaining strength of the bridge has been calculated for the upbearing of 250 rapid transit cars carrying 30,000 passengers, 300 trolley cars with 30,000 passengers, a congested traffic on the promenades of 55,000 persons and on the roadway of 100,000, making a total of 215,000 persons."

In addition New York has thirty-eight other bridges of which the westerners hear little. At present the bonded indebtedness of the city for bridges and approaches—which does not equal the total cost—is $110,382,000.

But these bridges are insufficient. The Interborough Rapid Transit has two tunnels—two bores for each—under the East river. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit has two more tunnels and the Pennsylvania railroad has two others. The cost of these transit tunnels was between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 each.

The city administration is advocating a tunnel connecting Staten island with Manhattan. New Jersey and New York state have started a vehicular tunnel between Jersey City and Manhattan. Its cost is estimated above $20,000,000.

There is now existing between the Jersey shore and Manhattan the two pairs of McAdoo tubes and the bores of the Pennsylvania tunnels for railroad trains.

Furthermore there are two tunnels for subway cars under the Harlem river. Others may have been overlooked in the haste of collecting information.

CONSTANCE CROONENBERGHS.

The junior class of Hyde Park High school held its election for officers yesterday. The winners were: Thomas Mulroy, president; Constance Croonenberghs, vice president; Alta Cundy, secretary, and Frank B. Woodruff, treasurer. The election was close and an unexpectedly large number of votes was cast. It was the first election any class but the graduating class has had in many years. Mr. Mulroy is one of the popular young men of the school. He was formerly manager of the soccer team and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mulroy of 1533 Marquette road.

BODMER AND MRS. CONROW MARRY IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—In the presence of their children by previous marriages, Amelie W. P. Conrow, one time society girl of New York, and Rudolph J. Bodmer, author and clubman, arrested at Chicago last week, were married here at 12:01 this morning, one minute after the former became free from her marriage to Robert W. Conrow, general sales manager of the Central Foundry Company of New York.

The Rev. Titus E. Davis, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian church, conducted the ring ceremony in the parsonage here. A number of Mrs. Bodmer's relatives were present and a few old friends, in addition to Miss Carol Bodmer, daughter of the groom, and Amelia and Willard Conrow, who are 11 and 8 years old.

The two children viewed the proceedings with interest. For the moment they forgot their fears in Chicago when their mother was sent to one jail and Bodmer to another, while strangers.

HYDE PARK TODAY TO MOBILIZE FOR WAR ON THIEVES

Citizens of Hyde Park who recently have been the victims of burglars have been asked to meet with Sidney Kahnweiler at his home, 5218 Ingleside avenue, this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, to discuss ways and means of protecting themselves.

There is only one policeman to every square mile of territory, Mr. Kahnweiler asserts, and the force is unable to cope with the situation.

"There have been twenty-five burglaries in the three square blocks in my immediate neighborhood during the last month," said Mr. Kahnweiler yesterday. "My home has been entered three times in the last eight weeks. It must be stopped. Since the police do not seem able to do it, we must take means to protect ourselves."

U. S. GETS WORST OF IT IN WORLD WIRES PARLEY

Suffers by Delay About German Cables.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Confirming THE TRIBUNE'S exclusive account of the work of the international communications conference, state department officials admitted today that there appears little prospect of the delegates reaching an agreement on the disposition of the German cables.

The failure to dispose of the German cables is a disadvantage to the United States, which is now deprived of the direct communication with northern Europe it enjoyed by means of the German cables, but no disadvantage to England, France, and Japan, which are in possession of the cables the permanent ownership of which they desire.

The United States has given France to understand that if she does not yield she will be denied the present American terminus of the former German cable the French are operating. Great Britain is willing to restore the American terminus of the cable she diverted to Halifax, but only on condition it remains in British hands.

Blocked at Yap Station.

The conference also has failed to reach an agreement on the principle proposed by the United States respecting the right of all nations to land cables on islands, irrespective of ownership, that are on account of their position natural landing places for cables, this principle affecting chiefly at the moment the island of Yap, which, if Japan accepts the mandate for it, would admit the United States to the same cable facilities there as Japan would possess.

Western Union Issues "Denial."

The Western Union today issued a denial that it is contributing to the throttling of radio development by refusal to receive messages for wireless transmission.

"Since the Western Union company opened its offices and lines for the receipt and transmission of wireless traffic to and from the United States in 1912 until Jan. 1, 1920, when its contract with the Marconi company expired, it has offered the radio corporation [the successor of the Marconi company] the unrestricted use of its entire land line facilities in the collection and distribution of wireless traffic," the statement says.

MEET ON FURLOUGH, WRITE DURING WAR, WILL WED MONDAY

Miss Ardine Vack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Vack of 817 Grove avenue, Oak Park, met Lieut. Adrian Le Clair of the medical corps during his first furlough from a training camp in Texas. Before going overseas Lieut. Le Clair, who is a son of A. J. Le Clair, a contractor at 4048 Van Buren street, promised to write to her. He did. Following his discharge from the army the former lieutenant continued the friendship, which developed through the war correspondence. They will be married tomorrow in Ascension church.

2 SUSPECTS HELD FOR ROBBING AND KILLING FURRIER

Charles Anderson and Thomas Jackson, both colored, who were arrested yesterday, are suspected by the police of being the slayers of Herman Krockner, a furrier at 320 East Thirty-fifth street, who was shot by robbers last Wednesday. They are also suspected of being the assailants of Detective Sergeant James Walsh of the South Clark street station, who was shot at a polling place last election day.

The Negroes were traced to a colored rooming house at 636 East Thirty-eighth street after children had seen them robbing the cleaning and dyeing place of Maurice Eirnbaum at 3820 Indiana avenue.

The house was surrounded and the the police, under Lieut. Michael Lee and Sergt. Michael Lehart, broke down the door. In a room they found the two men in company with Benjamin Brooks and his wife, Gertrude, also Negroes. Part of the loot of the Eirnbaum robbery, $400 and $650 worth of furs, was recovered. Anderson and Jackson were armed with two revolvers, but they made no fight.

Both deny any knowledge of the killing of Krockner or the shooting of Walsh, but the police declare they have evidence connecting them with the crime.

FEUDISM BLENDS WITH UNIONISM IN WEST VIRGINIA

Miner War Characterized by Many Killings.

Williamson, W. Va., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Although the differences between the operators and the striking miners in the Mingo county coal fields appear to be as far from a peaceful settlement as ever, no one has died with his boots on hereabouts in the last six days.

It will be a week tomorrow morning since 500 picked men from the 19th United States infantry, commanded by Col. Herman Hall, marched into this little town, took possession of the county court house and the town hall and established what Col. Hall characterized as "military control."

The miners away back in March began to organize. The operators declared they would have nothing to do with the union and began to discharge such of their workers as had joined the locals, and the war was on.

Representatives of the striking miners ever since the trouble began have been anxious to have the operators sit down and discuss differences across a table. The operators, on the other hand, have held to their contention that there is nothing to negotiate, and there the matter stands.

Nerves Being Restored.

A week without bloodshed, almost without violence, has done a great deal toward restoring the equilibrium of nerves which had been on edge all through the spring and summer while the contending forces were carrying on guerilla warfare on the wooded hills that surround this little town.

In those months there were some twenty murders in Mingo county. Wane H. Bronson, the prosecuting attorney, places the number directly traceable to the industrial war at sixteen. Twenty-three men were indicted for murder in the first degree by an extraordinary grand jury in June. Five have been indicted subsequently. Four men are now in jail here under a murder charge.

A special extraordinary grand jury will convene here next week.

Military Restores Order.

The present military occupation is the second. The first was established in August after the state police and local authorities had proved helpless. The troops then succeeded, as has the present force, in restoring order to an extent that lulled local authorities into a belief that the federal force might be withdrawn. The "evacuation" of Williamson occurred on Nov. 3, the day following the election.

The most serious outbreak in this district occurred on May 19 at Matewan, a mining center about ten miles from here. In a pitched battle Mayor C. C. Testerman of Matewan, seven private detectives in the employ of the operators, and some innocent bystanders were killed. Twenty-three persons have been indicted in connection with these murders, including Sid Hatfield, chief of police of Matewan.

Typical Mountain Feudism.

The murder of Ance Hatfield, hotel proprietor, followed the indictment of Sid Hatfield and the other twenty-two for their alleged share in the shooting of the eleven. Ance Hatfield was an eyewitness of the affray and one of the most important witnesses to be heard by the grand jury. He was shot one evening late in July as he was sitting in front of his hotel.

Sid Hatfield himself and Talt, Edward, and Hallie Chambers, three brothers, have been indicted for the shooting. The indictments pending against Chief of Police Hatfield do not appear to have affected his standing in the community. Recently he married the wife of Mayor Testerman, who was shot down by his side on the night of the first killing. On election day the people gave him a vote of confidence by electing him constable.

HE DOESN'T ENVY LOT OF REPORTER; HE'S J. P. MORGAN

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—J. P. Morgan, who arrived on the White Star liner Celtic, was interviewed by a reporter. The interview follows:

Reporter—Good morning, Mr. Morgan. What do you think of the European situation?

Mr. Morgan—I haven't a thing to say. Are you a newspaper man?

Reporter—Yes.

Mr. Morgan—Well, I'm sorry for you. I don't think I'd like to be a newspaper man.

Reporter—Well, I'd rather be a banker myself.

Mr. Morgan—Ha, ha! I guess there may be something in that. No, my boy, I really have nothing to say. I'll be in my office later if any one wants to see me.

Then Mr. Morgan resumed puffing at his big black pipe.

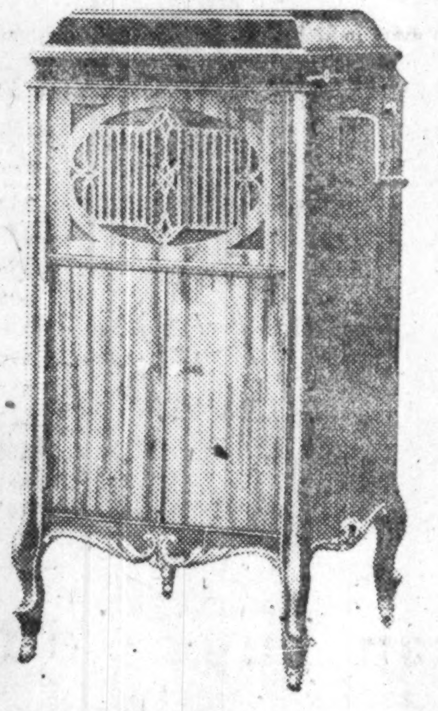
Select Your Brunswick Now to Insure Christmas Delivery

The Secret of a Wonderful Tone

The full, mellow tones of The Brunswick which delight the musician and astonish the scientist, are partly due to the all-wood construction of the Brunswick Oval Tone Amplifier, or tone chamber, and to its shape, an oval, slightly flattened at the top. It is built of resonant wood, as light and tight as a drum. And the "throat" is also of wood, right up to the deck of the phonograph, eliminating metallic sounds.



All phonographs in one

A Brunswick enables you to select your records from the record libraries of the world, for The Brunswick, by reason of its composite reproducer, called the Ultona, plays every type of record made, whether the steel needle, the diamond or sapphire point are required. And this without the use of attachments.

The value of the counter-balance weight

The Brunswick reproducer, by reason of its counter-balance weight, makes the needle ride in the record groove with just the exact weight required for each type of record, lessening surface noises.

There is a Brunswick dealer in your neighborhood. (See his name below.) Ask him to play your favorite selections on any make of record you choose. Also ask to hear Brunswick Records, which can be played on any phonographs using steel, fibre or semi-permanent needles.

Housewives—Here's Rest!

ON your feet all day—hurrying busily from room to room—my, how tired and "achy" your feet are by night!

Know what causes the trouble? It's not your feet, it's the shoes you're wearing.

Scores of housewives come to us with the same complaint. We suggest they try Educator Shoes.

The best proof that Educators satisfy is that the same women come back and ask for another pair of Educators.

Here's the reason: The Educator is shaped to fit feet naturally, with plenty of room to "let the feet grow as they should"—free from corns, bunions, callouses, and ingrowing nails.

They're neat and good-looking, too, not freakish. Let us fit your feet with a pair of Educators. You'll decide then to get them for the whole family.

ILLWORK PACT ITHUNIONCOSTS ENTER MILLIONS

dds to Building Price; nant Is the Goat.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

The rent payer is a lovely Angora. He is the goat for certain practices in the building industry which contractors say must be mopped out before activities can revive to a state of "normalcy." For example:

Between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000 is piled on the total rent bill of Chicago, in an ordinary year, by a restriction against the use of doors, windows, and other millwork not bearing the union stamp. This is through the famous section 3 in the joint agreement between the Carpenter Contractors' association and the carpenters' executive council, effective June 1, 1918, to May 31, 1921. It has caused much protest and complaint in the trade, and it reads as follows:

"There shall be no restrictions against the use of any manufactured material except nonunion and prison made. This shall not apply to machine made flooring, ceiling, or ceiling partition, planed lumber, timber, or hardware of any kind."

Bars Nearby Factories.

It has operated to freeze out of the Chicago market the products of factories at Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Rock Island, Muscatine, Dubuque, Wausau, and other cities where sash and door plants are operated on the "open shop."

In these centers conditions tend to make operating costs lower—real estate is lower, homes with gardens are easier to acquire, open spots are easier of access, transportation is less of a problem, and wages are lower than in the big cities, although the scale of comfort and of living is as high.

Yet articles manufactured by American workmen in these smaller communities are denied access to Chicago. Several Oshkosh houses have closed down their Chicago yards and offices.

Even in a most ordinary year, the Chicago mills cannot supply the demand. If the Chinese wall policy were legal, which it is not, it would simply give the Chicago mills a monopoly in a market which they cannot fill.

"Slipped Over," Contractors Say.

The contractors say the article was slipped over on them in 1918 by a combination of Chicago mill men with leaders of the organized carpenters. They declare its effect has been to mace the building public. Yesterday an official of the association asserted that when negotiations for the next agreement start in January, the restrictions will be thrown overboard first thing.

The rank and file of the carpenters, too, are said to be against the restriction, for it gets the unions nothing while tending to restrict the building business.

While it is there, however, the section has given the Chicago millmen leverage to pry prices up. Large builders and contractors estimate that it has served to add 30 or 40 per cent to prices of millwork in buildings.

Every time a window goes in or a door, it means an extra little tax on the rent payer, and conservative builders estimate in a year of building at ordinary speed, the toll would run between $3,000,000 and $5,000,000.

Here's a Trick of the Trade.

"And that's only half the story," said one prominent builder yesterday. "Some Oshkosh stuff has to come in because Chicago mill capacity cannot fill the bill. This stuff from outside is then stamped 'union made' by somebody, and the price is boosted. In this dull season this is not done, but when things are brisk the rubber stamp is kept busy.

"Practices such as these have made the building public lose confidence in the industry. The carpenters are beginning to discover that some group of men has been playing them for suckers, while the carpenter contractors woke up long ago to how they were being stung."

Test Suit in Courts.

The restriction is being fought in the courts. Anderson & Lind, an open shop mill in Chicago, has a bill pending in the Superior court which is expected to come to final hearing this month. The mill has been operating under protection of an injunction.

Meanwhile the public pays the tribute. If windows and sashes and doors and cabinet work boosted an extra 30 or 40 per cent by reason of section 3, go into an apartment building, the tenants get it in the form of rent. If the extra tax stuff goes into a factory, it comes out in the price of the product. If it goes into a store building it is passed on in rent to the merchant. And who pays the rent of the grocer and the butcher? The customer who buys provisions and meats. It's all in the bill somewhere.

Baby Choked to Death by Tack Lodged in His Throat

John Olenstny, 11 months old, son of Mrs. Carolina Olenstny, 3822 South Hermitage avenue, choked to death yesterday when a tack he had picked up from the floor became lodged in his throat. A physician was unable to dislodge the tack.

They must be men of the highest type, who have a successful record behind them, and are happiest when tackling a hard proposition. Successful applicants will be taught the business and will work on a salary and commission basis. Give full details regarding yourself by letter.

KILLS WIFE AS HE SLEEPS, THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

Man, Crazed by Want, Uses Razor.

For two months John Slepicka, a tailor of Berwyn, had fought desperately to make ends meet in his little home. His wife, Marie, and their 13 month old baby, Otto, had begun to show the effects of lack of sufficient food. It preyed on his mind. He laid abed nights, staring at the ceiling of his home at 1232 Highland avenue, trying to figure out ways of meeting the bills, bills.

MRS. MARIE SLEPICKA.

OTTO SLEPICKA.

JOHN SLEPICKA.

At last his nerves gave way and he walked the floor at night in his sleep. His brother had ended his life with a razor, slashing his neck a year ago. Slepicka feared for his sanity. He placed himself under a physician's care.

Late Friday night his fears were realized. He woke from a dazed sleep to find that he had slashed his wife's throat as she lay by his side. She staggered into the kitchen. In horror he followed her, and, as she died there, cut his own throat and expired, his arms about her.

That is the story of the murder and suicide as the police reconstruct it after an investigation which began early yesterday morning when Mrs. Wagner, mother of the slain woman, found the bodies and called them.

A coroner's jury later returned a verdict of murder and suicide.

SUNDAY EVENING CLUB ADDS FEATURE.
By special arrangement, an added feature of the early meeting of the Sunday Evening club, beginning at 7 o'clock tonight, will be college songs by the Ohio Wesleyan Glee club, composed of twenty-nine members and the quartet. Clifford W. Barnes will give a short talk on "Stories of the Early Church."

HIGH TENSION OF INDUSTRY IS BEING RELAXED

New York, Dec. 4.—Official reports from forty-five states, representing 95 per cent of the nation's population, reveal a widespread industrial depression, in spite of which no serious or general unemployment has as yet developed, the national industrial conference board declared in a statement made public here tonight.

The Changing World.

The board said the nation's industries are "emerging from a period of superproduction," while "the entire agricultural work of the country has been carried on short handed and farmers having been going without all year round help, which most of them sorely need."

"The present industrial depression has cut out most of the overtime that has been the familiar concomitant of industrial work in the war and post-war year," the report said, "and short time is in evidence in many industries. Complete shutdowns have occurred and are occurring, but not in great numbers, nor for any great length of time."

The Country by Sections.

In New England the unemployment picture is darkest, the board reported; in the other eastern states employment is decreasing; unemployment is growing in the south; the middle west reported severe depression in automobile centers, with other conditions nearly normal, while on the Pacific coast less unemployment is reported.

Closing its statement, the board said: "Some few industries and the districts dependent on them are suffering from considerable unemployment, which gradually is increasing. In other districts conditions are normal or supernormal. In some there is an actual shortage of labor. A resumption of industrial activity probably would show a shortage of labor throughout the country."

Reserve Board's Views.

No hope of early relief from business depression is held out in the monthly statement of the Federal Reserve board tonight. The board reported a "consumers' strike" and "public determination to wait for prices to come down." "Declines in buying power" also was noted.

The board said it was impossible "to estimate the extent to which the completion of readjustment may involve further slackening of employment and increase of commercial embarrassment."

Prices for women's wear have not declined along with reductions of 35 to 50 per cent in men's clothing, the board said, as there is no surplus stock.

700 Pound Safe Stolen; Hole Chiseled; $200 Loot

A 700 pound safe containing more than $200 was stolen from a filling station of the Sinclair Refining company at Oak Park avenue and Madison street, Oak Park, early yesterday. It was found later on the prairie of West Sixteenth street and Desplaines avenue. A hole about a foot square had been chiseled out of the bottom of the safe.

WARD MAPPERS GET JOLT; MAYOR HAS OWN SCHEME

Mayor Thompson dropped his mailed fist on the city council's plans to redistrict the city into fifty wards yesterday and declared that he will submit, either to the council or directly to the voters, a redistricting plan of his own.

Whichever method the mayor decides on will probably mean that two plans, one approved by the mayor and the other by the majority of the city council, will be submitted to the voters next spring. As the fifty ward law prohibits an aldermanic election in 1922, and directs that one alderman be elected from each ward in 1921, the city council will probably consist of only thirty-five aldermen in 1923, when the terms of the thirty-five "holdovers" have expired.

Bombshell to Council Mappers.

The mayor's decision created consternation in the ranks of the fifty aldermen who have signed up to support the set of ward lines prepared by the redistricting committee which planned to submit its report to the city council next Wednesday.

At least a dozen of the fifty are expected to desert the committee out of respect for the mayor's political power.

Mayor Explains Position.

Mayor Thompson explained his decision as follows:

"Everyone who comes to see about the plan prepared by the aldermen seems to have but one idea in mind. One will say that this comitteeman or that alderman is taken care of or has not been taken care of. Another will say, 'Well, it satisfied so many of our fellows and so many of the other fellows.'

"No one person out of the whole lot has mentioned the voters. None has said whether the committee's plan is fair or unfair. I am working on a plan which will not gerrymander the lines to take care of this or that politician. It will take care of the people."

The subcommittee on redistricting has been working night and day for four weeks. Mayor Thompson has announced himself in favor of "cosmopolitan" wards. He is opposed to the drawing of ward boundaries on racial lines. He has put the actual work of forming the ward lines along his ideas in the hands of Assistant Corporation Counsel G. A. Dahlberg.

SMALLPOX SCARE BARS 400 FROM TWO SCHOOLS

Efforts to prevent an epidemic of smallpox in the neighborhoods of the Swift elementary school at 5900 Winthrop avenue, and the Senn High school at 5900 Glenwood avenue resulted yesterday in orders being issued for the exclusion of more than 400 pupils whose parents have refused to permit them to be vaccinated.

More than 200 others were excluded Friday for a period of eighteen days after it was learned that three children had attended the Swift school while suffering from the disease and one had been at the Senn. All four are children of C. G. Cook of 6160 Winthrop avenue.

Following the issuance of the exclusion order, Health Commissioner Robertson ordered the vaccination of all other pupils in both schools to begin at once. A score of physicians will begin the work tomorrow morning.

"Most of the parents in the Edgewater district objected to the order because of religious scruples," said Ernest E. Cole, first assistant superintendent of schools. "When there is no disease vaccination is not compulsory. However, when danger of an epidemic occurs the parents of pupils can take their choice between having their children vaccinated or keeping them at home during the period of incubation."

The teachers in both schools will also be vaccinated.

REINBERG ASKS BOOST IN RATE OF COUNTY TAX

$2,318,800 Deficit Seen Otherwise.

"Cook county has reached the end of its financial rope," is the announcement made by Peter Reinberg, president of the county board, in his annual report, made public yesterday. He suggests an increase in the county tax rate to 50 cents as the only remedy.

PETER REINBERG.

He sums up the conditions of the county finances as follows:

"To be specific, the salaries in 1920 were $6,623,739.35; general supplies, $1,094,000; furniture and repairs, $113,500; light, heat, and power, $285,000; office supplies and expenses, $158,300; operating expenses, $28,100, and for sundry funds, $2,341,945.40, making a grand total of $10,645,184.75. Should the same amount be appropriated for 1921 there would be a resultant deficit of $2,318,805.13.

Slap for "Con Con."

"The only hope in the circumstances, other than an increase in the tax rate, apparently, is that the constitutional convention may remedy Cook county's years-long financial ills. But that hope seems doomed. Thus far its members, despite much oratory, have not turned a wheel tending to help us."

After reviewing the possibility of a bond issue to wipe out the accumulating deficit and increasing the fees charged by county officials, the county board president sums up:

"It would seem that the practical course left open is again to petition the state legislature for an increase in the tax rate. If that course is approved we should at once prepare to demand such relief at the forthcoming session of that lawmaking body. Why is Cook county not entitled to an actual tax rate of 50 cents, such as every other county in the state is permitted?"

Charitable Work Told.

In a brief summary of the county's activities during the fiscal year Mr. Reinberg shows:

Assistance extended to nearly 195,000 poor and afflicted, more than 40,000 of whom, being ill, were housed, fed, and given medical or surgical care.

Food relief issued to 5,300 families at a cost of $228,000 for foodstuffs alone. Coal and clothing were provided for other thousands.

Nearly $450,000 paid out in mothers' pensions, 1,070 families with 3,458 children receiving such aid in October, said to be a typical month.

Approximately $45,000 paid out in pensions to indigent and worthy blind.

More than 4,250 mental sufferers cared for at the psychopathic hospital, 17 per cent of whom recovered completely or were improved by proper care.

Despite strikes, car shortages, embargoes, and high prices, twenty-four miles of paved highway contracted for, of which ten miles were completed. In addition work was finished on fourteen miles of roads, which were incompleted in 1919. Surveys made for construction of seventy-one miles at a cost of $3,000,000.

Avoids Punishment by Reinstating Fired Juror

Harry Meyering, general freight and passenger agent for the Graham and Morton Transportation company, is no longer facing punishment for contempt of court at the hands of Judge Brothers. He accepted the jurists' advice and reëmployed A. Kronberg of 7901 Lowe avenue, who had complained that he discharged him because he had been absent from work on account of jury service.

KEWANEE Burns Any Coal

This soft, modest, unassuming coal was long the hoi polloi of the Coal Family. It wasn't recognized in the best circles. It was too cheap for one thing and rawther soiled for another. It smoked like a dock-walloper. It was always an outcast and an outlaw until recently.

Today it is one of the leaders in high coal society. Why? Not because it has changed its ways but because the Kewanee Smokeless Boiler has educated it and taught it how to burn like a gentleman—has shown it how to furnish as much heat as the Aristocratic Anthracite, at a great deal less cost and in accordance with the provisions of the best iron-bound, rock-ribbed coal ordinance on the statoots.

The solution of the coal problem has always been in the boiler. Some boilers are far too dainty to burn anything but anthracite and they were built with only that idea in mind. Anything that is dainty and exclusive, costs money and is necessarily limited in its scope. But the Kewanee has always been democratic in its tastes. And it will burn run-of-mine soft coal with as much grace and refinement as the rawther delicate anthracite.

Figure out what the Kewanee Boiler will save you if you install it in place of the anthracite-burning instrument. Figure out what anthracite costs and what run-of-mine soft coal costs. You save the difference, and the difference will buy a gob of liberty bonds. Hard coal is scarcer'n hootch. Soft coal isn't scarce at all and it isn't costly. No one needs a certified public accountant to figure the result.

The Kewanee Smokeless Boiler is the Boiler of the hour and its use will save in profits what you are now sending up the chimney in smoke. Write, telegraph or telephone. The Old Man Behind the Boiler is on the job every hour of the working days—and sometimes on Sundays.

For heating Schools, Apartments, Churches, Hotels, Factories, Garages, Large Residences, Theatres, etc.

"There is a demand for fire insurance—one of the safest and most profitable lines of business in the world—which our home companies cannot supply."

If you were considering a tangible commodity for which there was a demand much greater than the supply, you would call it a good business proposition; one offering real possibilities of profit. That is a law of trade.

Fire insurance is a commodity, though not a tangible one. It is as much a necessity as a place in which to transact business or employes to perform the labor of office and workshop.

The home supply of this great commercial commodity is not equal to the demand for it. The supply has been much less ever since our severed relations with Germany, Austria and Bulgaria threw on the American insurance market the millions of fire and marine insurance which companies in those countries had been carrying on industries of all kinds in the United States.

The supply was further reduced when conditions in Russia became so chaotic that Russian insurance business in this country was left open to American companies.

Because American insurance corporations have been unable to absorb all of this fine business, there is a place for—and business waiting for—more domestic organizations.

The Chicago Fire and Marine Insurance Company
Offers 100,000 Shares at $25 per Share

This company is organizing to be financially equipped as follows:

Capital $1,000,000.00
Net Surplus . . . 1,125,000.00

The Chicago Fire and Marine Insurance Company is being organized under the laws of Illinois and subject to the strict regulations of this state. We expect to be ready soon to take on a portion of the premiums that are simply waiting to be placed in accordance with insurance regulations.

This shortage of insurance facilities exists because all insurance companies are permitted to carry insurance on their books only in strict proportion to their financial strength, just as banks are permitted to lend only fixed amounts according to their capital. If an insurance company obtains business in excess of what it can carry, it must turn such risks over to other companies that are not up to their maximum. This wise safeguard thrown around the business has resulted in the practice of reinsuring by companies writing the business with companies in position to carry it.

A large amount of this reinsurance is available at the present time. The Chicago Fire and Marine Insurance Company expects to write its share of it soon after beginning operations.

A Large Volume of Business Is Immediately Available.

from companies having large agency plants, which is a proven profitable business. Available records show that reinsurance is one of the most profitable of all lines of insurance.

In addition to writing reinsurance, we will also do our share of direct business, which will be confined to the larger cities of the United States. Official records of all state insurance departments, dating back to the time when insurance first became subject to strict legal regulation, show that fire insurance has always been one of the most profitable as well as one of the safest lines of business in the world.

We have these records and will gladly submit them to persons interested in this opportunity to make money by means of such an investment.

You are invited to share in the lucrative returns which the organizers of this company believe will come to the purchasers of this stock.

Organizing Under State Supervision—A Safe Investment

Illinois has on its statute books an insurance code designed to fully protect those who invest in Fire Insurance stock companies as well as those who suffer losses by fire. All the provisions of these laws will be thrown around your investment. This company will operate under a charter received from the state, its activities will be subject to the constant regulation and supervision of the insurance department, and both its capital and surplus will be invested in securities of such a character as to provide safety for the investments of stockholders while producing profits.

Complete information concerning this proposition will be furnished on request. Fill out the coupon in this advertisement and mail it today. Our full working plan, with abundant proof of every statement made here, will be given to you.

JUDGE M'GOORTY QUITS BENCH TO PRACTICE LAW

Sends His Resignation to Lowden.

JUDGE JOHN P. McGOORTY.

Judge John P. McGoorty will conclude nine years of service on the bench in the Circuit court of Cook county on Dec. 31. He tendered his resignation yesterday to Gov. Lowden.

The judge announced he intended to resume the practice of law as senior member of the firm of McGoorty, Silber, Isaacs, Silber & Woley, and explained his resignation was due to financial reasons.

"I really have six reasons for resigning," he said. "They are my six children."

Letter to Lowden.

In his letter to Gov. Lowden he said:

"It is with extreme reluctance and with profound appreciation of the honor conferred upon and the confidence reposed in me by the people of this county in twice electing me to this high office.

"During my nine years on the bench, including two years which I spent as associate justice of the Appellate court, there has grown up an association which I find it difficult to sever.

"It has been a pleasure indeed to be a co-worker with judges whose devotion to duty has conformed to the finest traditions of the Circuit court of Cook county and not the less to have the cordial support of the lawyers of Chicago, which has been shown to me during all of my service on the bench."

"I am to resume the general practice of law. Only an impelling sense of duty to those dependent upon me leads me voluntarily to relinquish the office of judge of the Circuit court, which I have found so congenial."

Partner College Pal.

Judge McGoorty also explained that Mr. Isaacs of the law firm which he will enter was his law partner more than a quarter of a century ago.

"He has been my friend since our freshman days in college, and my entry into the firm will seem like returning home," he said.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

FATE OF SKOKIE VALLEY AGAIN IN THE BALANCE

Forest Preserve May Save It for Public.

BY AL CHASE.

Saving the Skokie valley—one of Chicago's greatest natural beauty spots—developed yesterday into a neck and neck race between private interests, who want to get control of its 2,000 acres for money making purposes, and the forest preserve district, which would make it a perpetual public playground. The goal may be reached on Tuesday, when action is expected to be taken by the real estate committee of the forest preserve board which will permanently settle the future of Skokie in favor of the public.

Meanwhile the private interests are planning to present a petition to Judge Righeimer this week asking for the creation of a drainage district. This would prevent for all time the use of the valley for a public preserve.

Same Interests Seek Land.

Back of the drainage project are the same interests hat brought about a storm of protest in 1918 when they tried to get through the legislature a bill creating a drainage district. William D. Washburn, an attorney, living in Evanston, owner of fifty acres of Skokie land, is the head of the group. The others are Allen Mills, a Glencoe attorney, owner of 210 acres; Llewellyn Lloyd, an attorney living in Du Page county, owner of 268 Skokie acres, and Mr. Peaster, who owns ten acres.

Chief Forester Ransom Kennicott of the forest preserve district states that a seventy foot drainage ditch, as proposed, would lower the water table in the summer time and seriously affect the vigor of trees and shrubs throughout the Skokie. It would, of course, raise land values tremendously and result, in a few years, in a valley full of truck gardens, factories, and residence subdivisions and the loss forever of 2,000 acres of parkland to the public. Experts say Skokie land would then be worth from $2,500 to $3,000 an acre.

Delay Causes Wonder.

Last June a subcommittee of the real estate committee of the forest preserve district recommended the purchase of the 2,090 acre Skokie track. Dwight H. Perkins was chairman of the subcommittee. The other members were William S. Elliott, Hubert W. Butler, Emmett J. Flavin, Ransom Kennicott, and W. D. Washburn. The forest preserve board in August adopted the recommendation and added the words "at a resaonable price." This was declared to be an average of $590 an acre.

As a good deal of the Skokie land can still be secured at as low as $200 an acre, the Chicagoans who are trying to get the forest preserve to take some definite action are beginning to wonder why the needed land isn't bought before its value is above "a reasonable price."

Neck and Neck Race.

"We are hopeful that action will be taken Tuesday which will settle the question about saving the Skokie," said Mrs. Susan Hibbard, widow of William Hibbard Jr., one of the originators of and hardest workers in preserving the Skokie for the public. "It's a neck and neck race and the forest preserve commissioners will have to act promptly or private interests will get control of the entire tract."

Mrs. Hibbard holds 140 acres of Skokie land bought by Mr. Hibbard which she has offered to the forest preserve at whatever figure they call reasonable. It was bought by Mr. Hibbard to save it from private use and with the intention of having it reach the public through the forest preserve district. He died last spring before he realized his dream of seeing the Skokie saved as one of Chicago's great beauty spots. But Mrs. Hibbard believes this will be done now if action is taken promptly.

A. J. Stickels, Theatrical and Realty Man, Dies

Albert J. Stickels, 52 years old, a Chicago real estate dealer for several years, died yesterday at the home of his uncle, Harry Keen of Streator, Ill., according to word received by Attorney Frank J. Hogan, 516 Ashland block.

Mr. Hogan said he had sent Mr. Stickels to Texas and Missouri about four weeks ago to assist in closing the $1,000,000 estate of Mrs. Caroline M. Jones of Henry, Ill. The work had been completed and Mr. Stickels was returning to Chicago when he caught cold and stopped off at Streator. The cold is believed to have developed into pneumonia. Mr. Stickels lived for years at the Palmer house, and formerly was a theatrical producer.

Grace Hill Corning Buys Residence in Oak Park

A winter view of the Skokie valley, which has 2,090 acres stretched along the north shore for four and a half miles, a mile and a half from the lake, with an average width of three-quarters of a mile. It has been sometimes miscalled the Skokie "marshes" because the Skokie river brings its waters from beyond Lake Bluff each spring in such volume as to overflow its banks. At that time a beautiful 700 acre lake is formed and remains as such for about two weeks. During the remainder of the year the valley is absolutely dry for pedestrians. The remaining 1,390 acres make up the margins of the valley and are never overflown. About 200 acres of timber are scattered along the high land. It is one mile from six Northwestern stations and twenty interurban stations.

TWO ADDITIONS TO BROADWAY'S AUTOMOBILE ROW

Work is to start at once on the first of a chain of eighteen automobile cleaning stations at 6048-52 Broadway, to cost $50,000, to be erected by the National Automobile Laundries company and to be operated under the designation of the Nalco system.

It is claimed that a car can be cleaned, washed, and polished in twenty-five minutes. Bearing out this claim, a luxurious waiting room is to be maintained for patrons. The business will be devoted exclusively to cleaning. No accessories, tires, grease, or supplies will be sold. No repair work will be done.

Paul Hansen is architect. Raymond G. Hancock is president of the company; Theodore H. Krumwiede, treasurer; and Harold L. Dahl, vice president and secretary.

Mr. Dahl has just bought from Sarah E. McLaughlin the 50x235 at 5031-33 Broadway, with old improvements, for a reported $30,000. Work already has started on a $95,000 motor showroom and service station from plans by Architect Paul Hansen. G. W. Moore of V. J. Curto & Co. was broker.

Prairie Ave. Residence to Be Convalescents' Home

The Baron Hirsch Woman's club, which maintains a rest cottage for convalescents at 3127 Calumet avenue, has purchased the twenty room residence at 2637 Prairie avenue, lot 66x181, from Ernest A. Hamill, chairman of the board of directors of the Corn Exchange National bank, for an indicated $21,000. The club will take possession in about three weeks. There will be accommodations for fifty men and boys from various hospitals.

BUILD BIG HOOSIER POWER PLANT.

The Indiana Power company, a subsidiary of the Utilities Development corporation of Chicago, is building a $2,000,000 addition to its power plant at Edwardsport, Ind. The total cost of the plant will be $6,000,000, and it will be, it is claimed, the largest power plant in the Hoosier state. The company serves a population of 200,000 and furnishes power and light for the southern Indiana coal mines and the east central Illinois oil fields.

WOMAN TO BE SPEAKER AT BANQUET OF COOK COUNTY REALTY BOARD

For the first time in the history of real estate board banquets, according to a veteran relator who has attended them all, a woman is going to sit at the speakers' table. Last year the Cook County Real Estate board tried an innovation at its annual banquet by inviting the wives of members. It was an impressive success.

MRS. FLETCHER DOBYNS. [Chambers Photo.]

This year it is going to improve on it by having Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns speak on "How Women Can Assist in City Planning." Mrs. Dobyns will be the only woman speaker. Donald Richberg will be toastmaster. The Rev. Russell Boynton, pastor of the Bryn Mawr Community church, will pronounce the invocation.

After President A. W. Stanmeyer has delivered his annual message, Dr. David Kinley, president of the University of Illinois, will speak on "Our State University." State's Attorney Robert E. Crow will talk on matters of local importance, and John S. Fletcher, vice president of the Fort Dearborn National bank will discuss "Signs of the Times."

Charles Ringer and his banquet committee have arranged a vaudeville program with a jazz band to keep things moving. The banquet will be held next Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock in the ballroom of the Hotel La Salle. Arrangements have been made for use of the Red room for the overflow. The sale of tickets is going faster than at any previous banquet.

FACTORY CHANGES HANDS.

Andrew H. Weber of A. H. Weber & Co., groceries, 4605 Wentworth avenue, has purchased the two story brick factory building, 94x92, at 2015-25 Emerson avenue from the North American Waxed Paper company for $30,000 and will occupy it.

ROLLS-ROYCE TO OPEN BOUL. MICH. AUTO SHOWROOM

Cheerio! Motor row at last is going to have a Rolls-Royce showroom. Yesterday the Rolls-Royce Company of America signed a lease with the Standard Oil Company of Indiana for the 25x90 corner shop in the Standard Oil building at Ninth and Michigan for a term rental of approximately $100,000, beginning Dec. 15. The company, which has an American factory in Springfield, Mass., will have its Chicago offices and showrooms in the space leased.

Uses $30,000 Bonus to Fix Up New State Street Shop

When the Hilton Clothing company leased the old Hub building it paid the Feltman & Curme Shoe Stores company, one of the tenants, a cash bonus of $30,000 to cancel its lease next May.

Yesterday the Feltman & Curme concern leased from Jones, Linick & Schaefer, through E. F. Keebler & Co., their agents, the four story building, 25x100, at 308 South State street, just south of the Maurice L. Rothschild building, for fifteen years from May 1, 1921, at a rental which, with taxes and insurance, will aggregate $380,000 for the term.

The lessees will spend their $30,000 bonus in decorating and remodeling their new quarters. The concern now has thirty-five retail shoe stores throughout the country, with eight in Chicago. Their first local lease was through Keebler & Co. in the old Hub building, for which they now pay $20,000 annually. The Hilton company wanted $60,000 a year for a renewal.

Railroad Official Buys Kenwood House, $35,000

One of the most attractive residence properties in the Kenwood district, the twelve room colonial brick house at 4833 Woodlawn avenue, has been sold by the George T. Greeley estate to Robert W. Bell, superintendent of motive power of the Illinois Central railroad, for a reported $35,000. The lot is 55x248. James J. Parker & Co. and Alex Friend & Co. were brokers.

UPPER MICHIGAN TO TRY GOTHAM GOLD MEDAL PLAN

Prizes to Be Awarded for Best Buildings.

One of the last letters written by Walter D. Moody, managing director of the Chicago plan commission, who died on Sunday, Nov. 21, was the following to Frederick M. Bowes of the Bowes Realty company, and secretary of the North Central association:

My dear Mr. Bowes: I was pleased to note in The Tribune of Sunday, Nov. 14, the story by Al Chase, entitled "Upper Michigan Avenue—Newest Name for Link," in which he quoted you as saying your organization was formulating plans to get busy with two architectural bodies to safeguard the best development of that section.

This is a splendid idea. You have it almost in your hands to control the destiny of Michigan avenue, and the interests of the progressive property owners there appeal to me somewhat in the fashion of the man who helped his careless neighbor to keep his barn from burning down in order to save his own barn from a similar fate. With best wishes, sincerely yours,

Walter D. Moody.

Medal Project Indorsed.

"Mr. Moody was deeply interested in the Upper Michigan avenue project," said Mr. Bowes, "and it seems a pity he was taken away just as it begins its real development, for we have taken steps toward putting the medal and diploma idea into effect as soon as possible.

"At a meeting of the directors of the North Central association, held at the Midday club, the New York Fifth avenue idea of awarding a gold medal to the owners erecting the best building of the year, a silver medal to the second best, a gold medal to the best altered building, and a silver medal for the second best, and diplomas to the architects, was unanimously indorsed.

Architects to Aid

"It was referred to the committee on North Michigan avenue embellishment with the instructions that it confer with the architects' advisory committee of the North Central association, consisting of Howard Shaw, chairman; A. N. Rebori, E. H. Bennett, Coolidge & Hodgdon; Graham, Anderson, Probst & White; Holabird & Roche, Jarvis Hunt; Marshall & Fox, George W. Maher, Mundie & Jensen, Perkins, Fellows & Hamilton; Schmidt, Garden & Martin. Details of the prize awards will be worked out as soon as possible."

The New York method of encouraging Fifth avenue architectural development has been a great success. Architects of national fame have worked hard to win the diploma which entitled them to say they designed the finest building of the year on New York's show street. The same success it is expected will result in Upper Michigan avenue's building development.

Englewood Company Rents Space in State Street

H. M. Paradise & Co., dealers in women's ready to wear goods, now operating two Halsted street stores in Englewood, have leased through Mark Levy & Bro., from the Stevens Bros. corporation, space on the ninth floor of the Stevens building, 17-25 North State street, formerly occupied by the Lane Bryant company, for a term of five years from Jan. 1 at a term rental of $30,000.

Here are the gentlemen who will control the destinies of the Chicago real estate board after Dec. 15, when, according to those who know, they will be elected officers of the board for the following twelve months—unless out of a clear sky the unexpected happens and a rebel ticket appears. It's almost a certainty, however, that the ticket announced on Wednesday by the nominating committee will be put in office.

Lewis M. Smith of L. M. Smith & Brother, the new president, is sometimes called the dean of Chicago realtors. He will round out his fortieth year in the realty business next March. He is said to be the first man to start a renting business outside of the loop. He opened offices in Oakland square in 1881 and he still has his headquarters there. If there is any one who knows more about south side property than Mr. Smith the real estate editor hasn't met him.

Harry Goldstine of Harry Goldstine & Co., 111 West Washington street, will succeed Charles F. Durland as vice president.

Second Vice President James J. Carroll will be succeeded by Louis T. Orr, a member of the firms of H. G. Howard & Co. and Howard Bros. & Co. He has been a member of the board of governors for three years.

Harry F. Prussing of Prussing & Co. will succeed John P. Hooker as secretary.

Hyde W. Perce of 19 South La Salle street will take the place of Treasurer Byron V. Kanaley. Mr. Perce was secretary of the board under Presidents Steinbrecher and Surghenor.

Realtor Notes

Further details of the purchase of the real estate, renting, and insurance departments of the forty year old Oak Park firm of Dunlop & Co. by O. C. Braese, manager, announced in this department Nov. 7, state that Mr. Braese has bought the northwest corner of Chicago and Jackson avenues in River Forest as a branch office, and beginning Jan. 1 will conduct a general realty business there. He will operate under the name of O. C. Braese & Co. His main office will continue at 125 North Oak Park avenue. He specializes in Oak Park and River Forest residence property.

It's Now 144

A city-wide intensive drive for affiliated members of the Chicago Real Estate board has been started by the Chicago Real Estate board, according to James J. Carroll, chairman of the renting division. C. R. Frisbie, former traffic manager of Armour & Co., has been retained to conduct the campaign. Dues will be $1 per flat per year with a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $50. A meeting has been held at the Edgewater Beach hotel and several new members secured. Meanwhile Harry Goldstine, who is conducting the regular membership drive from the board rooms, announces 144 new members as the latest figures.

Veteran High Speed Eat Shop to Become Gem Store

One of the oldest eating places in the Thompson chain, the get-food-quick establishment at 58-60 West Madison street, just west of Weeghman's high speed eatery, now owned by Thompson, has been leased by the Clarke Jewelry company from John R. Thompson through E. F. Keebler & Co., for ten years from April 1, 1921, at a term rental of $240,000.

The lease contains a cancellation clause in the event Mr. Thompson puts up his long talked of twenty-one story hotel catering especially to rural visitors.

The lessees will remodel the store, making two shops, one of which they will occupy and the other will be sublet. The Clarke Jewelry company will move from 52 West Madison street, which store recently was leased through Keebler & Co. to the Sendack Jewelry company for ten years from next May at a term rental of $100,000.

Start Work on New Pilgrim Congregational Church

Work has started on a new $150,000 edifice for the Pilgrim Congregational church at the southeast corner of Harvard avenue and Sixty-fourth street on a 104x125 lot, from plans by Architect Charles D. Faulkner. The old church building is to be wrecked. The new church will have 700 seats and the community house 400 more. The building will be brick and stone, of modern Spanish type of architecture. The community house will have a gymnasium, auditorium, sewing rooms, game rooms, kitchen, etc.

RAIN DEALERS SEE DANGER IN CAPPER'S BILL

eny That It Will Kill Speculation.

The grain-trade is stirred by the an- ncement of Senator Capper of Kan- s that he will introduce a bill in senate next week which will kill eculation in grain, grain products d cotton on the exchanges. The ator attributes all price fluctuation the result of speculation.

The bill he has proposed was read fore the meeting of the Farmers' Na- al Grain Dealers' association in vention here on Friday, and failed get its indorsement, being referred their legislative committee.

Senator Capper will introduce his bill the senate at the opening of con- ess this week. Representative Tin- er of Kansas will introduce it in the use.

One feature of the Capper bill is the position of a 10 per cent tax in addi- n to the present taxes on all specu- tive trading on grain, grain products d cotton on all exchanges. Com- ssion men and brokers are required register before they can do busi- ss.

Gates Gives Views.

President L. F. Gates of the Chicago Board of Trade, who has given a large rt of his time to studying the eco- mical and speculative conditions the world over, after a careful reading of the Capper bill, says:

"The much heralded bill against grain exchanges which Senator Capper has for months been advertising in his various farm journals, has I under- stand, been made public.

"While purporting to be a taxing measure, it is, of course, not intended to be a revenue producer, but rather intended through the imposition of a prohibitory tax to do away with trad- ing in grain for future delivery. While it purports to leave an opportunity for 'hedging' purchases and sales, any one at all familiar with the grain mar- keting machinery will realize that the passage of such a bill would lead to the entire elimination of the insurance feature of the grain market, and would immediately result in such a widening margin between producer and con- sumer as merchandising handlers would find it necessary to secure to cover the additional risks of ownership which they would assume.

Would Create Speculation.

"Instead of preventing speculation, such a provision would necessitate speculation on the part of every grow- er and handler of grain and its prod- ucts.

"It is clear that the proponents of this bill share the general confusion as between gambling and speculation and fail to appreciate that efficiency in service and economy in operation which make it possible to handle grain from the producer to the consumer on a lower margin of profit for the so- called middleman than prevails in the marketing of any other commodity in general use.

"It is not generally known that the entire toll on wheat is only from 7 to 10 per cent for all handlers—not for each, but for all—who handle it be- tween the farm and the foreign mar- ket: transportation, of course, not in- cluded.

"If there is a desire on the part of the people of this country to eliminate the present system of handling grain and its products and to pay the added cost incident to its marketing on a general merchandising basis, those who wish to accomplish this purpose should have sufficient courage to state their purpose in plain English rather than to pretend to be desirous of preserving the 'hedging' system, while as a mat- ter of fact they are destroying it."

TEACHERS ASK TAX EQUALITY FOR SCHOOLS

Resolutions advocating amendment of the state school laws "to eliminate the probability of disaster to the pub- lic schools," were adopted yesterday at the annual meeting of the Chicago di- vision of the Illinois State Teachers' association in the Illinois theater.

The teachers ask that all local units having both elementary and high schools under control of the same board of trustees be placed on an equality with the more favored com- munities which are permitted to levy a separate tax for high schools.

The resolutions also call upon all ef- fective bodies to work for the passage of an amendment which will make school districts at least coextensive with the counties in which they are situated. Under the present district- ing system a school not fortunate enough to be situated near a large manufacturing community or other source of wealth suffers from lack of sufficient revenue.

The teachers in addition ask that state aid of schools be increased to at least $12,000,000, so school districts handicapped by insufficient taxing ma- terial can have their difficulties mini- mized.

MOTHER RENEWS HUNT FOR HER MISSING BOY; FORTUNE AWAITS HIM

OZIMAN PLESIERS.

It lacks but a few days of a year since Oziman Plesiers, then 15 years old, disappeared from his home at 516 South Wabash avenue. As the anniversary approaches, his mother, Mrs. Mathilde Plesiers, is renewing her country-wide search.

In a telegram she has sent to the Atlantic City, N. J., police, Mrs. Plesiers asserts her son has come into a large inheritance since he disappeared. She had learned, she wired the eastern police, that her son had been seen there recently. She asked that this message be given him:

"Your mother is heartbroken to know where you are. Your uncle in Belgium has died and left you a lot of money. You don't have to come home, only write to me."

The boy is about 4 feet 5 inches tall, and had a round, chubby face when he disappeared.

The HERO

By Vicente Blasco Ibañez

A Whimsical Tale of Flanders and the Great Invasion

"AND I suppose you met Monsieur Simoulin?"

Anybody who visited the historic town of X— in French Flanders was sure sooner or later to be asked that question.

The traveler might know the ancient cathedral of the city from spire to crypt; he might have visited, guide book in hand, all the churches and convents dating from the Spanish occupation; he might have studied all the quaint façades of bourgeois houses belonging to later Flemish periods. But he was credited with knowing nothing unless he had met the director of the Library-Museum, whom some people called "Monsieur Simoulin," as though no other description were necessary, while others referred to him respectfully, though still more tersely, as "our poet."

The most famous curiosity in the historic town of X— was undoubtedly "Monsieur Simoulin, our poet." On this every one agreed, not omitting the three newspapers of the opposing political parties in the town, which could agree on nothing else.

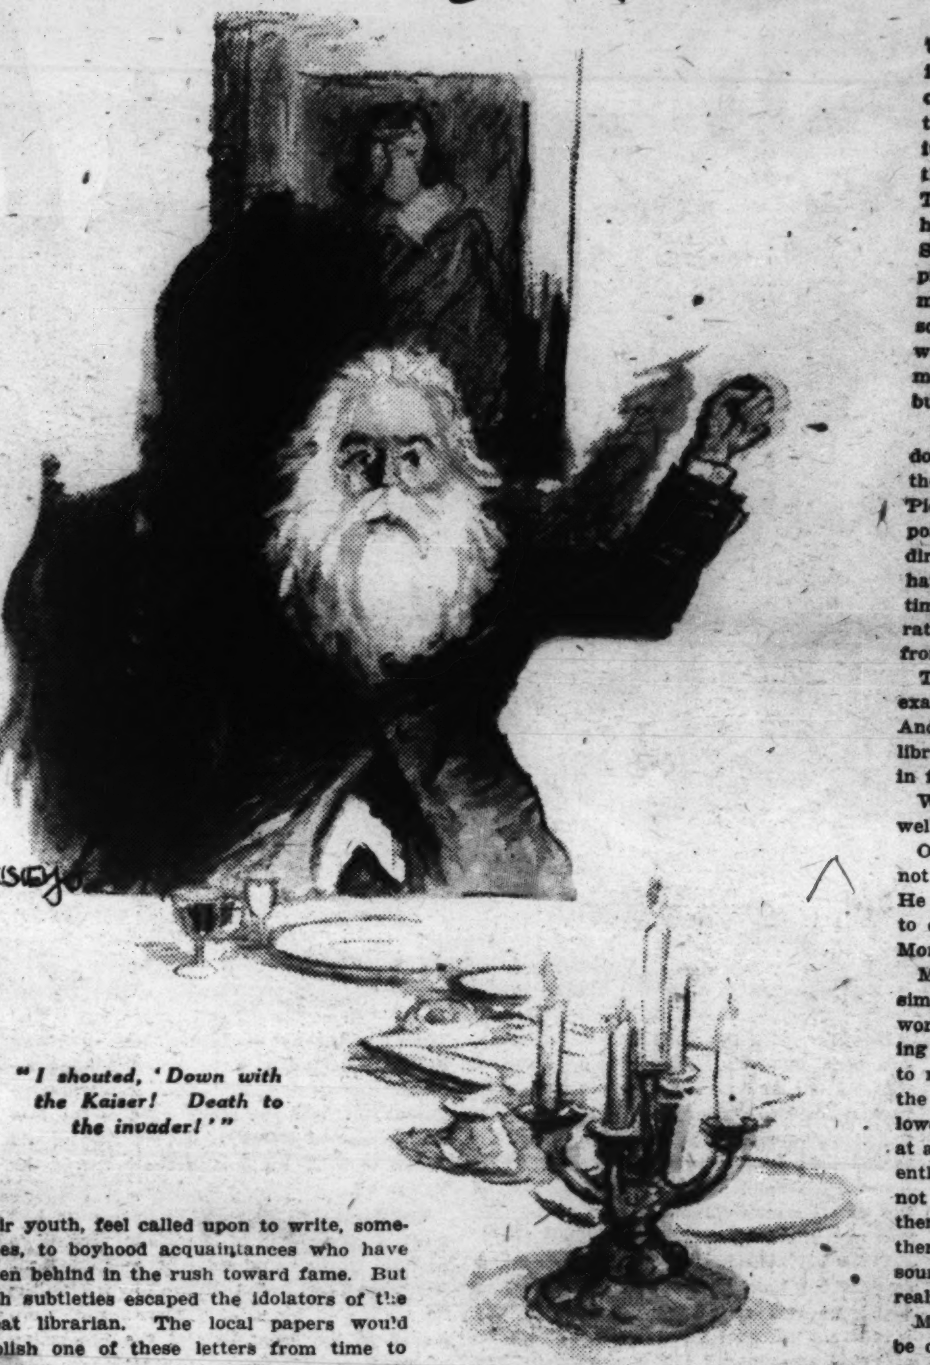
Nevertheless, among the numerous landmarks in X— no one could point to the birthplace of "our poet." The great Monsieur Simoulin was a southerner, a méridional, from the country of olive groves and August crickets; though he had come when quite young to X—, to take charge of the library that was being established there. At X—, moreover, he had married and raised a family; and the good people of the town were quite willing to forget his foreign origin in view of the unquestioned glory he brought to their parish.

Estimable but unlettered citizens for the most part, but notables of the town, enriched on the manufacture of beer and Flemish breakfast rolls, had noticed simply that their museum had been filled, during Simoulin's regency, with historic objects that bore splendid testimony to the past eminence of X—; and as for "our poet," he could talk most impressively of bishops, knights and burgomasters who had figured in the ancestry of many commonplace shopkeepers in the city.

In addition to all that, Monsieur Simoulin was a man who looked the part. "That is just what a great man should look like," every one averred on seeing his long white beard and flashing eyes, under a head of snowy hair that had the venerableness of years and the flourish of genius. While on his feet, Monsieur Simoulin lost, to be sure, something of his majesty. He was a trifle short in stature, and there was a suggestion of nervousness, uneasiness, in his carriage. But there, behind his desk in the museum "study," in spite of the wrinkles on his face and the dusty yellow of his complexion, he could have passed for the Lord of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob.

Whenever Monsieur Simoulin talked—and that was whenever there was anyone to listen—his words had the prestige of a personal intimacy with greatness. All the foremost celebrities of the last fifty years had been close friends of the wonderful man. He always mentioned Victor Hugo and Gambetta by their first names. During Gambetta's political campaigns against the Royalists, Monsieur Simoulin had had, undoubtedly, some connection with the great republican tribune. As for the author of "Les Miserables," the truth was that Monsieur Simoulin had seen him only once. He had gone with a committee of republican students to carry a greeting to the great Hugo while the latter was in exile in Guernsey. But such deficiencies counted little with Monsieur Simoulin's admirers. They continued to repeat, with solemn, unquestioning awe, that "Victor Hugo was a dear friend of our poet."

From Zola, Daudet and other more recent glories of France, Monsieur Simoulin could show letters, "My dear Simoulin." They were brief notes colored with that forced fraternal intimacy which successful men, out of homesick fondness for the days of their youth, feel called upon to write, sometimes, to boyhood acquaintances who have fallen behind in the rush toward fame. But such subtleties escaped the idolators of the great librarian. The local papers would publish one of these letters from time to time in the column devoted to historic curiosities. And the neighbors of "our poet" would say: "Monsieur Simoulin would have been one of the greatest writers of the age had he stuck to Paris. His was, by rights, the glory that others with less talent than he are now enjoying. But he sacrificed himself! He preferred to live with us!"



"I shouted, 'Down with the Kaiser! Death to the invader!'"

And the people of X— did their best to reward the sacrifice. The town council listened to his recommendations as to voices from on high. When the city treasury was empty there was still money enough to cover any improvements in the museum that Monsieur Simoulin desired. Under-secretaries passing through the prefecture always paid him a visit, and a president of the republic, in a speech from the train during a five minute stop at the station of X—, had referred to him as one of the "distinguished men of the region." After that he had had no difficulty in marrying off his sons to daughters of rich manufacturers in the town, who formerly had accepted only sons-in-law with money.

Monsieur Simoulin was the most famous orator of the county. When the newspapers wanted to be sure of a crowd at some public meeting, their advertisements would carry the feature: "Monsieur Simoulin will speak." He was, in fact, master of the ringing patriotic sentences, and deft, as well, with the "ode of greeting." To announce an after dinner fantasy by "our great poet" was to be sure that every seat at the banquet table would be occupied.

However, it was during his forenoons at the library that Monsieur Simoulin held virtual court. Around him there crowded all the ambitious literary aspirants of the countryside to seek advice and encouragement from the famous "master." He would welcome everyone with affectionate familiarity, though it was difficult for him to dwell long on a visitor's troubles. "As my old friend Hugo used to say—"—and he would be off on anecdotes of his own experience with great men of letters.

Evenings Monsieur Simoulin devoted to his more solid and serious friends. Admiration for his learning had finally brought a number of retired merchants and officials in X— to give up collecting saddles or trading horses and devote themselves to the genealogy and archaeology of the locality.

The favorite pupil of Monsieur Simoulin, in these latter gatherings, was the retired "Commandant" Pierrefonds, a veteran of campaigns in Africa and China, and one of the formidable personages in X—. Pierrefonds was a man of few words but emphatic. He had preserved, from army days, the habit of intolerance toward any trifling with his dignity. Famous for his bad temper, which he vented in menacing gestures and words that snarled from under a stiff reddish-gray mustache, "Commandant Pierrefonds, Retired," was an object of awe to everyone—everyone except Monsieur Simoulin, who ventured even to jest, occasionally, with the terrible soldier.

The admiration that Commandant Pierrefonds paid to Monsieur Simoulin amounted almost to worship. The commandant, who was a bachelor, had lived, since his withdrawal from active service on account of ill-health, in a modest house on the outskirts of the town. His only companions there were an aged housekeeper and a collection of rare coins. And, in fact, now that all hope of military renown had vanished, it was to the science of numismatics that the soldier was devoting his declining years. That is why no human greatness seemed to him comparable with that of the antiquarian Simoulin. Pierrefond's sole remaining aspiration was to be the greatest of that great man's pupils, the first of the "Simoulin school." He followed the "master" everywhere, and those who envied him this intimacy, finished by dubbing him "the poet's bull dog."

But this "bull dog" differed from other dogs in that he recognized some defects in the human being he had chosen to call God. Pierrefonds, with a soldier's regard for the point of honor, considered falsehood as the direst of all sins. He could not remember having told a lie once in his whole lifetime; and he could imagine himself dying rather than consenting to depart one iota from the truth. Whereas the "master"—!

To be quite just, Pierrefonds did not know exactly what to think of Monsieur Simoulin. And the same hesitation was felt by the librarian's pupils, by his sons, his wife, and in fact, by all who knew him at all well!

Was "our poet," after all, something of—well, something of an embroiderer?

Of course not! Monsieur Simoulin was not a liar. The liar lies with an end in view. He lies either to gain a point himself or to checkmate some one else. In this sense Monsieur Simoulin never lied.

Monsieur Simoulin, in the last analysis, simply did not know the meaning of the word "truth." He was in the habit of avoiding My Lady Truth whenever he chanced to meet that damsel. If he were taken by the hand and introduced to her, he would lower his eyes or look the other way. Truth, at any rate, he always saw somewhat differently from anybody else. Things had to be, not as they were, but as he chose to have them, and when he saw anything happen and then told about it he made up a story that sounded well, whether it corresponded to reality or not.

Monsieur Simoulin's lies, if lies such may be called, took the form invariably of exaggeration or understatement. At one moment his home town of X— would be a greater city than New York or London. Then again it would be the most miserable hole this side of Squeedunk. So people were either gods or demons. There was no middle ground anywhere, whether he was speaking of people or of things. To put the situation as one of his pupils, a former judge, with a bent toward philosophical studies, put it: "The master had the defect of many great men—he had a lunatic in the house."

"Yes, sir! A lunatic in the house"; and the judge would look up expectantly to see if any of his hearers had caught the allusion. For that was what the philosopher Balebranche had called the human imagination.

The lunatic—a feminine lunatic, it was, in the French of Malebranche—the lunatic that inhabited Monsieur Simoulin's "upper story" was not always awake. At times "our poet" would talk as reasonably and accurately as a baker in X— would weigh his rolls. At other times the lunatic would be running amuck in the wildest fashion. The illustrious librarian would seem to be living in a world apart, seeing things that nobody else could see and saying things that would have been called whoppers in the mouth of anybody but a recognized genius.

Commandant Pierrefonds had enough "literature" in his training to appreciate the attenuations that might be pleaded in behalf of his master's shortcomings toward the truth. "Just read Balzac," he would say. "Do you suppose one of those stories he tells was true? Not a bit of it! Lies, all lies! Well that's the way the master. Geniuses are all like that!"

When the Great War broke out, Monsieur Simoulin's glory reached its apogee. That historic August was the busiest time "our poet" had seen in his long sedentary life. He went down to the station to bid every train of troops good-bye. Every evening he would walk up to the band stand in X— and appear in the front line of the citizens crowding round to sing the Marsellaise. At the sight of his flourish of white wavy hair, the multitude would interrupt its song! "Speech! Speech! Monsieur Simoulin is here! A speech from the master!" "Our poet" would mount the dais of the conductor to the applause of the people and amid the waving of flags; and soon women and men would be sobbing in pathos or cheering with intoxication, according as the masterly dispenser of patriotic thrills had chosen.

"For heaven's sake, Pierrefonds, what are you thinking of? Do you want them to shoot us all?"

At times, Monsieur Simoulin would stand on the platform silently, with arms folded, like a Napoleon surveying a field of victory. At others he would rant and rave like a Danton inveighing against the enemies of the country. The great heroes of France passed by in review in the orator's imaginative picturing, and with each one of them Monsieur Simoulin seemed to identify himself. Swelling with the pride of greatness, he would prophesy victory with the assurance of the strategist or the conviction of the saint. No one could surpass him in describing the horror to which Belgium and France were being subjected by the unjust aggression of the Germans.

So things went on for two or three weeks. And even then Monsieur Simoulin did not lose courage. "This talk of German victories is only an invention of the enemy to deceive themselves. Tomorrow the truth will bring them to their senses."

But the truth on the morrow brought the Germans themselves. They were approaching the Flemish town of X—. Many of the townspeople had long before taken to flight, and more than one friend had suggested to "our poet" the wisdom of going on to Paris, where the French government needed the services of all the nation's most brilliant men.

"Let the enemy come on," Monsieur Simoulin had thundered from the dais on the band stand. "They will find me waiting for them here."

His sons had all enlisted, and Madame Simoulin had gone with her daughters-in-law to a town in southern France. The poet was alone, and ready for any act of heroism.

"And they'll find me here, too," Commandant Pierrefonds had echoed.

Pierrefonds had felt all his warlike past come back upon him with the outbreak of hostilities. Declared ineligible for active service on account of failing health, he had nevertheless been appointed to a perfunctory position in the military administration of X—.

"Here I shall stay," he added, "till the ministry orders me to beat a retreat."

However, with the army of a nation hurtling back upon the Marne, the minister of war did not find time to order Pierrefonds back from his advanced post at X—. In technical command of some hundred old men, recruited for police duty from the Old Men's home, Pierrefonds witnessed the arrival of the first German uhlans in the town. He was at home at the moment of their entry. And his old housekeeper had to kneel at his feet and beg him not to use the rusty revolver which he had caught up to fire upon the invaders. "If you shoot, we shall all be executed as snipers," the weeping lady had pleaded. Pierrefonds, besides, thought of a remark of the "master": "Pierrefonds, when the Boches get here—if they ever get here—remember! We must be great and haughty in misfortune! The heroism of sacrifice is nobler than the heroism of victory!"

The illustrious Monsieur Simoulin had plenty of opportunity to know what the heroism of sacrifice implied. On the occupation of X— he dressed himself up in his best afternoon clothes and set out to interview the German general, intending to deliver, in his most effective oratorical style, a ringing protest against the invasion of the country and against reported German atrocities. He got no further, however, than a young lieutenant who told him to go home and be quiet, unless he wanted to be shot. No one in the German camp seemed in the least to appreciate the master's eminence in the region; and the card which he presented made no impression upon the sentries at all. Meanwhile, his admiring friends in X— had deserted him. The younger men had all enlisted. Most of the older ones had fled. The others who were left obeyed German instructions and kept carefully indoors.

"Our poet" came to know all the torments of hunger and inaction; but the worst torture came from the loss of his local prestige. "The lunatic in the house" disported himself to no avail. Whenever Monsieur Simoulin would meet a number of his miserable comrades in servitude, he would try to reassure them: "It will soon be over. I have just received excellent news, direct from Joffre. Our army will be back here in a few days." But that recourse soon failed him. His cheering "embroideries" soon lost their color even in his own eyes; and eventually the "lunatic in the house" fell back into a deep sleep that resembled death. Even Monsieur Simoulin tired of hearing himself talk.

Finally came the order of deportation. The Germans had decided to impose a new form of discipline upon the conquered regions. Old men, women, and children were commanded to make ready for a march into the interior of Germany, where they would be set to work harvesting the crops of the Vaterland.

By this time the military governors had learned something of Monsieur Simoulin's position in the community of X—; and that was why, as an added offense to the city, the librarian and his friend, Pierrefonds, were placed in the front line of the procession of deportees.

"Commandant," the poet observed once more, "remember what I told you. The heroism of sacrifice is nobler than . . ."

But the expression on the old soldier's face was a terrifying one. His eyes were bloodshot and contradictions of rage that played about his mouth gave strange contortions to his reddish gray mustache. For the first time he ignored his master's presence. For the first time he repented of not having fled the city. Then, at least, he might have gotten to the front and died like a man of action. But for Jacques Pierrefonds, Commandant, Retired, to be driven along in a chain gang like a convict or a Negro slave! Wrath of God!

Pierrefonds had not as yet seen a German from near at hand. His housekeeper had held him virtually locked up at home, for fear that once outside he would attack some one of the invaders and bring misfortune upon the house and upon the town. Now plenty of Germans were in speaking distance. A squad of infantry was on guard along the line of disconsolate exiles. An officer on horseback was in charge of the preparations for the march. The officer, a man of pale, haggard features, on which Monsieur Simoulin thought he could read an expression of weariness and disgust, perhaps the better to conceal his shame at the vile duty imposed upon him, sat squarely in the saddle with an exaggerated stiffness of pose.

Upon this officer Pierrefonds fixed his bloodthirsty gaze.

The officer had spurred his horse to one side, giving the order for the procession to advance.

Pierrefonds could not restrain his rage. As he came up abreast of the officer, he stopped. In his own heart he was determined to die, rather than take a single step forward.

"Down with the kaiser! Death to the invader!" he shouted, with a voice that echoed hoarsely in the square.

The officer winced under the visor of his helmet. Then he stood with a gesture of surprise and anger. Finally he mastered himself, and surveyed the prisoner with a cold but hesitant gaze.

Pierrefonds did not lower his eye, but faced the German defiantly.

The officer shrugged his shoulders, and muttering, with affected indifference, the word "suicide!" he looked in another direction.

As for the soldiers of the guard, they seemed not to notice at all, as though nothing could reach their ears till it had passed through those of their chief.

Pierrefonds was still more enraged at his failure to produce any impression on his captors.

"Down with the . . ."

He was about to repeat his insulting cry, when a hand closed over his mouth and someone began to pull him by the arm.

"For heaven's sake, Pierrefonds, what are you thinking of? Do you want them to shoot us all?"

It was Monsieur Simoulin. The master was looking up into his face with an expression of terrified appeal that quite diverted the commandant's thoughts from the Germans.

"Inconscionable idiot you are, Pierrefonds!" Monsieur Simoulin went on. "You might have been the death of every mother's son among us. A child would know better than that! The idea of a man of your age . . ."

And it was several days before Monsieur Simoulin caught breath in reproaching the commandant for his absurd bravado.

"Coolness, brains, that's what we need. And there you were braying out like a jackass! 'Down with the kaiser! Death to the invader!' Do you think we want to get shot just on your account?"

. . . .

When the Great War was over at last, the historic town of X— in French Flanders gradually resumed its former serenity. One by one the people who had fled Von Bülow's advance returned, and those who had remained to live through four years or more of foreign occupation had endless narratives to tell of their experiences.

From Germany also gradually trickled back small groups of exiles who had been deported to the interior of the enemy country. The number of such sufferers had appreciably diminished. Hundreds of them never reappeared. They remained away off there sleeping their eternal sleep in soil that to dance around with a girl of his own set, I shouldn't care. At any rate, he's free to choose. But that maid, Aunt Anne! I know her. I've talked with her. She's pretty—awfully pretty. And she doesn't know anything. She hasn't any sense—about 6 years old in the top of her head. I've seen her myself—down at the beach, and on the road, and in town—always with a man hanging around her and sometimes two or three; some of them young louts from town, I suppose, and I haven't anything to say to them. But there are others, too. . . . "

Commonly she spoke as she moved—a sort of springy abruptness about it; the swift, nervous play of smoothly-acting faculties; feline. Now emotion further charged her clear and sweet voice that came in swift lilts like swordplay.

"I saw her myself one evening—passed her in a car. She was in another car with a man I know."

Her young breast swelled, her eyes sparkled, color rose in her cheeks.

"I wanted to jump out and strike him! . . . It was rotten! Plain rotten! Why would that man be taking up with a maid—taking her into his car—driving somewhere with her at half past 8? I'm not an idiot, Aunt Anne. Plenty of things are no business of mine, and I don't care a rap about them. That man I am speaking of, for example. With a woman of his own set—a woman of education and standing, friends, backing—all that; you know what I mean; a woman who can meet him on a level footing and defend herself if she wants to, why I have nothing to say. It's their own affair. If that man can sell me a gold brick and I don't know any better than to buy it, why the more fool I. Why blame him? I've been trained and advantaged. I've got all kinds of defenses if I want to use them."

A little spasm of pain and anger contracted her face.

"But that poor little devil of a maid—a foreigner, without a cent; no friends that count for anything; nothing at all but the little wages she works for. And no sense, either; only a child in the top of her head. She believes in witches; she told me so herself. She'd believe anything. It makes me furious, Aunt Anne!"

Indeed, her cheeks flamed and her eyes had grown dark as her hands clenched.

"Those rotten men—cowards and boors, if they do live in good houses and have good manners before us!"

And having unbosomed herself thus far, she paused; her head sank; she confessed, a bit shakily and with a touch of humility:

"Of course, I don't mean that for Ted. I'm sure Ted really means no harm—he couldn't. . . ."

She struggled over what she did mean for a moment and looked up at the older woman with a world of trouble in her eyes.

"I know as well as you do, Aunt Anne, that Ted's just a kid in a thousand ways—and a spoiled kid, too," she added uncompromisingly. "He's as heedless, and gay, and generous as a boy." She had to struggle over something else then and lower her eyes, her head drooping; and to say it very low, "That's why I love him."

She looked up again and valiantly resumed her attack: "He thinks there's no harm because he doesn't mean any. He took Katey to a dance—one dance, at least; or at any rate he was at a dance where she was and danced with her half the evening. He takes her in his car. He had her in his car today. I saw them myself. He says there's no harm; but I know there is harm. It sets her to thinking of men like him—with money and automobiles and all that. It makes it easier for the others. . . .

"Here's this silly little maid, Aunt Anne. You know what may happen to her as well as I do—because she is awfully pretty. The little blockhead ought to have prayed to be ugly instead of pluming herself on her bright eyes and fine figure. People like you and I and Ted ought to help her what little we can—the odds are all against her any way. And Ted isn't. He's edging her off the road all the time—not meaning any harm, we'll admit. But he's doing the harm all the time—and then just laughs!"

The vertical line of pain reappeared in her forehead; pain showed in her eyes. "I can't endure it! It isn't fine, and generous, and high. It's low and careless. He mustn't be so careless of a human being, Aunt Anne! I can't stand that!"

Mrs. Crane looked grave, and her gravity was quite as much for the girl at her side as for anybody else. She knew well enough that stormy Peggy—partly, perhaps, in reaction from her mother's universal tolerance—went about setting high standards for herself and other people. Probably that would mean a line of pain down her pretty forehead many times, for, according to Mrs. Crane's observations, people were much apter to talk about high standards than to live up to them.

"I've had an eye on Katey myself," she remarked soberly. "She's much too pretty for a maid, and I wish heartily she were out of the house. But turning a maid into the street without a job is a poor form of charity, and, except an all around heedlessness that drives poor Benjamin to distraction, there's nothing in particular to complain of in her. But, Peggy dear," she went on in a more personal address, "I'm quite sure that you're mistaken about Katey. She is appallingly ignorant and she might strike you as not having a wit to her name; but I'm quite sure you're mistaken about her. Instincts are a lot better to go by than reasons, after all, and Katey has her instincts. If you would inquire, I'm confident you would discover that Katey knows how to take care of herself perfectly well. Probably she's ready to flirt with any presentable man who looks at her, but I'm confident he'll find his match in her even if she does believe in witches."

She smiled at the girl and would have liked to say, "Don't make a tragedy out of a comedy, Peg. That only breaks your heart for nothing, and there are plenty of real tragedies." But she was too wise to say it, merely repeating, "I don't believe Katey is nearly as helpless as you think."

That view somewhat dashed Peggy. She felt bound to give weight to the older woman's experience, however, and only murmured, inconclusively, "I hope so."

"All the same," Mrs. Crane continued, "I agree with you that Ted mustn't be careless. He's only careless, Peggy; but he mustn't be in this case. I'm going to talk to him myself."

That suggestion was a little startling to Peggy, who looked troubled, and interposed, "Not as coming from me, Aunt Anne. You see, his pride is up now—interfering, he'd called it. You saw, when he stepped in, the first thing he said was that he was looking for Katey."

Mrs. Crane laughed and replied, "We'll save his precious pride, Peg. Whatever happens, we must save our men's pride, although they sometimes do little enough to save it themselves. . . . And I think I've been careless myself. I must look more to Katey."

There they left the subject, for Mrs. Loughman was rejoining them. But about that time Katey's name was being mentioned in the servants' quarters also. The housekeeper was saying, irritably, that the girl ought to be there, and wondering where in the world she could have taken herself to. And Lena, the muscular maid, was replying darkly that wherever she'd taken herself to, it was for no good purpose.

It came 4 o'clock and a quarter past, and Katey was still missing. Judge Crane then returned to the house, in the best of spirits, after an invigorating hour and a half behind a span of prize winning grays. He picked up a handful of mail from the table in the hall and went upstairs, turning the letters over as he went. He noticed a long creamy-yellow envelope, which he recognized as coming from his brokers, Pennell, Hilton & Company, and he wondered incidentally why they would be sending him a communication of that bulk about at that time.

On the second floor he went down the hall to the den, where he usually looked over his business matters, and he had gone a third of the way across the spacious room toward the broad writing table by the window when Benjamin, the butler, came hurriedly in through the open door.

Benjamin was half a foot shorter than the tall judge, but broad and amply cushioned with flesh. He wore a little grizzled side whisker—a mere patch—in front of each ear; his face was colorless and there was dignity in his double chin. But just now he was by way of throwing his dignity overboard. He entered the room hurriedly, agitation in his aspect. Coming quickly up to the judge, he began speaking under his breath, in nervous haste, rubbing his fat hands together as though he were washing them in invisible water.

Judge Crane listened with an incredulous stare; asked an incredulous question. Benjamin went over it again, with some jerky gestures and more rubbing of his hands. Astonishment was pictured on the judge's face. He questioned the butler further, and the butler further affirmed, with a jerky gesture, rubbing his hands.

The judge looked at the wall, his strong shoulders stooping a bit, while his mind adjusted itself. A change came over his face; the corners of his mouth drooped; the deep lines around his mouth settled into a metallic rigidity like a steel trap that has been sprung; his eyes dulled heavily. And so, stooping a bit, he looked like a ponderous and formidable animal crouching to charge.

"Come with me," he said and put a strong arm on the butler's fat arm. Partly pushing the butler ahead of him, he went from the room.

And he was proud as he thought of that. As for the poet's "embroidery," that was only another case, the Commandant reflected, of Monsieur Simoulin's inability to remember things as they were.

But people seemed to have forgotten the poor soldier in spite of everything. The picture of Commandant Pierrefonds embraced by Monsieur Simoulin was becoming dim in the public mind; for masses do not like divided glory. They want a single, an individual hero, someone they can isolate and stage. That was why Pierrefonds was never mentioned in connection with Monsier Simoulin's heroic cry. And eventually Monsier Simoulin himself forgot that detail of the embrace. The "lunatic in the house" diverted his attention to his own heroic pose as he raised his right hand in the face of the German officer, and delivered the courageous, insulting words. In that pose Monsieur Simoulin could see himself eternalized in bronze in the square of X—, as future generations would return in grateful remembrance to the episode. Meanwhile the librarian was elaborating the story with more and more numerous details. No longer was it relegated to the end of his orations. It had grown to the full proportions of an hour's speech.

Pierrefonds began to hate everything about him, and even seriously to doubt his own sanity. Could Simoulin actually have raised that cry? "No, it was surely I who said: 'Down with the kaiser. Death to the invader!' But, yet—but, yet—!" However, he would end always by recovering faith in himself, and he found solace in a crushing contempt for everyone in town. "Why go to that soirée?" he would say. "To hear people talk of Simoulin and his historic cry? Bosh!"

And he broke off relations with the master. He could not stand the innocent conviction with which, in the presence of him, the Commandant Pierrefonds in person, Simoulin would relate that astounding pack of lies. Furthermore, the Germans had stolen all the Commandant's collection, and ancient coins had lost their charm for him. The Commandant's work in life was now to yawn between chapters of dull books on history, to work an occasional hour in his little garden, and make comparisons between the traces of old age in his housekeeper and the ravages of time upon himself.

One day, however, his retirement was rudely disturbed. A banquet was being organized in town to honor "our poet," "our hero." Monsieur Simoulin was to receive a decoration for bravery from the government. "You must come! The master wants you. He is getting old, and you ought to please him just this once. There will be senators and deputies from Paris. The minister of education has promised to make a speech!"

Commandant Pierrefonds would be d—d if he would go! But the housekeeper intervened. "Old friends of yours—why not see them. Besides, a bit of a carousal—that would do you good."

Finally he consented. After all, it might be the last public testimonial to his old "master." And Monsieur Simoulin wanted to see him. Perhaps . . . perhaps!

And, in fact, on the night of the banquet Monsieur Simoulin literally rushed upon Commandant Pierrefonds.

"Pierrefonds! . . . Pierrefonds! My dear old friend! My comrade in slavery!"

And he introduced the soldier to the minister and to all the dignitaries who had come on from Paris. "A hero, gentlemen! A real soldier! A true patriot!"

Pierrefonds grunted with a show of pleasure, and his mustache, where the gray was now but slightly tinged with red, bristled into something like a smile. Simoulin, at bottom, was a good soul, willing to share his glory with the humble! Doubtless their recent estrangement had been due to envious people eager to break up a friendship so delightful!

During the banquet Simoulin did not lose sight of Commandant Pierrefonds. Of course, the chair at the poet's right was filled by the minister, and at his left sat another important personage from Paris. Pierrefonds, however, found a place within reach of the master's eyes and voice. He was always introduced into the conversation; and once Monsieur Simoulin raised his glass in the direction of his old friend: "To the health of my heroic comrade in suffering!"

Yes, a good fellow after all. The master did not know the meaning of injustice. How was it possible to be angry with such a man?

In the course of the evening a dozen toasts were drunk with speeches by the notables from Paris. It was now the poet's turn to deliver his oration in thanks for the great honor.

And a graceful speech it was. Monsieur Simoulin had a turgid style perhaps. But he always managed to connect what he said with a central theme. This time it was "civic heroism and military valor"; and, needless to say, from the very first words of the orator, military valor came out second best in the argument.

That was what made Commandant Pierrefonds begin to worry. Moreover, he could see the master's eyes. They were shining with the strange brilliancy which they used to take on when the lunatic was becoming most unruly in the poet's house. He could see that Monsieur Simoulin's soul was not in its proper place. It was out flitting around in a fantastic world, wool-gathering, and without a doubt it would soon come home and deposit on that banquet table a pile of imaginings which the guests would carry away for truth. What would the poet say next?

"You see before you, my friends, my comrade in captivity, a true hero, a soldier as resplendent with medals as his body is glorious with wounds, a man who worked untold miracles of valor in the wars for our vast colonial empire. Now, there you have military valor at its undisputed heights. Whereas I—I am nothing but a poor poet, with prospect, at the most, of demonstrating at certain moments my portion of civic heroism.

"You recall the scene yourselves, for the papers and the writings of historians have engraved the picture on your minds with indelible outlines, endowing me with an eternity I do not deserve. We were about to start on the deadly march into exile. The cry I uttered was something superior to my will, for my will would have counseled prudence. But, as you see, when civic heroism is awakened in a man it knows no danger. I shouted, 'Down with the kaiser! Death to the invader.' And this man, this warrior, the hero of a hundred battles, perhaps because he had a clearer vision of reality than I, seized my hands beseechingly: 'For heaven's sake, master, what are you thinking of? Do you want to get us all shot? Please, master, be calm.' My dear comrade here cannot have forgotten his emotions at that moment. As a soldier of unquestioned heroism, he will doubtless admit, with no sign of shame, that at that instant, and perhaps for the first time in his whole life, he knew what fear was like."

The Commandant Pierrefonds was unable to say a word. A round of handclapping broke in upon the poet's peroration. And as Monsieur Simoulin sat down the guests all crowded in his direction to shake his hand in sincere admiration for his naïve straightforward eloquence. The speaker sat there fanning himself, perspiring with emotion and fatigue.

Pierrefonds hesitated a moment.

Finally he strode toward the door. In the banquet hall people were so much engaged with Monsieur Simoulin that no one noticed the commandant's withdrawal. No one saw his violent gestures nor heard the words of indignation that forced their way out from under his gray mustache.

After that evening Pierrefonds was never seen again in the historic town of X—— in French Flanders.

According to some people, he took to his bed and never left it again.

Others think he moved out of the city, unable to tolerate the presence of the poet who had a lunatic in his house.

must have been hateful to their weary bodies.

"And Monsieur Simoulin? Has Monsieur Simoulin survived the torture?"

Yes, Monsieur Simoulin proved to be alive and well. Not only that. Though his captors had at first treated him like anybody else, there is a principle in life that the really brilliant light will shine even from under a bushel. It chanced that a German professor, who had once written a doctor's dissertation on the "History, Evolution and Present Dissemination of the Flemish Breakfast Roll, in Its Relation to the Sociological, Economic and Political Conditions in the town of X—" [in preparation of which he had had references to the "profound erudition and considerate courtesy of my learned friend, Monsieur Simoulin, director of the National Library Museum"], noticed "our poet's" name on the list of prisoners. The professor had secured Monsieur Simoulin's transfer to the university town, and through the librarian's recommendation, Commandant Pierrefonds, on the basis of his numismatic avocation, shared in the privilege. Four years had passed for the pair, and wearily enough, to be sure, but endurably. And now Monsieur Simoulin and his "bulldog" were coming home.

The town council voted a public holiday to welcome "our poet" on his return from captivity. Why not, in fact? Had not this distinguished citizen added to the laurels of literature the halo of heroism? When others had fled before the invader, he had stood courageously at his post, and the glory encircling his venerable head was of such radiance that the ferocious enemy himself had been moved to respect, according him privileges denied to his other comrades in exile.

The roof threatened to leap off the station at X— when Monsieur Simoulin stepped down from the train. An immense burst of applause greeted his arrival. Women dressed in black forgot their personal sorrows in the public joy of the great man's return. "But how he has aged!" The flourish, indeed, may have departed from Monsieur Simoulin's wavy white hair. But otherwise there was little change in him. He had the old excitable enthusiasm, the old nervousness, the old lyric eloquence which caused the town to thrill as under a first balmy zephyr of the Spring of Peace.

A yard or two behind Monsieur Simoulin came, as usual, his "bulldog," the Commandant Pierrefonds, Retired. The soldier's features had the same cast of concentrated sourness as before. One had to look very closely to detect an expression of deeper melancholy in his eyes. The Germans had confiscated his collection of ancient coins. Nothing but the housekeeper was left to cheer his solitary bachelor's home. What could a fellow do after such a loss? "You can't start a new collection at my age!" By force of habit, more than anything else, he dogged along in "our poet's" footsteps. The crowd was escorting Monsieur Simoulin to the balcony of the Hotel de Ville, and nobody paid any attention to the Commandant Pierrefonds.

Monsieur Simoulin spoke that day in his very best manner. Years will pass before the memory of his "oration on the occasion of return from exile" vanishes from the historic town of X——. What tears! What cheers! The poet described the martyrdom of the city, the sufferings of its sons and daughters, the agony of those who had died far away on hostile ground. But eventually he came to touch, with his well known modesty and reserve, on his own personal part in the epic of X——.

"Honor me not," he protested disparagingly. "What have I done? My duty, perhaps, as you all, we all, have done. Haughty and unconcerned we faced the invader, heroes conscious that the heroism of sacrifice is nobler, aye, a thousand times nobler, than the heroism of victory. . . ."

Here he was compelled to pause, while a thunder of cheers swept over the crowded square.

"But may I, in closing, just relate one incident which will serve you as evidence of the heights that human heroism can attain when, strong in the conviction of a just cause, it fears neither torment nor death? I should refrain from mentioning this incident, were I alone the chief actor in it. But a man, now standing near me, had his glorious part therein; and it would be a crying shame to deprive him of that portion of the glory which belongs to him."

Monsieur Simoulin went on to describe the departure of the deportees from X——. "I and the Commandant Pierrefonds, Retired, were in the front line. We had decided to die rather than endure the shame of such treatment. So, as we passed in front of the German tyrant, we embraced each other, and then facing our captors we shouted in his face: 'Down with the kaiser! Death to the invader.'"

Commandant Pierrefonds started with surprise and then he flushed in indignation. His reddish-gray mustache began to writhe about his lips as though it were bending under the pressure of an avalanche of pent up curses.

But the speaker had given way to the suggestion of his own words. Monsieur Simoulin had embraced the commandant, scowlingly affronting the imaginary foe, and picturing on his face the heroic resignation of a man offering himself to the executioner. Besides, not even the commandant's oaths would have been audible in the roar of appreciation that ascended from the multitude.

The lunatic in the librarian's house had come to life again, and was up to her old tricks. Monsieur Simoulin was again "embroidering."

The commandant swept the embracing arms aside. He bent his head in shame. For the first time in his life he was allowing a lie to go unchallenged. Nevertheless, there was a touch of pleasure in his disappointment. Never before had even half a public ovation fallen to his lot.

. . . . . .

And two more years went by.

By that time the heroic act of Monsieur Simoulin had produced an echo as far away as Paris. His famous cry in the face of the German army had become national property. As for the city of X——, "our poet" had now been rechristened "our hero." Whenever Monsieur Simoulin appeared before a crowd, the shout would rise: "Down with the kaiser! Death to the invader!" The children would leave school with that cheer upon their lips, and in passing the white haired old man, they would take off their hats as though they were saluting the flag of the republic.

Meanwhile Commandant Pierrefonds was living in a dream. He was beginning to wonder whether the lunatic were not living now in his own house, so absurd and impossible did the situation seem. However, the "master" had really mentioned him in the famous speech, and a part of the applause had risen to the Commandant Pierrefonds.

The ADVENTURER by Oney Fred Sweet

THE fact that two lines of railroad cross each other at a certain point does not necessarily mean there is a town at this point. Inasmuch as towns have a habit of springing up on the least possible excuse, it would seem that where two railroads intersect there would be a main street and a movie. But the dot marked Gerled in the northeastern part of the map of Iowa is a place where two lines of transportation cross on the prairie—that's all.

Wait a minute. Maybe you've changed cars at Gerled. A lot of folks have. And right away you'd contradict this introduction. There is a combination ticket office, postoffice, and store at Gerled. The one building of the town is a residence, as well, and the entire population of the place lives there. But the cornfields wave close to the back door and a cow could graze anywhere.

The train from the north, if I have my directions correctly, passes under a viaduct which supports the trains from the east. The traveling man who transfers with trunks slides his baggage up and down a plank placed on a stairway for this purpose. There is a huge maple on the embankment, and the shade shifts beneath its branches.

Sitting beneath the shade of this maple, waiting for your train, you get a view of the surrounding country, and at harvest time, when the fields are green and gold and the sky is blue and white, it is a more comfortable place to wait than in a hot union station. Especially if there is a breeze blowing, such as there happened to be on the hot afternoon when Tom Riley sat there shuffling a pack of greasy playing cards.

Tom might have been sixteen—not more than that. He had stopped off at Gerled because a brakeman on a freight train coming from the east had "ditched" him at that junction. Tom knew that he was far west of the Mississippi and not a great distance from the Missouri. And he felt that he was a long way from Chicago and the neighborhood in which the Rileys lived—where he had lived until he had heard the call of the west.

A gentleman wearing a conservative straw hat—the one with the brim turned down in front and of the sort that could be in style seasons back and seasons hence—observed Thomas, his khaki overalls, his gloves stuck in his hip pocket, his cap on one side of his head, his face that said "sixteen," and the pack of greasy cards.

"Which way you going, son?"

"West."

"What for?"

"Going out where they make movies. There ain't a horse so wild that I can't ride, and I shoot straight with a gun. Guess there ain't no gunplay much around here."

The man dropped his suitcase to the stairway steps and a smile crossed his thin lips. He needed help on his place—needed it badly. And he knew at a glance that the boy looked upon farm work as unromantic.

"You've struck just the place you're hunting for, son. I expect the folks to meet me here with the car before long, and we'll drive out to my—my 'ranch.' Ever had any experience with cattle rustlers?"

He congratulated himself for thinking of "cattle rustlers." It had caused a stir of his imagination—had taken him way back to his own dime novel reading days. But the youth's imagination worked without effort.

"Only once—down in old Mexico," he answered dreamily. "It was quite a few years ago. We rode three nights across the purple sage until we got that bunch. I nipped three of 'em before they surrendered."

"Well, well."

"I remember the night I walked into a gambling house down on the border and——"

"Here's the hired man with the car," the gentleman interrupted. "You can tell me about it as we drive along. I wouldn't say much to the hired man about your adventures of the past or the adventures you have in mind. He's sort of a skeptical cuss. But we can talk together when we're alone. What do you think of that cornfield there? Did you ever see anything coming finer? It'll be needed this winter."

"It'd make a dandy scene if it was cleared off."

The man laughed, and then he asked:

"Hungry?"

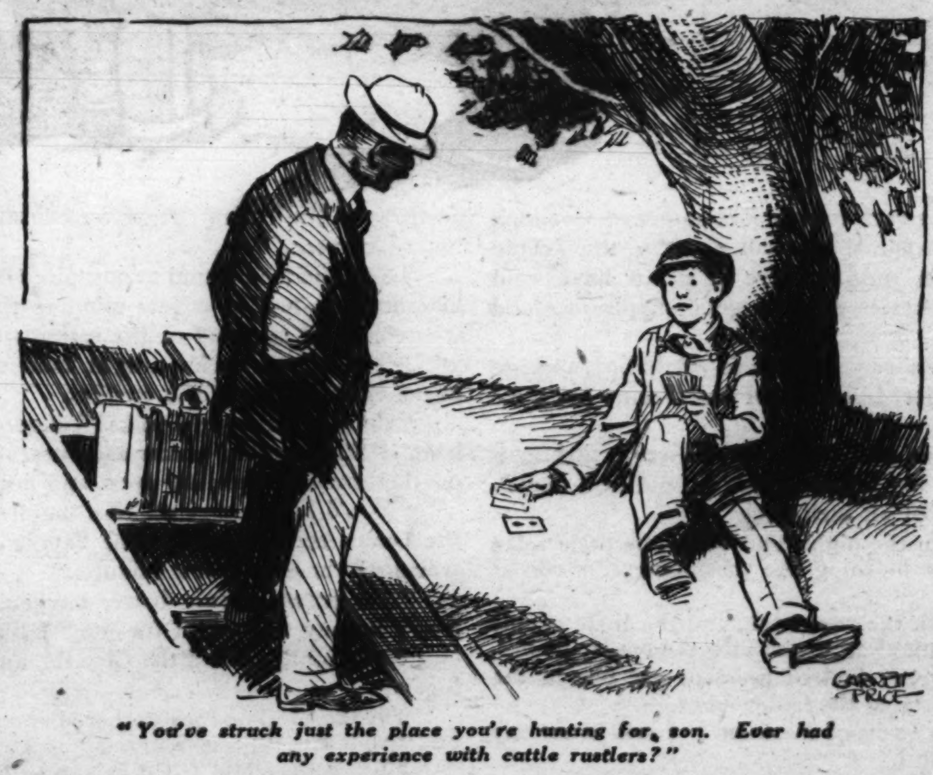
"Say, I am hungry, mister. Ain't had nothing since a sandwich this morning. Charged me ten cents for it. It's awful, ain't it, the way they profiteer nowadays?"

The man thought it was.

"Here's the place," he said, finally, as the car turned at a willow shaded roadway. "Bet you can't climb to the top of that windmill."

"Bet I could if I ever got something to eat again."

"Well, you'll have a chance tomorrow. We get up pretty early out here. The hired man says that if it don't rain, tomorrow will be a good time to make hay. And while you're helping us I want you to keep your eye peeled for those dang cattle rustlers. Work right along as if you was one of us."



"You've struck just the place you're hunting for, son. Ever had any experience with cattle rustlers?"

"That'll fool 'em, won't it?" smiled the adventurer.

And it so happened that during the haying next day not a cattle rustler put in his appearance. It gave the man a good chance to show the adventurer how to make hay. That night after the adventurer had had his initiation at milking cows and had gone to bed, the man took the address that he had maneuvered for and wrote painfully and painstakingly to a senior Thomas Riley, who was a contractor living on the west side in Chicago:

"I don't suppose you know where your boy is," he wrote, "but he's here with me. I can't say how long he'll stay here or how he's going to get along, but for the present you don't need to worry, and I'll keep you posted. He may write you that he's making big money as a gold miner, and he'll be telling the truth so far as the first part goes. What I've got to do is to make him think he's far enough west."

August came and brought its goldenrod. The corn towered green and defied the approach of the first frost. It was Saturday night and the man and the boy drove into town alone. Not to Gerled this time, but to a neighboring town where the autos were parked clear down the center of Main street, and the soda fountain was gushing, and the electric piano played inside the movie.

The man cashed a check first and he turned the money from it over to the boy.

"Here's what's coming to you," he suggested. "I suppose you'll want a suit of clothes. One of those coats with a belt that comes up around the armpits. Now, you get out on the street and do just what you want to." His voice became husky. "There's a train that goes through here at 9 o'clock. You can find me any time out in front of the Columbia café."

Wistfully he watched the boy saunter down the street. He noticed how the shoulders had squared out. He would have liked to have followed, but he refrained. He went and sat down on the curbing in front of the Columbia café to talk politics with the bunch that was always there on Saturday night.

He heard the 9 o'clock train whistle in down at the station—heard it whistle out again. He waited until 10. The town became deserted. He got up, looked along the street. The adventurer was nowhere to be seen. The boy—the boy that had brought back his own boyhood, the boy that was so like the boy he might have had—well, he guessed——

He turned the drug store corner and there the boy was. He was in the midst of a group from neighboring farms and he was doing the talking. His back was turned. He was engrossed in what he was saying.

Was it of his adventures among the Mexicans and the cowboys, his exploits with bronchos and sixshooters that he was conversing so earnestly? He paused in the shadow of the building, and listened:

"On that south field of ours we've got as good a stand of corn as there is in the county. The west 'forty' is a little poor—too much rain there in July. How'd your fellow's oats do?"

The man heard, turned back. He went over to the telegraph station and he sent a wire to Thomas Riley Sr.:

"You don't need to worry about that boy at all. He's coming along great."

And then the man went back and waited on the curbing in front of the Columbia café. He sat there until he got the vigorous slap on the back he was waiting for—until he heard in outdoor tones:

"Come on, Old Timer; let's hit 'er for home."

There were times of repose and meditation when the corners of his mouth turned down and the deeply graven lines around it looked like a steel trap that had sprung shut. His mottled eyes, under heavy eyebrows, would then have a singularly unresponsive look, and one might get the idea of a large, self centered animal which would walk calmly over one if so minded. But when he smiled or laughed that rather forbidding mask completely disappeared. His whole face lit up sunnily and he showed an excellent set of teeth.

"So Dansby says she's a bit off, eh?" he commented, in response to a report from the stables which Ted Pennell had orally delivered to him. "Well, Dansby's always saying they're a bit 'orf.'" He chuckled, imitating the groom's accent. "He's the gloomiest man I know. I hired him because he reminded me of Pete Beamish." He looked over at his wife, shining with humorous relish, saying: "I don't think I ever told you about Pete Beamish.

"Pete bought a half section of land from the railroad in the Kern River country at $2.50 an acre. In those days that was about as discouraging a country as you could find. Sheep could grub out a living if you gave 'em enough of it to range over, but there was just about enough stuff on a half section to starve a cow on. Of course, Pete Beamish stuck to cows. I don't doubt it was enough to spoil his temper.

"Well, I bought his half section—along with some others—for the same $2.50 he'd agreed to pay the railroad, although he was a long way from having done it. When we struck oil on it Pete laid it up against me. They said he was a Mormon and had been an elder in the church, or something like that, over in Utah—before the other elders, that wanted to get a laugh out of life now and then, chased him out of the country. I was on the street in Bakersfield one day, with three or four others, and Pete came up to us.

"I'd never seen him before then; the land buying had been done through an agent; but he knew who I was, all right, and called me by name. He looked just about like his land had looked before we struck oil on it. To look at him two minutes would discourage you for an hour—just about Dansby's size, 5 feet high, and only a bone. His face wouldn't even grow an eyebrow—it was only kind of a pucker with a hole in it for a mouth. He called me by name, and he cursed me."

A gurgle and sputter of mirth escaped from the judge as he recalled it. "Pete was some curser, too—regular Nehemiah business, if Nehemiah's the chap I mean. It took him ten minutes, talking as fast as he could make his tongue go. The men with me were sort of startled and indignant at first and might have had a notion of interfering; but it fascinated them, too. Other people came up—quite a crowd in the street—and we were all wondering how long he could keep it up. Naturally, when he stopped, we all roared. That nettled Pete, and he started in again—kind of a codicil, although, so far as I could see, he hadn't overlooked anything in the original document. He took in the crowd that time, and the town, and the Kern River country, and the state, and so on up to the nation. I guess the Almighty would have had enough on hand to keep him busy for ten years if he'd filled the order. Dansby reminded me of Pete; that's why I hired him."

"And what became of Pete?" asked Ted Pennell, relishing the story and hoping for a sequel.

The judge pondered it a moment and replied: "That spoils the story. There were two other half sections up there, and after we'd struck oil and really knew what we had I gave those chaps a little look-in. Pete Beamish heard about it and came down to Los Angeles and managed to get into my office and begged like a cripple for a little look-in, too. Finally I gave him a little something, although I knew I shouldn't. Spoils the story, you see."

But his wife, smiling across the table at him, said softly, "I like it better spoiled."

"Well, Anne, you never could appreciate a good, plumb, out-and-out cuss anyway," the judge chuckled back.

Nearby, one saw that there were some white threads in her brown hair and faint pencilings of time at the corners of her fine gray eyes; and one would have believed the statement about her which the judge had just made.

Mrs. Hilton, listening to the talk and watching the talkers at this friendly family board, felt an odd touch of unreality about it, as though she were still masquerading. She had changed her tight-fitting dress for a looser garment in whose soft drapery a bit of stiff paper about nine inches long by four inches wide might be concealed. That bit of paper was still upstairs in her jewel case, but it was on her mind every instant—and a sting of humiliation over the rôle for which she had been cast.

It was a quarter past two when they arose from the table, and the postman would be coming about three. When they drifted back into the living room she was furtively watching for a glimpse of Katey. It wouldn't be difficult, she thought, to manage Katey if only she could get a minute's speech with the careless maid. Katey's sense of discipline and responsibility was of the most rudimentary sort anyway, and generally her good nature was boundless. No doubt she would bring the mail to Mrs. Hilton before any other member of the family saw it if Mrs. Hilton asked her to. She liked Mrs. Hilton, and her pretty head was full of little stratagems and ruses in her own romantic affairs. There would be no trouble—Mrs. Hilton was sure—about managing Katey. But the trouble was to get speech with her. She didn't like to send for her and so—in however slight a way—bring another servant into it; especially not Benjamin, the butler.

With an aimless air, she circulated through the lower story, and at half past two went upstairs and concealed the envelope in her dress. She circulated through that story and ran upstairs; but Katey's room was still just as she had seen it before. She wondered what servants in this big house did with themselves except when one rang for them. When she got downstairs again it was eighteen minutes to three and a panic seized her, for the postman might come before three and the fatal letter—after all the elaborate plot—get into the judge's hand by the mere accident of her having missed Katey. And when it came to the test she could bear the exposure, ruin and disgrace of the man whose name she bore almost as little as he could. She must keep the ugly patches hidden from the world if possible.

She saw Ted Pennell lounging in the room rather humorously called the library, at the left of the hall, smoking a pipe and looking over the sporting page of a New York newspaper; and she hastened to him in her panic.

"Teddy, run upstairs and see if you can find Katey for me," she urged. "Don't let anybody know—part of the secret, you see. Send her down here to me if you see her."

He felt the urgency in her voice and without question hastened to obey. Her thought was that with Ted looking upstairs and she looking downstairs the maid would be found. Again she circulated through the rooms on that floor. But it was only twelve minutes of three now and her panic was increasing. Very likely Katey had left the house for the afternoon, and Lena or another servant—maybe Benjamin himself—would get the mail. She knew the postman came up on a bicycle, for she had seen him; but there were two roads—or, rather, one that roughly described a horseshoe, so that, by entering one gate one could pass the house and leave by the other gate. Two or three minutes passed. She caught up a wrap and left the hall by the west door, going out on the roadway where she could see in either direction. And she had been at that post only two or three grueling minutes when she saw the figure in grayish uniform pedaling up the road from the south gate.

She walked away from the house to meet the postman, wondering if he would make any difficulties. But he made none at all—on the contrary, responding to her smile and question, he smiled himself, putting his foot to the ground and touching his cap, and gave her the sheaf of letters in his hand, which he had already taken from his leather bag ready to deliver to the house.

Turning back to the house, she slipped the handful of letters under her wrap; but her eye had caught one long, creamy-yellow envelope, a mate to the one concealed in her dress. No one was in sight when she stepped into the hall, and without going further she slipped the long envelope into her dress and put her forgery into its place. She then laid the mail on the hall table, and threw off her wrap. The thing was done! But her brain whirled; she felt weak, and slowly climbed the stairs to shut herself in her bedroom and lock the stolen letter in her jewel case. . . . The thing was done! She bowed her dark head, put her hands over her face and sat trembling. . . .

As she so sat, callers came to the house—two of them—and in a very unceremonious fashion. They strolled along the brick terrace in front; one of them looked into the hall through the broad glass panel of the door, and, seeing that the hall looked empty, simply opened the door and walked in. From the hall she glanced into the living room at the right and the library of the left, and then, raising her voice a little, called out:

"Oh, Anne? . . . Tilly!"

As there was no answer, she observed composedly to her companion, "They may have gone out," and began unbuttoning her coat.

She was a fair, plump woman, middle-aged and remarkably composed. One very soon got that impression of her—as though nothing less than an earthquake could discompose her and that not very much or very long. She would still have been called a quite handsome woman, in spite of her middle age and considerably too much flesh. She dropped her coat on the most convenient chair, and—chancing to notice the mail lying on the table—coolly stepped up and looked it over. After which she as coolly observed to her companion:

"What a lot of letters! Nearly all for Tilly, though—business. Why don't you take off your coat, daughter?" she added.

The person thus addressed was not plump, or middle aged or composed. On the contrary, she was slim, with a rose of youth in her cheeks, even if the sharp air outside had not brought color there. Thick waves of hair showed under the curled brim of her round, snug hat, light blue in color and like a boy's feminized headgear. By way of responding to her mother's question she only unbuttoned her long coat at the neck and turned away with a little, lithe, impatient movement. It was gracefully done and gave the impression of a catlike play of springy young nerves and muscles. One might have caught, also, an impatient little smother of rebellion in her dark gray eyes, half veiled under long lashes—as though she were there against her will and, for another thing, didn't like her mother's cool examination of the mail on the table.

This was Miss Elizabeth Loughman—Peggy to her friends. She loved her mother fiercely and—at twenty—half the time wanted to spank her, which amused the mother. They were all but members of the Crane household. Once upon a time Tillman Crane had held a minor judicial office, by appointment, for six months, and ever since then he had been called "Judge," just as he would have been called "Colonel" if he had lived in the south instead of the west. Some years after the judicial incident he began adventuring in oil and presently encountered another adventurer, considerably younger than himself, named Ben Loughman. The younger adventurer was very western—lean and ready for anything, with a joke at the end of his tongue; and that, with sure-footed native shrewdness, constituted practically his whole capital at the time Judge Crane fell in with him. The judge liked Ben Loughman, and came to have a high regard for his judgment in oil matters. The two men worked together in a free and easy partnership until the careless handling of a gun on a hunting expedition tragically ejected Ben Loughman from the scene in the twinkling of an eye.

He left a wife, a daughter, aged nine, and a tangle of more or less speculative business affairs. When Judge Crane was apprised of the tragedy he stared a moment, the corners of his mouth dropped and a deep parenthesis of graven lines formed around them; he swallowed and rubbed his brow and said, "That's too damned bad!" And that was all he ever did say on the subject. But he proceeded with Ben Loughman's tangled affairs on the basis of a partnership. As to those properties in which he and Loughman had had a joint interest he might have simply permitted Loughman's interest to be sold and his estate to be wound up. But he went ahead as though Loughman were still alive. In the continuous process of developing, organizing, capitalizing and consolidating those particular properties a certain proportion of the shares were registered in the name of Mrs. Julia Loughman.

Mrs. Loughman had never known anything worth mentioning of her husband's business affairs. She knew nothing worth mentioning of her own business affairs now. She knew only that an ever-rising tide of gold poured into her lap. Of course, she loved "Tilly" Crane for it—a few intimates took their revenge for his judicial title by attaching to his bony, six-feet-two the absurd nickname of "Tilly." But she would have loved him anyway unless he had treated her quite badly. Her affections were spontaneous and gregarious; she just naturally liked people unless they positively misused her. She was lazy bodily and mentally; she had no ideas worth speaking of; but when she came into a room the atmosphere subtly became more genial; people smiled when they thought of her. Her code was the simplest imaginable—just to be nice and cheerful to everybody; and in her forty-five years of life that simple code had been sufficient. The tide of gold that poured into her lap seemed to her the most natural thing in the world. "Tilly" and Ben had been friends; that amply accounted for it.

When Judge Crane bought the sixty acres for Overlook House he bought ten other acres adjoining it on the south. The same architect built Mrs. Loughman's smaller house at the same time that Overlook was built. The judge charged the amount up to her, but she was uncertain as to how much it was. She walked into Overlook House as unceremoniously as into her own and with the same innocent curiosity glanced at the mail on the hall table. But her slim daughter turned away with a little impatient movement.

About then Mrs. Loughman heard a door close, some distance away, and again she raised her voice, calling, "Anne?"

"That you, Judy?" Mrs. Crane replied from the other side of the living room and one could have told that there was a little bubble of laughter in the tone. She was still smiling when Mrs. Loughman, followed by her daughter, crossed the threshold into the living room. The two older women greeted, sisterly.

"But take off your coat, Peg," said Mrs. Crane to the younger woman; and in addressing her there appeared a subtle difference from the manner of addressing her mother. Without any tie of blood there was, between middle aged Anne Crane and young Elizabeth Loughman, a tie which in its way quite transcended the tie between mother and daughter. In a rough and fond jocularity, Judge Crane had once said to the mother, "Something on your mind? Bless your soul, Judy, you never had anything on your mind except your hair and never will have!" That would never be said to Anne Crane. She had many understandings of the restless, mettlesome, high strung girl which the mother missed. That difference was confessed in the older woman's soft gray eyes as she looked at the girl and in the girl's darker eyes as she looked back and threw off her coat—her slim body in a blue dress slipping out of its dun folds like a butterfly from a cocoon.

And just then, the three women standing a little aside from the door to the hall, Ted Pennell came striding through the door, frowning a bit as though he were in a great hurry and late. In fact, it was then two minutes past three; he had been looking for Katey in vain, and from Edith Hilton's manner he had gathered the impression that it was something urgent. So he strode through the doorway and at once found himself face to face with three females—or more particularly with one female in a charming blue dress and hat, with pink cheeks, whose dark gray eyes under long lashes were looking straight at him.

And, of course, in his confusion, he blurted, "O! . . . I was looking for Katey;" and at once colored red as a beet and glared and strode on, saying to himself, in wrath and despair, "Why was I such an idiot as to say that?" But he had said it, and he rushed on out of the room.

But Katey wasn't anywhere. He heartily wished Katey in tophet. Giving up the quest, he resigned himself to gloom and in a few minutes made for the stables with an idea out of which he derived some crumb of comfort—the idea—namely: that he would ride Blitzen and might have the good luck to break his neck..

Meanwhile, like one red flag answering another in signal practice, his blush had been followed by a wave of richer color in Peggy Loughman's cheeks, and a slight vertical line down the center of her forehead showed the hurt. Like most impetuous persons, she was easily read and Mrs. Crane read her. The opportunity to speak alone with her came a little later.

"Not quite friendly with Ted nowadays, Peg?" she suggested, confidentially, as the two sat side by side—a woman's confidence to a woman.

Peggy looked down at the nervous hands that stirred in her lap and replied, "He has other friends."

Mrs. Crane laughed a little in a way that wouldn't hurt—indulgent to young lovers and sympathetic—and asked, invitingly, "What is it?"

It was a rather difficult position for the girl. Ted Pennell was this older woman's nephew—her brother's son; and loved by her like a son. But Peggy loved the older woman, too—fiercely as she had to love everybody whom she loved at all—and she claimed her for the woman's side of this quarrel.

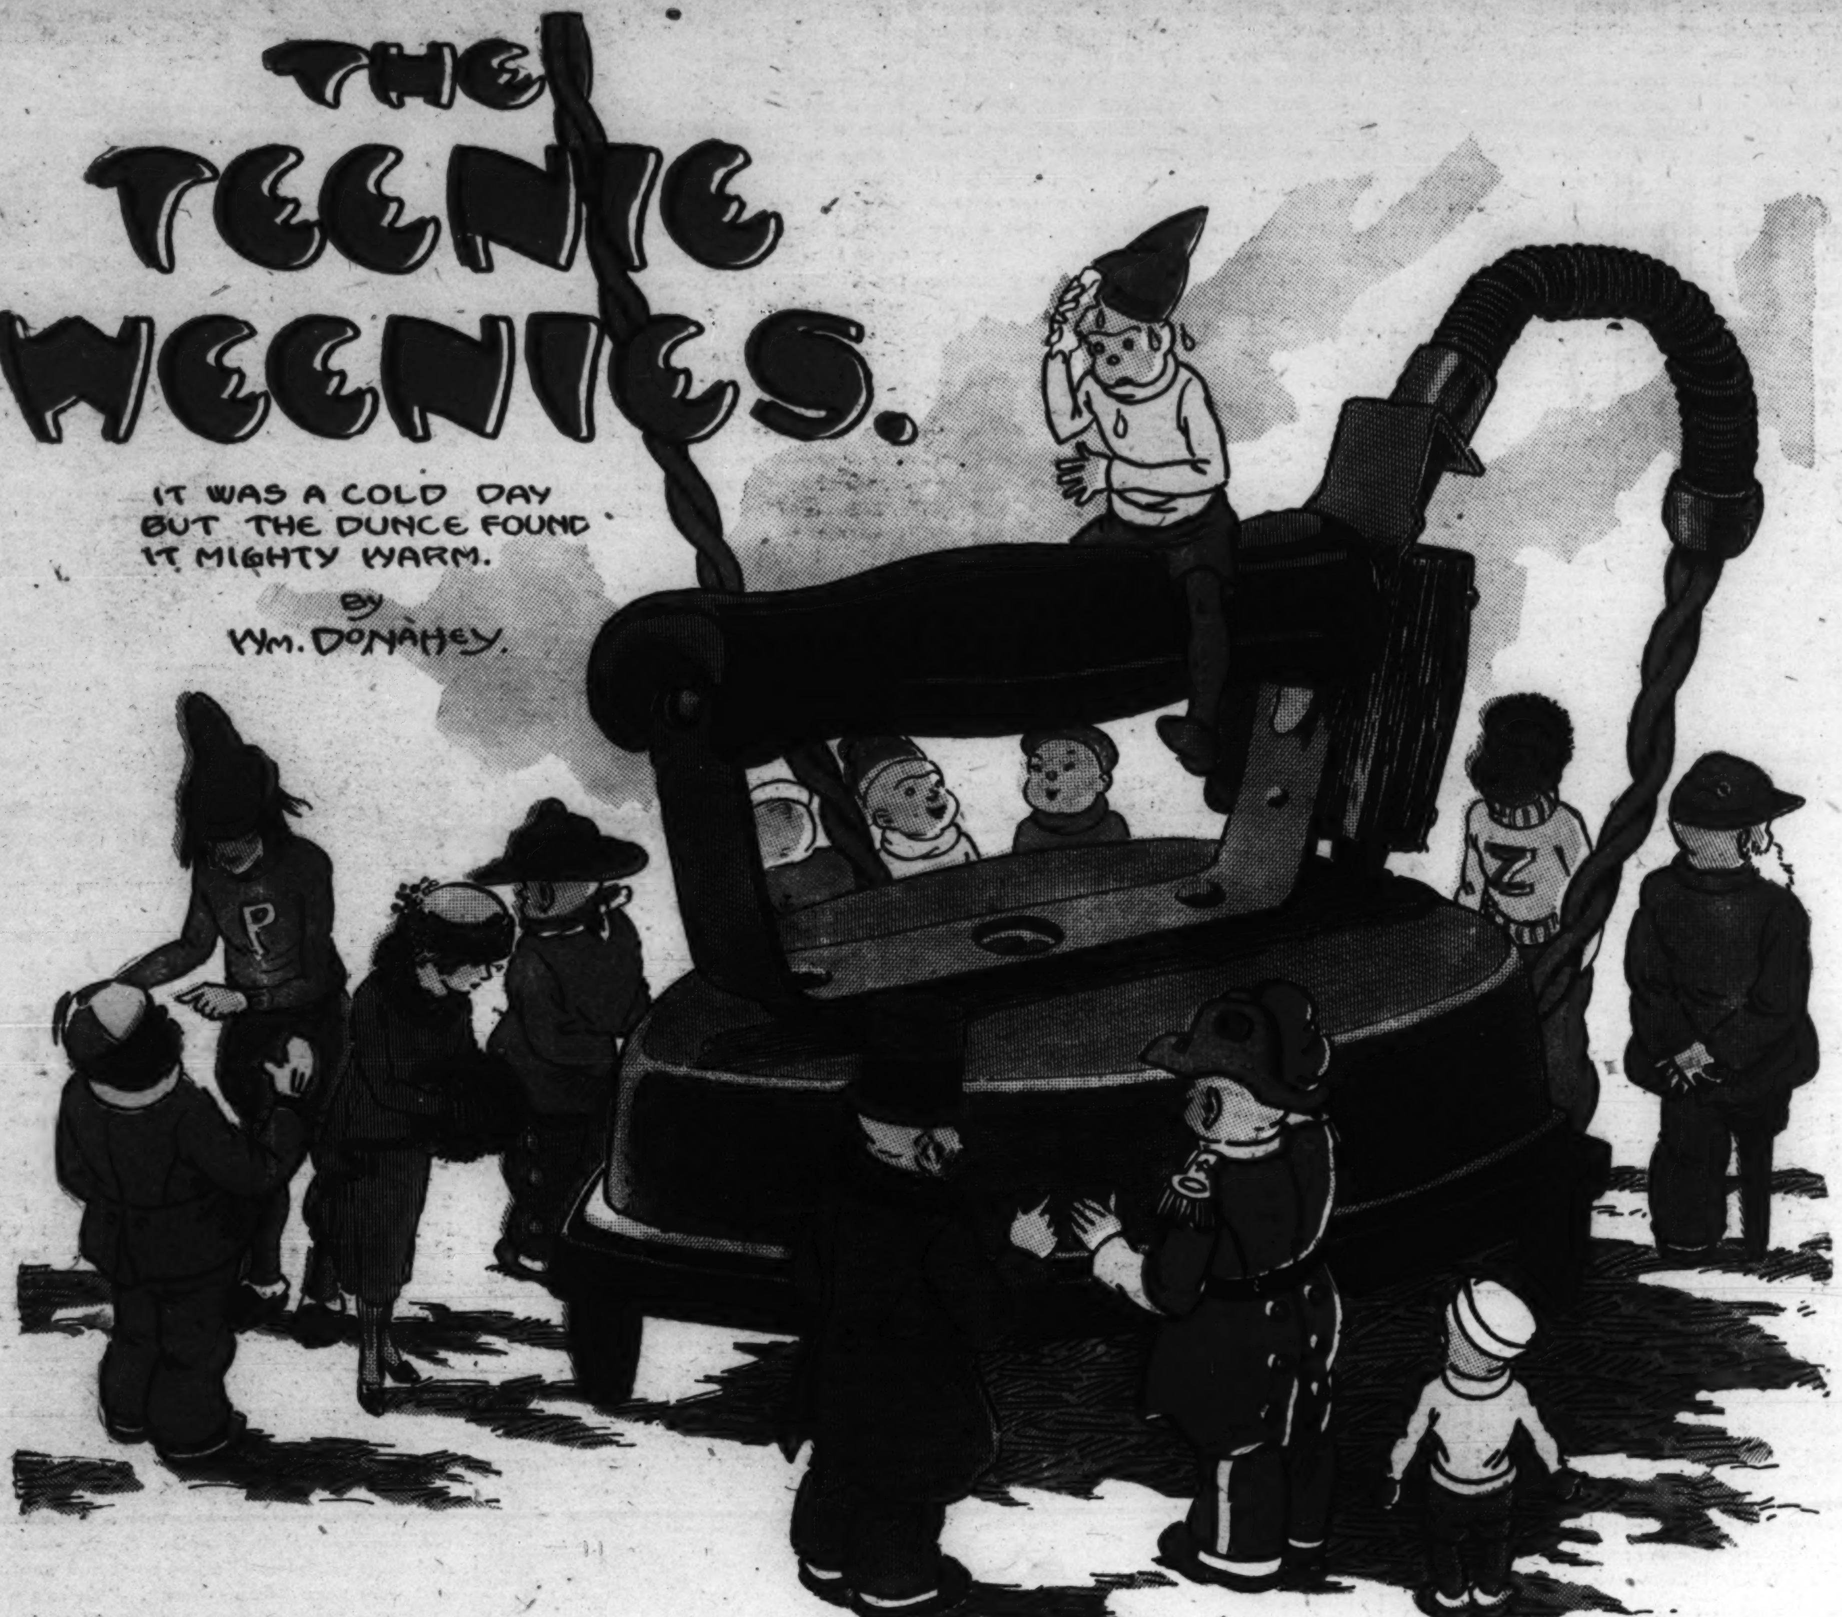
"He's flirting with that maid, Katey," she said, low, her eyes downcast; and then—upon hearing that flat sounding statement in her own voice, she flamed out, leaning a little toward her companion, looking her in the face, beseeching passionately for a fair understanding:

"I'm not a fool, Aunt Anne! I know flirting doesn't mean anything. If Ted wanted

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

IT WAS A COLD DAY BUT THE DUNCE FOUND IT MIGHTY WARM.

BY WM. DONAHEY.



"MY big toe is achin' pretty smart tonight," announced Grandpa one Saturday evening as he pulled his chair closer to the Teenie Weenie fire place. "That means we're goin' to have cold weather tomorrow, and I'd say we'd better get in a good supply of wood so we can keep up a good fire."

When Grandpa's toe ached it was a sure sign there would be a change in the weather, and the General ordered several of the Teenie Weenies to get in a big supply of wood.

The Turk, the Clown, the Sailor, and Gogo set to work, and in a short time the little fellows split up ten matches, half an old lead pencil, and a clothes pin into tiny logs almost an inch long.

The weather grew mighty cold in the night, and when the little folks crawled out of their tiny beds in the morning the thermometer stood at zero.

Sunday was a day of rest beneath the rose bush, and the little people sat nodding about the fire place, gazing sleepy-eyed into the bright flames.

"I think it would do us all a great deal of good to get out in the fresh air and take a long walk," suggested the Old Soldier.

"That will be lovely," cried the Lady of Fashion." I will wear my new caterpillar fur neckpiece and muff."

"I'll go," shouted the Dunce. "I can always eat more if I take a long walk on Sunday."

In a short time several of the little folks put on their warm coats and sweaters, and set off in the direction of the big woods.

After they had walked for some time several of the Teenie Weenies complained of being cold.

"Let's g-g-go into that big house over there and get warm," suggested the Dunce, pointing toward a house near by.

"That's a good plan," said the General, and soon the little folks made their way into the house, which they found quite deserted.

"J-J-Jimminie f-f-fishooks," chattered the Dunce. "It's as cold as a barn and it looks as though the folks who live here were all away."

"There's an electric iron up there on the table and the cord is attached to the socket," cried the Turk, pointing up to the top of a table high above his head.

"Maybe we could turn on the current and then we'd get as warm as toast in no time," said the Doctor.

The little people crawled up on to the table where they soon decided the heat could be turned on.

"We can turn on the current as easy as can be," cried the Turk. "It's a chain socket, and all we have got to do is to climb up the cord and tie a string to the chain. Then we can all catch hold of the string and pull on the current."

The Chinaman found a long piece of string, which the Turk slung over his shoulder, and in a few minutes the little chap climbed up the cord, where he tied one end of the string to the chain.

All the little folks caught hold of the string, and with a mighty heave they pulled on the current.

"C-C-C-Crickety j-j-jinks!" shouted the Dunce, who was feeling the iron. "She's gettin' warm as everything. I'm goin' to climb up and sit on the handle where it's good and hot."

"You'd better stay off that handle," cried the General as he watched the Dunce scramble up to the handle of the iron. "You'll find it pretty warm up there in a few minutes."

"I'm pretty nearly froze, I mean frozen," cried the Dunce, "and it won't be any too warm for me. I like it warm."

"All right," smiled the General, and winked at the Doctor in a knowing way.

The Teenie Weenies gathered about the iron, which soon grew warm, and toasted their tiny hands and feet.

"J-J-J-Jimminie C-C-Christmas, but it's gettin' hot up here!" cried the Dunce after a few minutes. "I think I'll get down." But the poor Dunce found this a hard thing to do, for just as soon as he slid off the wooden handle on the hot iron he let out a mighty howl and jumped back on the handle.

"S-s-s-say!" he bellowed, "shut off the heat so I can get down."

"The rest of us will get cold if we shut off the heat," said the General. "And, besides, you said you like it warm when I warned you not to climb up there."

The Dunce had nothing more to say, so he sat astride the handle and mopped the sweat off his tiny head, while the rest of the Teenie Weenies smiled at the foolish fellow.

In a short time the Teenie Weenies were quite warm, and when the current had been turned off the Turk climbed up the cord and removed the string.

"Well, I hope you got good and warm," cried the General, and the little folks hurried out of the house to continue their walk, leaving the Dunce sitting astride the handle, for the iron was still too hot to step on.

It was fully fifteen minutes before the Dunce could slide off the handle, and as he hurried to the shoe house he made up his mind that he would stay off flatiron handles for the rest of his life.

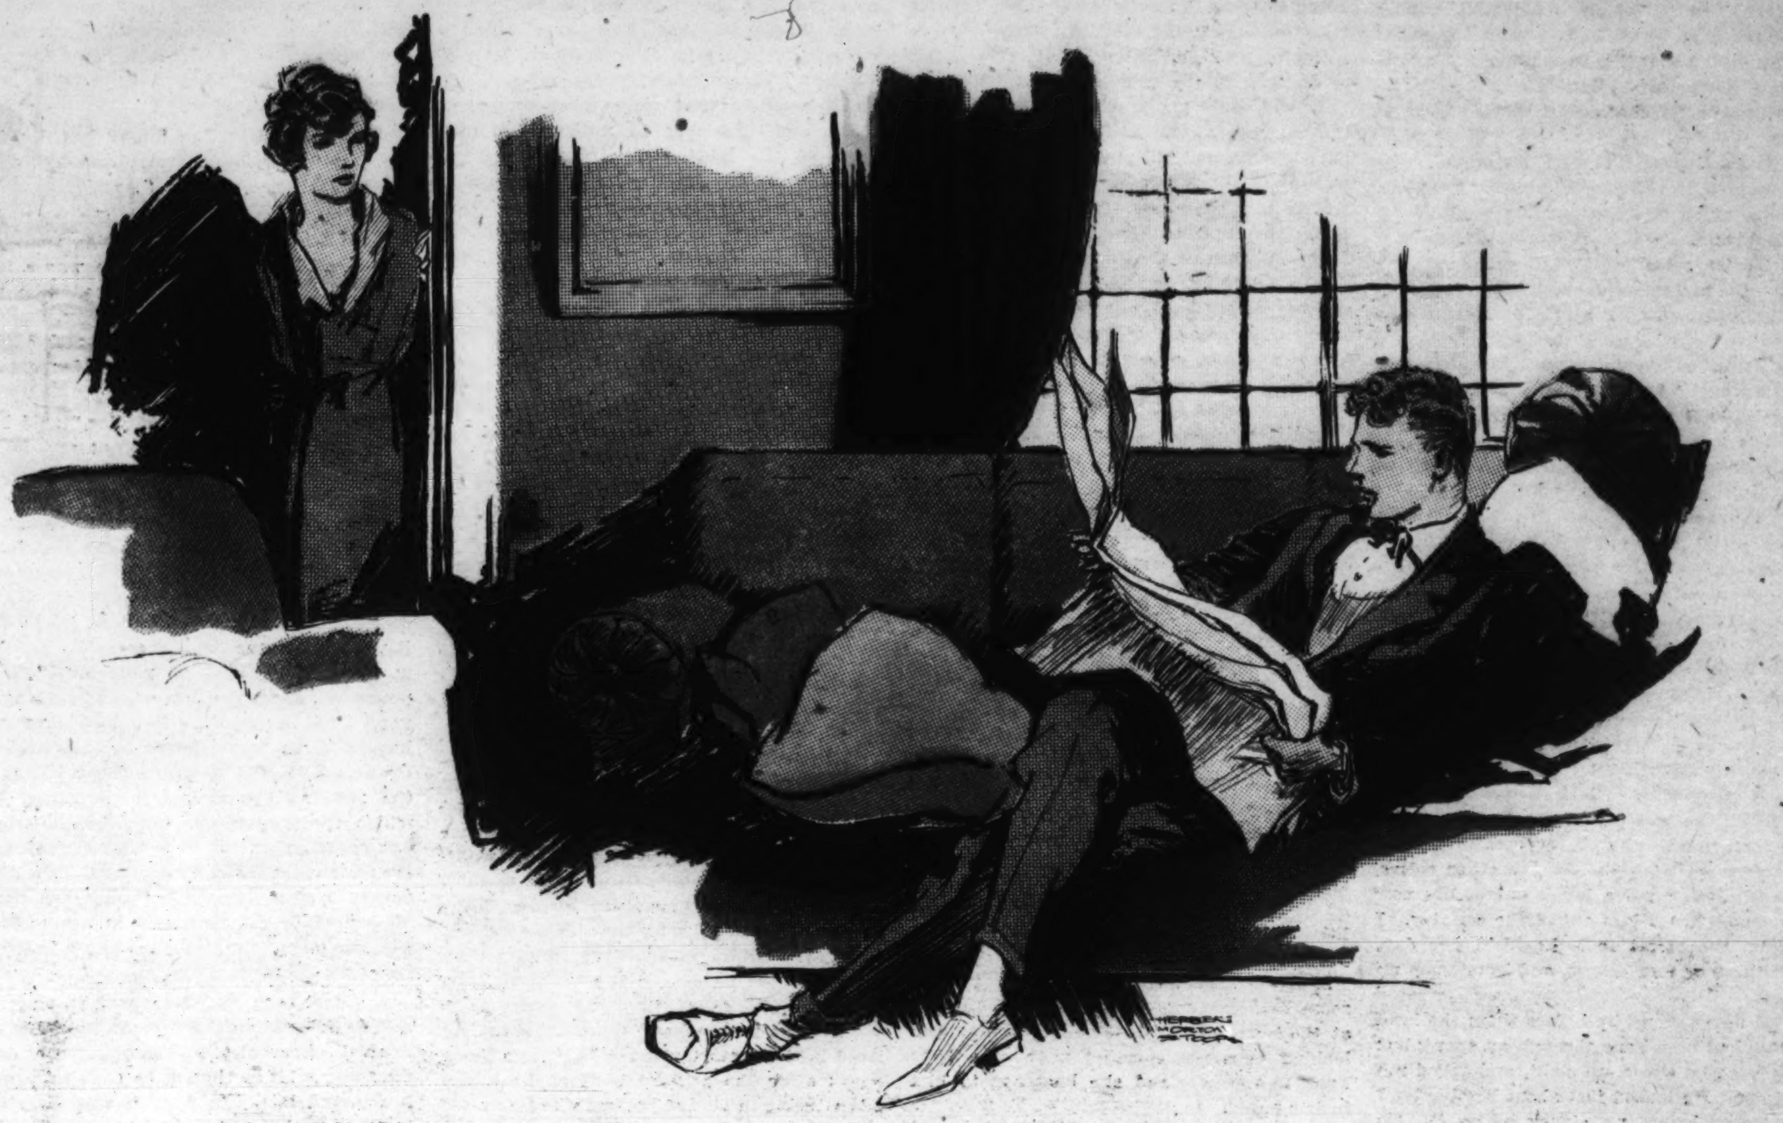
OVERLOOK HOUSE

Blue Ribbon Fiction

by Will Payne



She saw Ted Pennell lounging in the room rather humorously called the library, and she hastened to him in her panic.

THE STORY THUS FAR—Mrs. Edith Hilton is a guest at Overlook House, the stately home of Judge Tillman Crane, a wealthy owner of oil lands. One afternoon, after making her way furtively to the servants' quarters, she is surprised by Katey, a maid, in the act of carrying off a cloak and hat belonging to the girl. Katey has been quarreling with another maid over a minor love affair, but she is delighted that the aristocratic Mrs. Hilton should want to borrow her clothes, and quickly forgets her troubles. Meanwhile Mrs. Hilton, in her maid's disguise, slips away to a nearby town to meet her husband, Lester Hilton, who has sent her an urgent summons. Hilton's brokerage firm has been handling Judge Crane's interests and Hilton himself has been misappropriating the judge's securities. Unwittingly the firm has sent Judge Crane a letter which would reveal this, and Hilton asks his wife to intercept it and substitute another, which he gives her. Edith agrees reluctantly and on her way back is overtaken by Ted Pennell, son of Hilton's partner, who mistakes her at first for the maid, Katey, and then, discovering her masquerade, gives her a lift in his car. She makes him promise secrecy and faces the task of getting into the house unobserved, returning the borrowed garments, and watching for the mail, which Katey usually receives and distributes.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

Much Ado About Katey.

MRS. HILTON followed the bridle path through the woods, the envelope which her husband had given her in the pocket of her borrowed cloak. The gray bulk of Overlook house came into view across the formal garden which separated it from the woods. She struck into the cloistral aisle between two rows of slim evergreens that led straight across the garden and—she thought—gained the house without being observed.

Slipping through the door, she fled upstairs to the third story. Katey's room looked as when she had left it—not in order, the bed tumbled just as when the careless maid had got out of it that morning. Going over to the closet, Mrs. Hilton hung up the maid's saffron cloak and black straw hat with the red feather. Holding the long envelope in her hand, she felt it to be a kind of corpse of a murdered man which she must carry about with her and keep hidden until she could dispose of it. It had never before occurred to her that a bit of stiff paper some nine inches long by four wide could be so conspicuous or that a woman's tailored street dress was so bare of hiding places. She tucked the envelope lengthwise under the arm, gained her own bedroom at the further end of the second story, and there locked it in her jewel case. Half an hour later she went downstairs.

The house faced toward the sea. From the broad, brick paved terrace along its sea front a beautifully kept lawn spread downward 300 yards to the precipitous rock line of the shore. Bowlders—tumbled, gigantic, and washed by the tide—lay beneath. Sometimes a heavy storm flung the spray high over the rim of the rocky wall that rose from the water—to the damage of Judge Crane's grass. In any weather except fog, anywhere along that rocky rim, one had a fine view of the sea at large and of the incessant play of waves over the half-submerged bowlders along the shore. But to return to the house across the lawn from that vantage point involved something of a climb, as the ascent was 150 feet or so. North of the lawn, therefore, the judge had built a winding cement walk by which one could make the journey between the house and the rock rim over easier grades.

As Mrs. Hilton, gaining the main floor of the house, looked seaward she saw a procession coming up this cement walk at leisurely gait. First there was a tall, spare, but broad shouldered, man in a plaid cap and ulster. He was walking backward, and he had hooked the crook of his cane over the dash of a big, wicker wheeled chair, so that he could pull the chair after him. He seemed not to be exerting himself very greatly, however, and he was laughing as he talked to the woman in the chair. That was Judge Crane.

The woman in the chair was tall, also, and of full figure. She wore a thick woolen coat and hat and a lap robe of costly fur was tucked around her. The keen salt air down by the sea had whipped her cheeks pink; her gray eyes sparkled, and she was laughing as she looked up at the judge. That was his wife—wedded seven years before, after a dozen years of widowhood during which his fortune had grown like a magic beanstalk. The last person in the procession was not as tall as the judge, but broader, deep chested, and bandy legged. A great yellow mustache that might have been the envy of a grenadier barred his broad face in a straight line. He was wearing a somewhat soiled sweater and a cap was stuck on the back of his head, exposing a mane of straw-colored hair. That was Louis, nominally a gardener, who was really furnishing the motive power for the wheeled chair.

Mrs. Crane was forbidden to walk down to the sea across the lawn—or, rather, to walk up again. Her figure denoted ample bodily vigor. Usually the casual observer would have noted no sign of ill health on her face. When she had married Judge Crane—she then being 37—she had supposed herself to be in the soundest bodily condition and unusually strong for a woman. And when the California ranch house caught fire no one was more active than she, or more competent. As soon as it seemed probable that the north wing would go, too, she remembered the iron box containing the judge's papers. Running up there, she picked it up confidently, carried it downstairs and quite a distance away from the house, where they were piling other salvage. She stooped to put the box down—and couldn't understand why she toppled over and was unable to rise.

That had been nearly four years ago, and ever since then there had been something in the back of her gray eyes—as though, in spite of all the learned explanations and positive expert statements, she still couldn't understand that the fine machine of her body wouldn't work any more as it used to. It was something as though a college of experts had abruptly announced to her: "You think you are a white woman, but you are mistaken; you're really black"—an incredible, smashing blow between the eyes out of the dark.

Her body looked the same, and usually, when she was quiet, it felt about the same. But inside something had gone incurably wrong—at the heart. At first she had tried to disbelieve the doctors, but when she carried her disbelief into practice by exerting herself as of old she quickly received a fearful and indubitable warning from within that they were right. Something was very wrong there. She could find that out for herself at any time by running upstairs. Her common sense compelled her to believe what they said—namely, that any such experiment on her part might be the last experiment of any kind she would ever make. So she, who had been a vigorous, out of doors woman, found herself limited, circumscribed, and prescribed for on every hand. For two years now Dr. McKeon, whose reputation as a specialist in such matters was the highest, had been all but a member of the Crane household—vastly to his own profit, to be sure.

That was the tragedy—along with a mournful feeling that she had mysteriously swindled the man who had married her, palming off a piece of damaged goods on him; tacitly promising him a healthy, cheering, helpful wife and giving him an invalid. And Judge Crane could never get that big, cursed iron box out of his mind. If only she had let it burn, and the ranch and everything else! He had to think of her running upstairs in a burning house and getting that rotten old box in her arms and lugging it 'way across the ground—and cracking her heart. He built the cement walk so she could get down to the sea in a wheeled chair any time she liked. He had his automobiles especially upholstered for her. There was an electric elevator to take her from the first floor of Overlook House to the second. He wished McKeon's bills were bigger. Damn! If only new hearts were to be had for money, no matter how much money, he'd have gone down to Wall street and skinned every man in it from Trinity church on the east to the elevated railroad on the west but what he'd have bought her one. . . . But what could a man do? This helplessness was rather a new sensation to Judge Crane; rather a bewildering sensation. He wasn't used to thinking of himself as helpless in respect of things he greatly wanted.

It hadn't occurred to him in his widowerhood that he would ever very greatly want any particular person. Of course, he wanted his son, Danforth, of whom he was very fond; but he had Danforth already. It hadn't occurred to him that to go hungering after any other person was an experience that was in the least likely to befall him. Nevertheless the time came when he did very greatly want her. There was something so gracious about her gayety; she somehow summed it all up, a finished product, a sort of quintessence. It seemed to him that she was exactly what the money was for—the soul, or flower, of it. He certainly did greatly want her. He had been right decently fond of his first wife, whom he married when he was an unplaced, unprovided young lawyer. To this day he held her memory in respect and affection—a good woman, a sensible woman, and a fond woman. But nobody would ever have said, in that special way, that Martha was a finished product, a quintessence. He had gone very far beyond the unplaced, raw young lawyer who married her; and perhaps Martha really hadn't gone very far beyond that. . . .

Mrs. Crane climbed out of her wheeled chair on the terrace and slipped her hand under her husband's arm. They walked to the front door and into the house together, and in the living room—of the dimensions of a ballroom—they found Mrs. Hilton, for it then lacked but a few minutes of luncheon time. Before those few minutes elapsed they were joined by Edward Pennell Jr., and presently the four sat down together for the midday meal.

Seen at close range, Judge Crane's sixty-three years were more evident. His bronze, smooth shaven, large featured face bore some deep lines, especially around the mouth.

Special Limited Offer!

Save $42.00 On this Beautiful Model R Silvertone

REGULAR CATALOG PRICE $200.00

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS PRICE $158.00

DON'T miss this opportunity to buy an unquestionably high quality phonograph at a rock bottom price. Manufacturing conditions have made it necessary for us to drop this beautiful Model R cabinet from our 1921 line. We will not have enough stock to warrant listing it in our next General Catalog. But we have a few more of these models than necessary to meet our needs for the balance of this season. To dispose of this small surplus before Christmas we are making this remarkable price reduction of $42.00.

The Model R is listed in this season's General Catalog at $200.00. Even at this price it represents an enormous saving over other phonographs of the same size, quality, and beauty of design. But at our special clearance sale price of $158.00 it is the greatest phonograph bargain we have ever offered. Do not miss this money-saving opportunity. As soon as the few instruments we have on hand are sold, this model will be discontinued entirely.

Handsome Period Design Cabinet

We consider the Model R SILVERTONE one of the most beautiful cabinets we have ever sold. It is made in the popular Adam Period design. It is gracefully proportioned, and the splendid simplicity of its decorations lend dignity and beauty.

None but the finest materals enter into the construction of this phonograph. We can furnish it either in polished mahogany or walnut, or in dull finished quarter sawed fumed oak. The woods used are carefully selected for the beauty of their grain, and are hand rubbed and polished to bring out the full splendor of their color. Each one is a masterpiece of the cabinetmaker's art, and is fitted and finished with that careful attention to detail which characterizes only the very finest furniture.

Gold Plated Metal Parts

All visible metal parts, such as casters, caster rings, tone arm, reproducer, winding crank, etc., are heavily gold plated, which adds materially to the rich and luxurious appearance of the instrument. The turntable is covered with royal purple velvet. No detail has been overlooked which would in any way improve the appearance of the Model R cabinet.

Wonderfully Sweet and Mellow Tone

The Model R represents the results of many years of research and development in phonograph acoustics. It is equipped with our perfected reproducer, tone arm and amplifying chamber. The perfectly balanced design and assembly of these three vital phonograph parts enables it to accurately restore every subtle shading of tone and expression, every variation in volume and density of sound vibration. This is the secret of the sweet, mellow tone of the Model R—its absolute fidelity of reproduction and remarkable freedom from scratching and surface noises.

Greatest Bargain Offer We Have Ever Made

Remember, the price of the Model R in our General Catalog has been $200.00 all this season. Only an unusual condition makes this remarkable money-saving offer possible. And this will be your last chance to secure one of these handsome instruments at any price. As soon as our small stock is gone no more of this model will be made. Act quickly if you want to be sure of getting one of these big bargains. They will go quickly at this remarkably low price.

We want you to compare the Model R with any other phonograph on the market irrespective of make or price. We know that when you see this instrument and hear it play, and compare it, quality for quality, with other phonographs, you will be convinced of the truth of our claims for it and will realize what a wonderful bargain we are offering. To make it easy for you to inspect the Model R absolutely without expense to you, and without obligating you in any way, we are making this liberal two weeks' trial offer.

Send No Money

Fill out the order blank, check the finish you desire and mail it to Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago, Ill., today. We will ship the phonograph on two weeks' trial. You take absolutely no risk, nor do you obligate yourself in any way. All we ask you to do is to give the phonograph a thorough test. Examine its mechanical features, cabinet work, workmanship and finish. Try it with any disc record you desire, and note its beauty of tone and fidelity of reproduction. Give it every test necessary to prove the truth of our claim for it. And then compare the price with that of any other phonograph of the same size, beauty and musical excellence. You are to be the sole judge of quality and value.

If, at the end of two weeks' trial, you are not fully satisfied with the instrument, if you do not believe that it is in every way the equal of any phonograph on the market selling at prices from 50 to 100 per cent higher than the Model R, simply notify us and we will take away the phonograph at our own expense and will refund any transportation and cartage charges you have paid. The two weeks' test will not have cost you one cent, nor placed you under any obligation.

Compare our terms with those offered on any other phonograph of the same high quality. The small monthly payment makes it easy for you to own a really fine instrument without incurring a heavy financial burden. You can enjoy your phonograph to the utmost while paying for it.

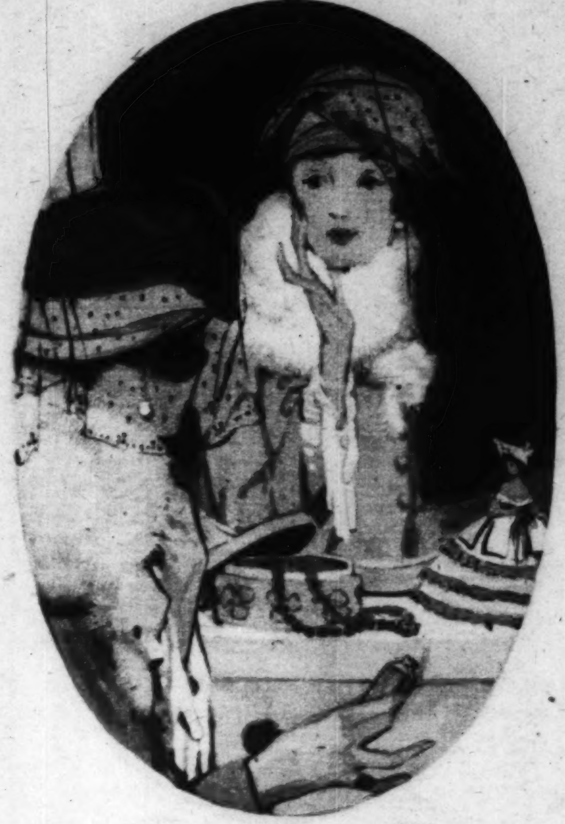
Your skin needs different kinds of care at different times

YOUR skin is not a piece of fabric that can always be cared for in the same way. It is a living thing which has different needs at different times.

Before an outing, for example, your skin needs a special kind of care. Wind and dust coarsen your skin. To keep it fine textured and soft, you must give it special protection from this punishment. For this you need a special cream, a cream that has a special protective effect, yet will not leave a trace of shine on the face. Pond's Vanishing Cream is especially made for this purpose. It contains an ingredient famous for its skin-softening property. Yet it has not a bit of oil. It gives your skin just the protection it needs and cannot reappear in a wretched shine.

Before you go out, rub a tiny bit of Pond's Vanishing Cream into your skin. It disappears instantly leaving your face soft and smooth, protected from the injury of wind and dust.

Another time when your skin needs a special kind of care is before powdering. When you powder right on the dry skin, the powder catches on small rough places and makes them for a time more conspicuous than ever. Then the powder soon falls off, leaving your face shinier than ever.



Before you go out, protect your complexion from the dust, wind and sun this way

Before powdering you need a special cream to smooth away the rough places and hold the powder to the face. For this, as for all daytime uses, you need a cream without oil. Pond's Vanishing Cream is especially designed to smooth and soften the skin. Apply just a bit before you powder. See how it smoothes away the small rough places. Now the powder will go on much more smoothly; will stay on twice as long as ever before.

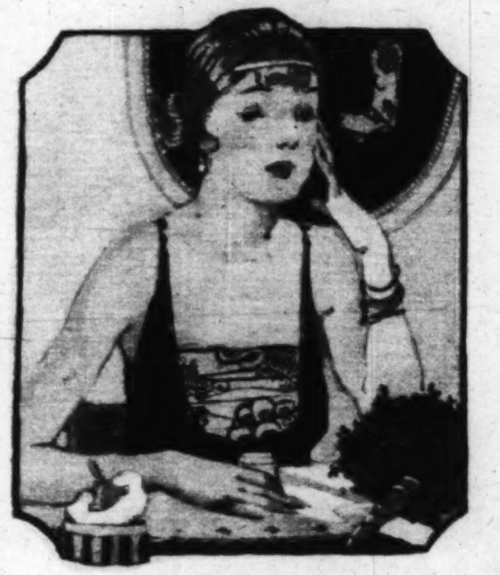
At bedtime your skin needs an entirely different kind of care. At the end of the day your pores are choked with tiny particles of dust that work in too deep to be removed by ordinary washing. These tend to make your skin look muddy. At night before retiring your skin needs a deep cleansing with an entirely different cream from the greaseless one you use in the daytime, a cream with an oil base, which will work well into the pores. Pond's Cold Cream has just the amount of oil to cleanse the skin and clear up clogged pores.

Every night and after a motor trip, give the skin a deep cleansing with Pond's Cold Cream. In this way it will become clearer, fairer.

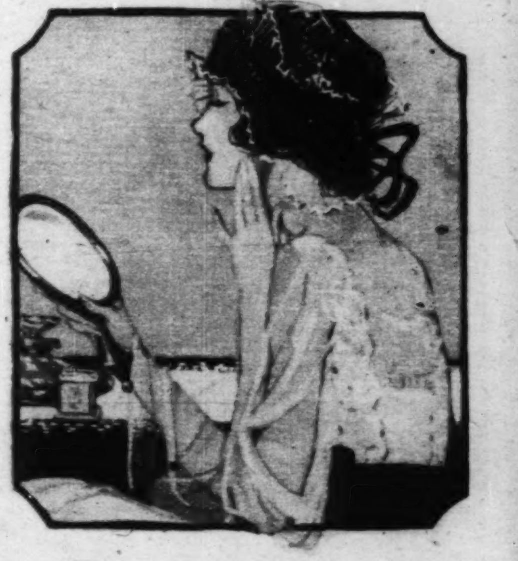
Watch out for the time when your face begins to show the ravages of time, when tiny lines begin to form and your skin is lacking in vitality. This is the time to start a regular weekly course of massage. Pond's Cold Cream is made exactly the consistency to work well into the pores and give a perfect massage. It is so soft it cannot stretch them.

With these two creams, give your skin the special care it needs at special times. In this way your complexion will grow more and more lovely every day.

You can get both of these creams at any drug or department store in tubes or jars.



More and more women are discovering how they can remain powdered and free from shine for five or six hours. Before powdering, they apply a bit of greaseless cream



The tiny, clinging dust specks that work deep into the skin should be removed each night with an oil cream

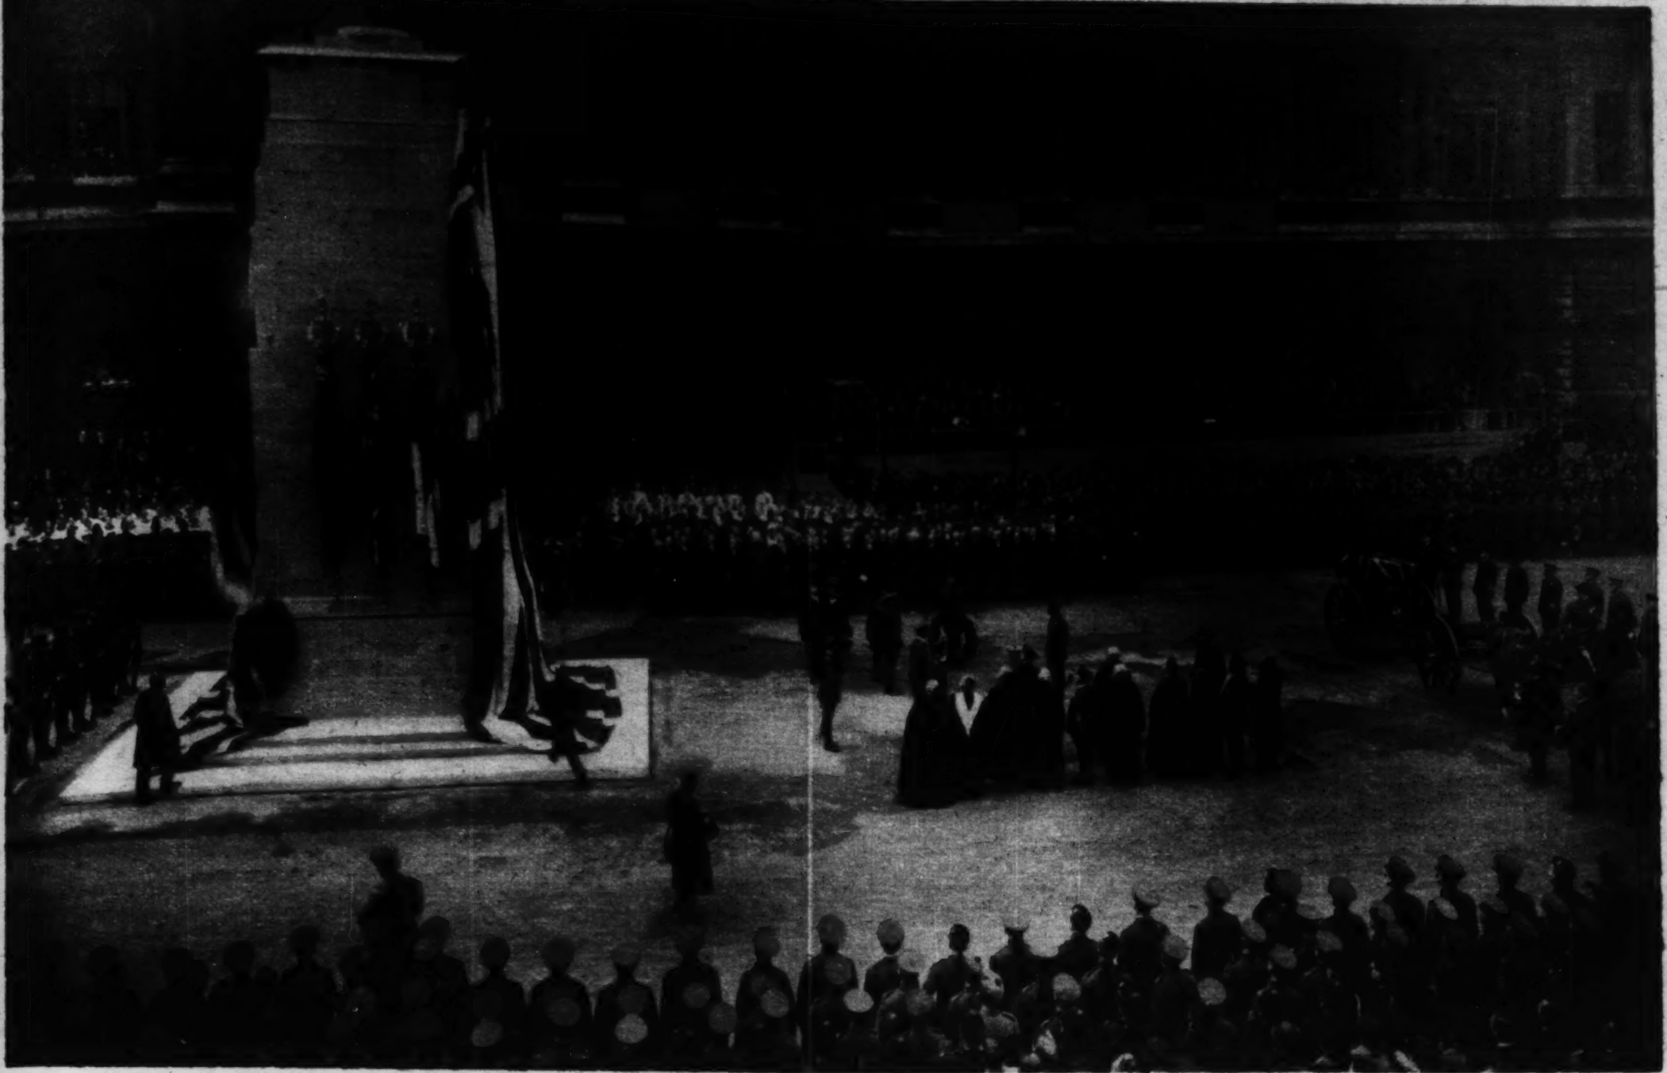
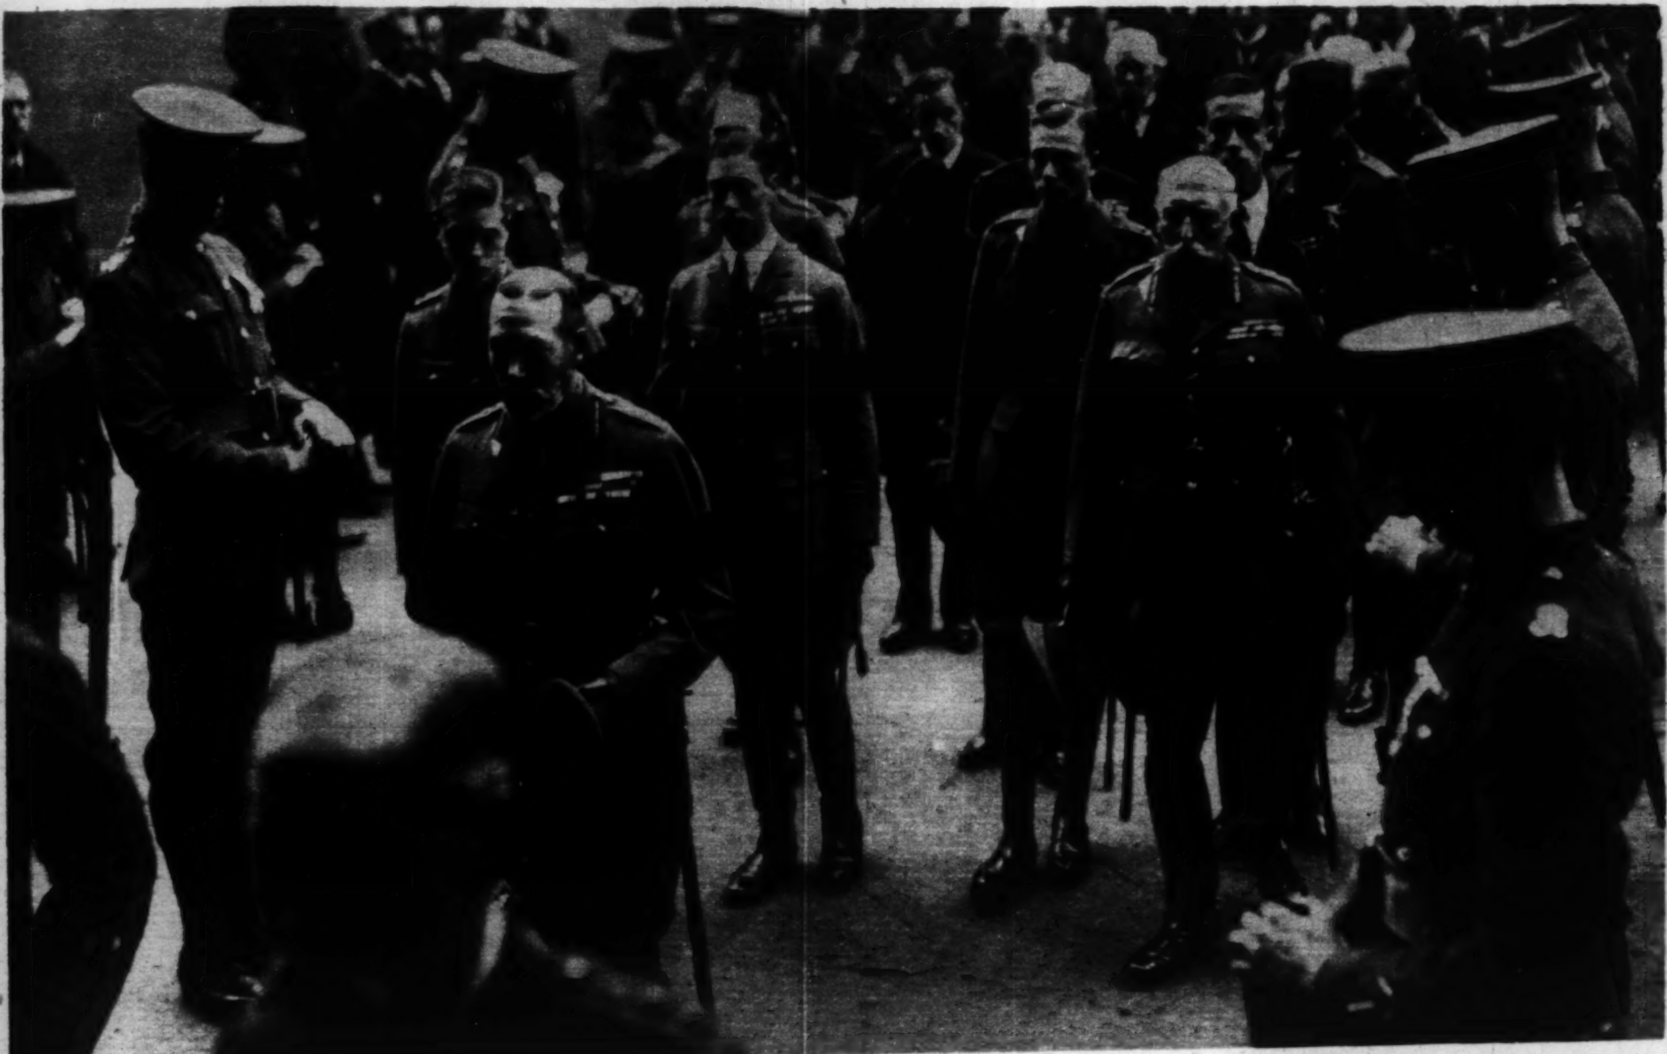
Britain Buries Her Unknown Soldier



THE ARMISTICE DAY CEREMONIES IN WHITEHALL, LONDON, photographed at the moment the king unveiled the cenotaph erected in memory of the "glorious dead." The memorial was to an unnamed warrior, exhumed from an obscure grave in France and buried again in England by the greatest assemblage of notables and the largest number of troops ever brought together for funeral honors.

(Photograph from Central News.)



THE KING ARRIVING AT WESTMINSTER ABBEY for the last honors to "the man who won the war." Among those in the foreground are the Prince of Wales, Prince Albert, Prince Henry, the Duke of Connaught, and Mr. Asquith. The procession, on foot and bareheaded, included the highest dignitaries of the realm.

Beautify your Hair with "DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

35c bottles. All drug stores and toilet counters

The right way to manicure

Give your nails the well-groomed loveliness you have always wanted

DISCARD forever your manicure scissors! You can soften and remove surplus cuticle without the cutting which doctors agree is ruinous. With Cutex Cuticle Remover you can keep the cuticle at the base of the nail smooth, firm, unbroken.

In a few minutes—the most satisfactory manicure you ever had

First file with steel file until your nails are the proper length. In the Cutex package you will find orange stick and absorbent cotton. Wrap a little cotton around the end of the stick and dip it in Cutex.

Then gently work the stick around the base of the nail, pushing back the cuticle. Wash the hands, pressing back the cuticle with a towel. For snowy-white nail tips add a bit of Cutex Nail White underneath the nails.

Finish your manicure with Cutex Nail Polish. If you like an especially brilliant, lasting polish, apply Cutex Paste Polish first, then the Cake Polish. You can get the Cutex Polishes in cake, paste, powder, liquid and stick form.

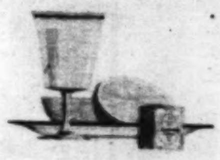
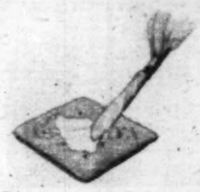
New facts on constipation—

a simple food now recognized as a corrective

How to take yeast



Some take it in fruit juices or in water



Some spread it on crackers or bread

Others like it plain

"A PERSON who uses laxatives never gets rid of constipation: his bowels never get into order of themselves."

This statement made by a well-known physician carries a message of deep importance to thousands of men and women. It summarizes the experience of the medical profession.

Ordinary laxatives are of three kinds: coarse substances that may injure sensitive intestines; drugs that may form a habit; oils that merely lubricate. All of these bring only temporary relief. For many years there has been great need for some simple food that would help restore normal conditions. And now scientists have discovered it—

The familiar little cake of yeast used in baking bread is today known to the medical world as a corrective for constipation. Being a food, Fleischmann's Yeast is better suited to the stomach and intestines than either drugs or oils. And it cannot form a habit.

First came the dramatic discovery by a group of nutrition experts that yeast in itself is a wonderful food, rich in life-giving vitamine—a valuable conditioner for those who are "run-down" or suffering from pimples and boils.

Then it was found that this simple food brought remarkable results when used for constipation. In leading medical institutions even chronic cases, some of years' duration, have responded.

To be eaten before or between meals

Some people ask: "Won't yeast, when eaten, have the same effect as in raising bread?" No. In the body yeast is assimilated just like any other food. It is easily digested at any time. Only one precaution is necessary: people who are troubled with gas find it better to dissolve the yeast in boiling water.

Take 1 to 3 cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast a day before or between meals. You will soon learn to like its taste. In cases of constipation remember that yeast is a corrective food—not a laxative. It should be taken regularly over a period of time. In long-standing cases do not discontinue the customary cathartic abruptly, but gradually reduce the amounts taken. In acute or extraordinary cases, always consult your doctor. To secure booklet giving many interesting facts on "The New Importance of Yeast in Diet," fill out and mail coupon below. Place a standing order with your grocer for Fleischmann's Yeast.

SOMETHING NEW IN AIRCRAFT—A novel type of construction for passenger airplanes is being used by the Staaken factory in Germany in its latest output. The massive monoplane is made entirely of aluminum, has a wing spread of 32 meters and can attain a speed of 210 kilometers per hour. Its four engines of 250 horsepower are built in the wing of the plane instead of the fuselage. The ship has a carrying capacity of 18 passengers with comforts comparable to those on a railroad, and was designed by Rohrback, the famous aircraft engineer.

A Nation's Fate Was Sealed

Fifty Yards from Where He Stood!

"THERE was a rattling of rickshaws, and I went below. On looking over the wall, I saw that the Japanese were going away. Hasegawa's carriage had already gone. Koreans in court dress were fluttering to and fro. It seemed impossible, as I stood there in the moonlight behind the hedge, that the fate of a nation had been sealed within fifty yards of where I stood! The ministers had signed!" Yes, it was so. The Japanese had subjugated Korea, and a country of 12,000,000 people must bow to the inevitable.

ASIA

The American MAGAZINE on the Orient

More than 60 Illustrations—
Art Insert of Exceptional Interest

The story is attracting attention everywhere. This young American, who did so much to bring about a deeper understanding between the Orient and the Occident, gives a wonderful picture of political conditions in Korea.

A Republic—With an Emperor Held in Reserve!

This is the case in China today. An unbelievable situation—but true. The young heir to the throne is now fifteen years of age. The rumor was that he had been restored to power. They are thinking of marrying him to the President's daughter, and thus satisfy all factions. And many other astonishing plans are being considered. Read JOHN O. P. BLAND'S revelations in "The Last Imperial Manchu" in the December issue.

Bible Stories Through Chinese Eyes!

These pictures by a young Chinese artist would alone make any issue of a magazine worth while. This boy went to hear a missionary in his native country. Never had he heard the old Biblical stories. He was deeply impressed. He visualized the sacred tales enacted among his own Chinese people. Chinese lions, tigers and phenix march two by two into a Chinese ark, built by a Chinese Noah. And they kill the Chinese fatted calf (in the shape of a chicken) for the Chinese Prodigal Son, returning penitent from a Chinese gambling hell!

He Had Never Even Heard of America!

When Charles Mayer went to the Malay States to capture wild animals for the circus, he first had to get permission of the Sultan. The august personage said to him: "What country are you from?"

"America," answered Mayer proudly.

But the Sultan said he had never even heard of America! And this happened only a few brief years ago.

How sixty live pachyderms were caught in a trap in the jungle and transported overseas for show purposes makes tense reading.

What do you know of Hindu beliefs—of the Oriental religions? In an illuminating article, written in popular vein, W. NORMAN BROWN goes into the subject of fate and destiny, the doctrine of Karma, as interpreted by the people in their legends. Read "ANTIDOTES TO FATE," and learn something of the religious lore of the Far East in one flashing survey.

There is no magazine quite like ASIA. It is like a tremendous motion picture—gorgeous spectacles pass before you—strange humans live and walk in picturesque lands. And no motion picture, no matter on how large a scale it may be enacted, has the gripping interest of the story of a hundred races. ASIA visualizes their life and customs—history and traditions—religions and beliefs—literature and art.

ASIA will give you the foundation of a clear understanding of the important problems of the East, in beautiful pictures and excellent stories.

What concerns Asia, concerns America—and the wide-awake citizen lives and learns of the politics, the beauty, the temperament of foreign lands. Read ASIA, and become well-informed.

MRS. MORGAN BELMONT of New York and Newport will be seen in "Way Down East," which will be shown in Chicago Dec. 13. She takes the part of a Boston society matron in the earlier scenes of the production. She was chosen from eleven other society women who applied for the position when the cast was being got together.

Mrs. Belmont is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Andrews, and her marriage to the son of August Belmont was one of the brilliant events of the Newport season of 1915. Mae Tinee.

JANE ATHERTON is the seventeen-year-old niece of Gertrude Atherton, who has recently signed to write stories for Goldwyn, and she, too, has cast her lot with the "movies."

The young woman is said to have given up a social career to satisfy a histrionic ambition. She has been fashionably educated and is said to be decidedly "there" when it comes to classic dancing. Mae Tinee.

AND THEN THERE WERE—SIX! Here, my dears, is the real truth about the Bushman family! You see before you Mr. Francis X. Bushman, his present wife, who was Beverly Bayne, the baby, a child of this late union, and the five children by the former Mrs. Bushman.

The picture was taken when Mrs. Bushman No. 1, in accordance with the divorce decree, brought the five children to California and "released" them for a limited time to their daddy and the present Mrs. Bushman, who doesn't look in the least perturbed over the advent of such a flock.

It used to be that Mr. Bushman hid his lights under a bushel, as twa. But times have changed, it seems. Mae Tinee.

STANLEY
IT WILL NOT BREAK

Made entirely of steel
A new vacuum bottle
for automobiling—for the home—for the office

DURING the past fifty years vacuum bottles have been so improved that their use has become almost universal. But the danger of breaking them has always remained a constant source of worry and inconvenience to millions of their users.

In 1915 William Stanley discovered a process by which a vacuum bottle could be made entirely of steel.

Today the all-steel Stanley Vacuum Bottle is ready for you at your dealer's.

Drop it from an automobile—drop it from the table—or let it fall full force on a rock—fill it suddenly with boiling water—you cannot break the new Stanley Vacuum Bottle. It is made entirely of steel.

Naturally the Stanley is more expensive than the ordinary vacuum bottle, but there are no expenses for repairs or replacements. With the Stanley the first cost is the last cost.

Every Stanley Bottle is lined with blue Amalite, a pure mineral coating which is fused into the steel—making a surface like porcelain.

Sold in one and two-quart sizes at all the better stores. An attractive Christmas gift. Prices (East of the Rocky Mountains), black standard finish: Quart size, $10.00—two-quart size, $15.00.

CUTICLE ICE
Boudoir Set $2.00

"Now Will They Do, Mother?"

Modern mothers insist that their children form right habits of caring for their nails, just as they train them to brush their teeth and their hair.

From a health standpoint, nothing is more important, for carelessly kept nails invite infection. Let small son and daughter have their own little manicure sets and keeping their nails healthily clean will be as much fun as a game. Most important, of course, is teaching them that the pretty little half-moons at the base of their nails must be brought out by training, not by harsh, unnatural methods. With harmless, antiseptic Lustrite Cuticle Ice (it couldn't hurt them even if they ate it) they can have a firm, even rim of cuticle about each nail, with not a single broken place where a germ can lurk.

Lustrite manicure preparations are on sale at all drug and department stores at 50c each. Or you can buy them in convenient sets, the Traveling Set for 75c and the Boudoir Set for $2.00.

Or mail us the coupon with ten cents, and we will send you a complete kit containing trial sizes of Lustrite Cuticle Ice, Lustrite Nail Whitener, Lustrite Salve Enamel and Lustrite Nail Cake, and a copy of our booklet, "The Better Way to Manicure."

Plum pudding mellowed
by the flavor of sugar cane molasses

EAGER to taste again this nectar of their boyhood, two Louisiana men determined to revive this bygone delicacy of their plantation days. They put up a molasses so fragrant, sweet and pure that the first taste carries you back to childhood joys. They named it Brer Rabbit, in honor of the hero of the plantation stories.

One taste and you know how its plantation flavor adds! Get Brer Rabbit, either the light molasses (gold label—for table use as well as cooking) or the dark molasses (green label—a stronger flavor for cooking). Penick & Ford, Ltd., New Orleans.

"Ouch! That Corn!"

Poor girl! If she only knew how ridiculously e-a-s-y it is to stop corn pain and to remove the corn itself! Not with knives, salves, plasters or irritating liquids, but simply by applying two or three drops of "GETS-IT" to stop the hurting instantly and shrivel the corn so it can be peeled right off with the fingers.

"GETS-IT" for CORNS

Bear in mind there is only one original and genuine "GETS-IT," guaranteed absolutely harmless. To avoid disappointment, refuse substitutes. Others may copy the "GETS-IT" method of application, but "GETS-IT" results—instant, sure and painless—are produced by the exclusive "GETS-IT" formula. It never fails.

When lovely hair gives a girl self-confidence

Thin, stringy, oily hair and a dandruff-choked scalp make a girl painfully self-conscious when she knows some one is looking at her hair.

But if she knows her hair is thick — soft — silky—the way nature intended a woman's hair to be—

If her scalp is clean and soft and sweet as a baby's—

The knowledge gives her poise and self-confidence, that adds much to her charm.

Frequent shampooing with the creamy, deliciously perfumed lather of Wildroot Liquid Shampoo is the one sure way to have pretty hair.

For Mouth-wash and Gargle

Nothing Like War's Wonderful Antiseptic

Has a hundred home uses. A marvel for sore throat, pyorrhea, dandruff, skin diseases and wounds. Free trial proves it.

The mouth is a hotbed for many kinds of bacteria. Millions breed there, causing gum infections, tooth-decay and often contagious diseases. Kloria costs but a trifle, yet does what no special mouthwash can—it positively destroys germs where old-time antiseptics merely stunt them. That difference is shown by its almost magic effect in relieving sore throat, gum infection, and healing canker sores. It also destroys the acid forming bacteria that cause tooth-decay, and thus saves the teeth as nothing else ever has.

This is the same wonderful antiseptic agent, discovered in the war, which healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time, and conquered infection where all old standard antiseptics had failed.

Kloria doesn't irritate, is soothing, pleasant, and absolutely safe because not poisonous. Yet by scientific test it is over 40 times more germ-destroying than carbolic acid.

Never before was there an antiseptic so healing, so effective in destroying germs, and with so many uses in every home.

Apply it without fear to sore, bleeding gums and watch the soreness and bleeding disappear, usually in a week. It is the only antiseptic which has ever proven able to destroy the germ cause of pyorrhea. Test it on a boil or carbuncle and note how promptly it destroys the pus, ends the soreness, and heals with magic quickness. For cuts, sores, and burns it gives the quickest, surest healing ever known. Try it for eczema, barber's itch or similar skin diseases, and watch the trouble fade away. For dandruff, simply wet the scalp with it. All itching stops instantly, and a few of these easy treatments end dandruff, yet it is harmless as water to the hair. Mark how it soothes sore, inflamed or itching skin. Harmless, yet far more effective than poisonous antiseptics for personal hygiene.

Dissolve a few Kloria Tablets in water and instantly you have, at a cost of a few cents, a large bottle of liquid antiseptic which is clean, colorless, stainless, and virtually odorless.

All druggists, 50c. Money refunded if not satisfied.

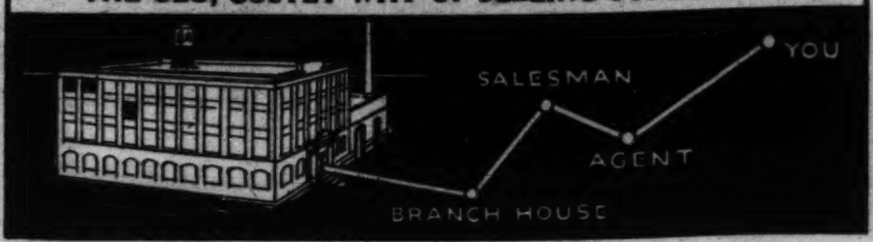
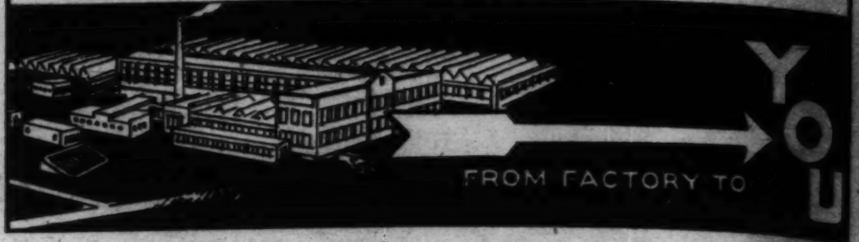
THE OLD, COSTLY WAY OF SELLING TYPEWRITERS



The Old Way: It added a lot to the price of a typewriter. Rents of offices in many cities, salaries, commissions and other costly practices piled up the expense.

THE NEW WAY—THE ECONOMICAL WAY



The New Way: We sell direct from the factory to you, eliminating all waste. This saves the $36, and it now goes to you. A $100 Oliver now costs you only $64.

You Save $36 on a New Oliver

Buying direct from the factory you get the former $100 Oliver for $64 and you may pay for it at the easy rate of only $4 a month

Was $100
Before the War
Now $64

For $64 you obtain the genuine Oliver No. 9, the identical model that sold for $100 before the war. Not a single change has been made in the typewriter. It has all the quality today that it had at the higher price.

Our only change is in the way of selling. By new economies in distribution, achieved during the war, we save you $36. We give you the $100 Oliver now for $64. And we let you pay at the very easy rate of only $4 a month.

How we save the $36

When the war came and economy was urged upon all of us as a patriotic duty, we decided to break away from the old system of selling typewriters. It was too complicated, too costly, too wasteful.

So we adopted the plan of selling direct to the user. Thus we were able to close up numerous branch houses and sub-offices throughout the country, and save the money that was going for rents, employees' salaries, etc. We were able also to dispense with large numbers of traveling salesmen, whose salaries, commissions and road expenses ate up a lot of money. All this expense added nothing to the value of the typewriter, but it did add to the price. And by eliminating this expense, we save the $36 which we take off the price of the typewriter for you.

Let others think that costly sales methods are necessary. As for us, we are very well pleased with the Oliver plan. Our business has increased fourfold in the past three years. And today, we are again adding to our manufacturing facilities. That shows how people appreciate Oliver quality and the $36 saving.

What prominent users say about the Oliver

Nickel Plate Railroad, Cleveland, says: "At this writing, we are using about 200 Olivers for all general correspondence and expense and way-bills. Because of the downstroke of the type on this machine we are able to get thirteen or fourteen carbons. Records show that we are still using today Olivers purchased twelve years ago."

Zurich General Accident & Liability Insurance Co., Chicago, says: "Our Olivers are always on the job. The sturdy construction precludes the necessity of repairs, and because of the double type bar, the machine is never out of alignment. The stenographers prefer the Olivers, as they are easy to operate and always in good condition."

Boston Woven Hose and Rubber Co., Boston, says: "Our investment in 75 Oliver typewriters during the past 11 years has proved a good one, because we find that the Oliver stands up under the wear and tear of general office use better than any other standard machine we have investigated."

Among other great concerns using the Oliver are Morris & Co., New York Central Lines, National Suit & Cloak Co., Boston Elevated Railway, American Bridge Co., Encyclopedia Britannica, and others of equal prominence.

Only $4 a month

No money down to get the Oliver for free trial. And if you decide to keep it, you have over a year to pay.

$4 a month is all you need send. And you have the use of the typewriter while paying for it. Could terms be more liberal?

Why, then, rent or buy a second-hand or so-called "rebuilt" typewriter when it is so easy to own a new Oliver!

PARTY FROCKS FOR THE COLLEGE GIRL

by Corinne Lowe

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—November plays always Prince Charming to the Sleeping Beauty of New York. Hewing his way through the thickets of boarded houses and the underbrush of mere population, this gallant and impetuous month wakes from her long summer sleep Princess Fashionable New York.

His first vivifying embrace is the Horse Show. His second is the Horse-Shoe—of the Metropolitan Opera house—and after that the Social Secretary of the Sleeping Beauty gets down to her life work. The "season" is on.

Nor is this little drama confined to New York. The play is on the road, as they say in professional circles, and almost every town in America is staging the same production. Our long napping in sweater and separate skirt is over, and the winter parties have begun.

It is to the debutante and the college girl that we have addressed chiefly the page of party frocks shown above. The latter particularly is looking forward to the dances which fill in her Christmas vacation. To her tripping it on the light fantastic (mistle) toe is a wonderful bit of gayety that must be snatched from trig and the ologies, and two new dance frocks are none too many to make a satisfactory Christmas vacation.

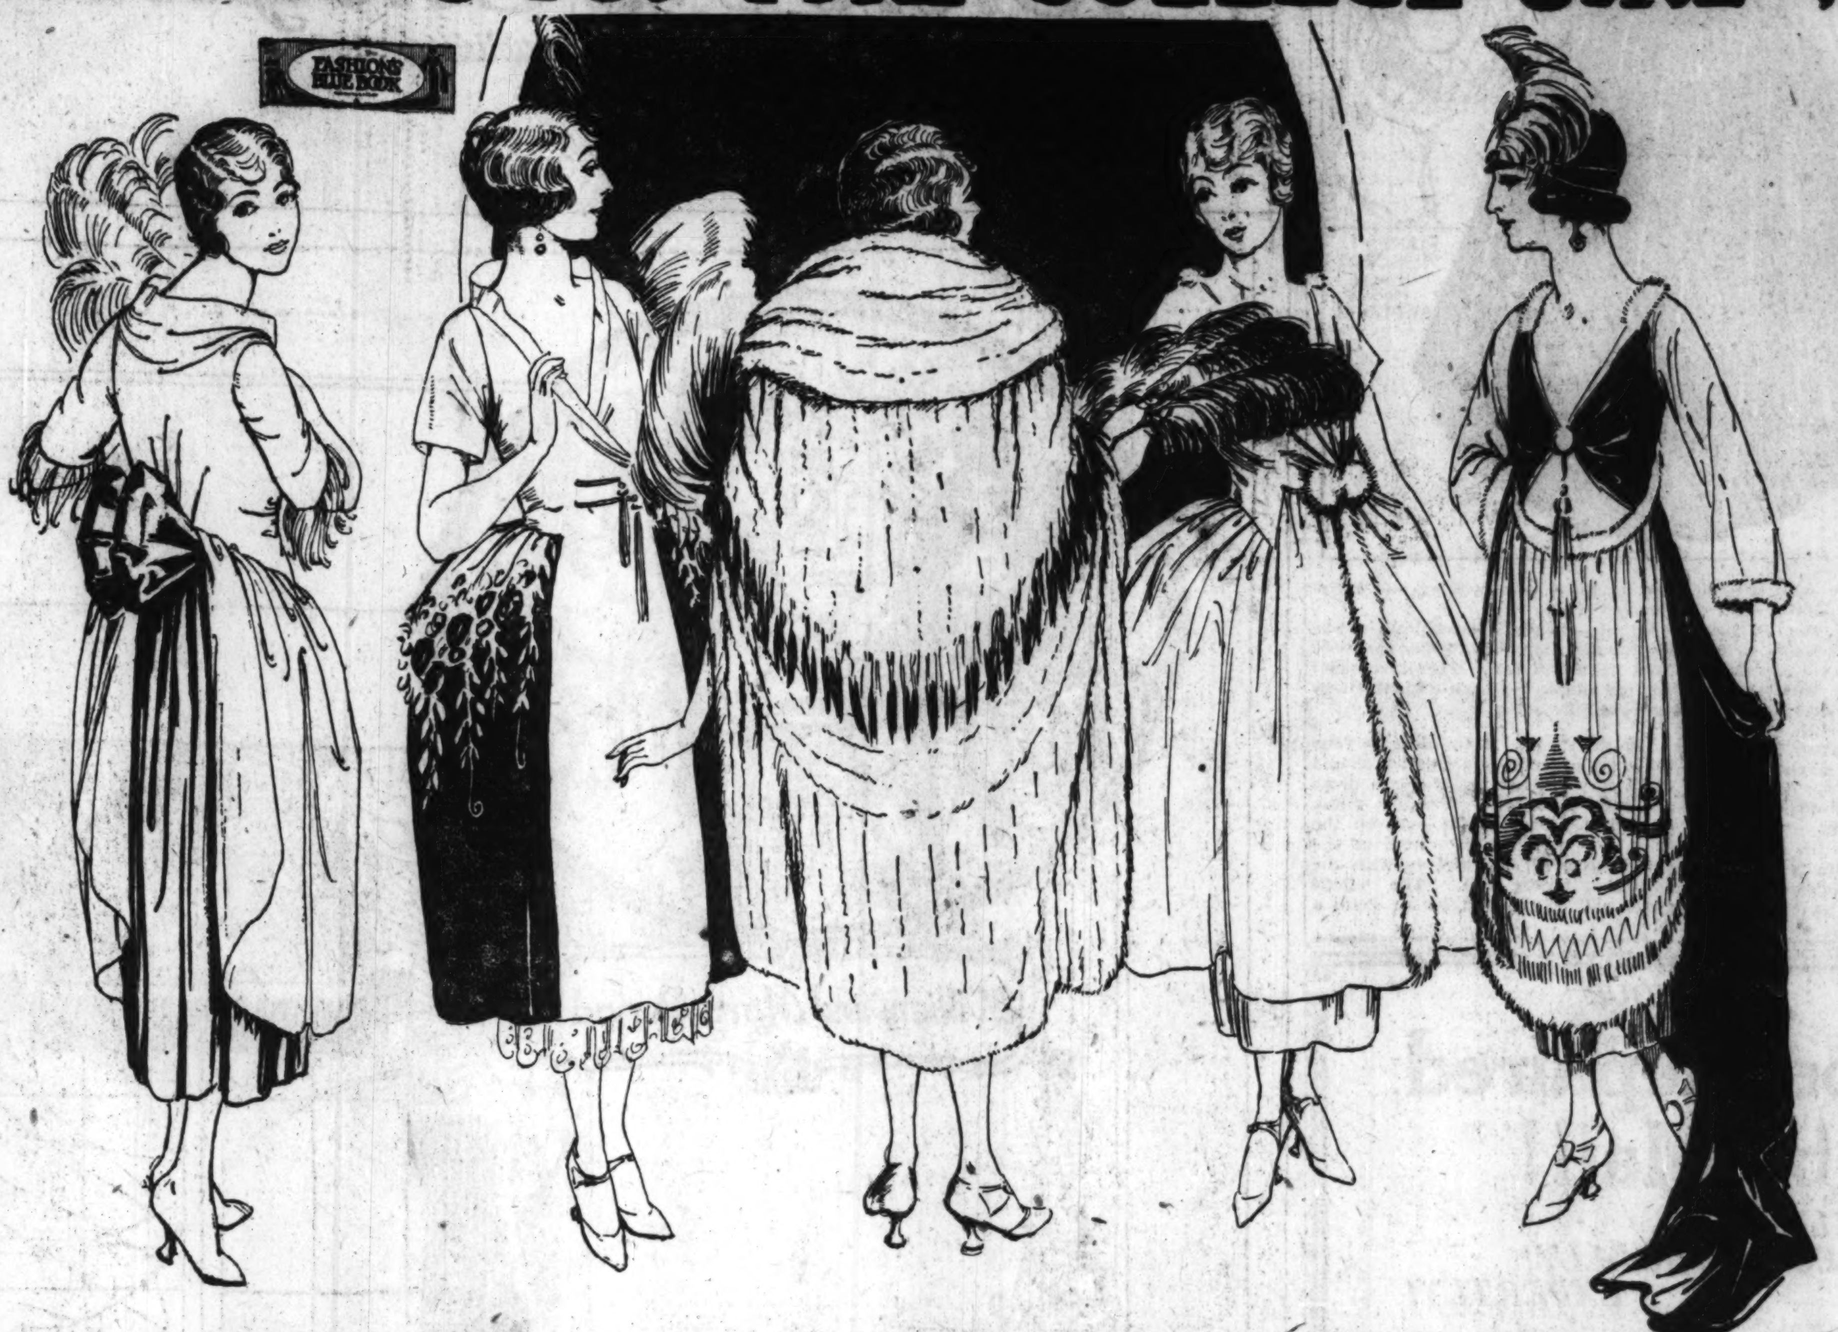
Let us take first the frock at the left. This is a shell pink taffeta made over the same tone satin. So much is not remarkable. What is so is the arrangement of these two fabrics. For the way in which the tunic is drawn up over two pert loops of a satin sash is altogether original. And, by the by, the bustle is quite a good deal on the hustle with this frock. And the bustle is a feature of the winter's dress which is being more or less tentatively asserted.

This frock is trimmed with ostrich fringe of the same tone, and then, for fear we might, even so, forget the pinkness of our thesis, pink pearls looped with silver cord effect the front closing of the corsage. It is a charmingly unusual little frock, and one which, of course, need not be pre-empted by the college girl. The young matron and the debutante are both permitted to hold shares.

If feeling particularly facetious we might say, let us applique our hearts unto wisdom. And the real fashion wisdom of this season is applique. The designers have been Burbanking this flower of trimming, and the results are such variations as we never before dreamed.

In the frock second from the left we find an appliqued design of velvet flowers in the same royal blue of the tunic attaching this tunic to a foundation of gray faille silk. Silver leaves accompany the flowers and complete a color combination which is ever remarkably lovely. Silver lace peeps from under the skirt, and silver tassels accent the closing of the corsage.

The square neck is used a great deal this winter for the dance frock. So, too, is the elliptical one. Yet it must not be thought for one moment that the V shaped closing has fallen into complete obscurity.



THE tunic strikes a new tune when it is brought up over the sash of the underdress as you see it in the frock at the left. This model is made of shell pink taffeta over the same color satin and is trimmed with ostrich flues and pink pearls. Next, a combination of royal blue velvet, gray faille, and silver illustrates the present popularity of the appliqued motif. In the center is a new dolman of unspotted ermine, after which comes an apricot taffeta trimmed with sorrel fox. Last, a black satin bodice and train completes a frock of gray mousseline de soie trimmed with gray fur and embroidery of silver and blue.

It would seem, in fact, that the triangle is eternal, for some of the smartest of dance frocks continue to show this effect. For example, there is the velvet and faille model which we have just described. And to reinforce this example we find the little taffeta model second from the right.

Speaking of this material, taffe—ta—ta—ta remains the favorite party yell of the college girl, debutante, and young matron. In spite of the lovely creations of crepe de chine and georgette and tulle and net, which are so bewitching for youth, there is always the temperament that will resist everything at the pleadings of taffeta. Such a temperament will elect promptly the delightful model second from the right.

This is made of apricot taffeta and is trimmed with nothing else save sorrel fox. And, by the way, fur is trimming a great many of the smart dance frocks—even those of tulle and lace. In this connection I may speak of the rather barbaric fashion of applying the pelt in tufts or in single tails.

For example, one little evening frock of white satin which I saw this week had tufts of white monkey fur applied every here and there on a panel front of white lace. It was a bit ferocious, perhaps, but quite effective when one got used to it.

Another dance frock that presented something of the same thought centered the motifs of its cream colored lace with ermine tails. This latter was really charming. It gave a sort of Puck-like note of mischief to the Titania of a dress.

Not for the college girl or debutante, but for her chaperon, was designed the formal gown of gray and black at the right of the page. I have spoken heretofore about the extemporaneous nature of the trains of today—how they are apt to start from any station, whether it be girdle, panel, or pannier. Here, however, is a new idea. For in this model the train of black satin has for its terminal the little overbodice. Practically this gives the effect of those formal court trains which some of the designers, notably Lanvin, are incorporating in their evening gowns. However, the result is much more arresting.

The foundation of this frock is gray mousseline de soie, embroidered in blue and silver and trimmed with gray fur. And if you have any lingering doubts about the propriety of Miss Long Sleeve going about with Mr. Long Train, kindly note the peasant sleeves of this frock. And quite as they are doing it in these Lewis Carroll times, when you are apt to see a high muffler of a collar with elbow sleeves, or a round neck with those long, viselike sleeves that Sarah Bernhardt used to wear in the '80s.

America has never been a hairdressy nation. We have always shown a certain timidity in the presence of a Bagdad turban or a romantic little Juliet cap sown with pearls or even of the plain Caesarian chaplet of leaves.

Nevertheless, let it be noted, last winter showed more New York women making experiments in this direction than ever before, and this season is expected to bring forth even more marked developments along the path blazed so thoroughly by our French sisters.

At all events, a word right here regarding the latest impulses in evening headdressing cannot be amiss. First of all there is a marked preference for all the autumnal tints. This implies a thorough neglect of pink and blue, extending even to the most dubby of debutantes. With the dull browns and reds one sees a tremendous amount of metallic tissue—gold, silver, and bronze. The last named is particularly stunning on the head of a brunette, and one dark haired girl I saw last week achieved distinction through the simplest chaplet of bronze leaves.

Another girl I noted the same evening challenged the gold of her hair with a band of gold metallic tissue fastened at the side with black cellophane roses. Still another wore the complete production of a cap. This was made of gauze—the popular material in these evening caps—and it showed autumn leaf yellow beneath its red-brown surface. For let it be mentioned that many of these gauzes are two-fects of color.

BAG WITH FLAP OPENING ON SIDE
PLAITED BAG OPEN SHOWN MIRROR AND POCKET

VELVET BAGS AND OTHERS.

SO many letters have been received about the bags shown in the paper some weeks ago, it may be interesting to hear about others that are being shown in the shops. While Christmas is not far away, it is still enough in the distance to have time to make gifts. And many of us are so busy that we cannot always have all our gifts finished weeks before the day.

Of course, there is really no end to the variety of beaded bags shown; but to make one of these is too long a piece of work to begin at this time. Velvet in every color is popular for bags—and many of these are made up quite unadorned, while others show some design wrought in beads, silks, or wool. Many of these bags are cut rather deep and rounding, and set into a curving instead of a square cornered frame.

Moire silk is seen a great deal, and these bags are extremely good looking. They are set in the straight and also the rounding frames, and are plaited into them. The plaits are about one inch wide, and laid close together—going towards the middle and meeting there. These bags are usually curving at the bottom and are prettier than the ones straight across the bottom. The picture shows one of these.

It is a good idea not always to depend on a pattern. Try to get accustomed to cutting things like these for yourself. Take old cloth or soft paper, and see if you can't cut one of these plaited bags. Decide on the depth and size across the bottom, then mark the cloth off at the top (at the right depth), draw a line straight across for a considerable distance, and then lay the side plaits, making the laid plaits match the distance across the frame.

Then shape your pattern to fit the frame as it nears the ends at each side, mark clearly there, and then shape from the bottom up to the point where the frame ends. If your first attempt doesn't please you, try again, and you will be surprised how easy it will become to copy many attractive articles.

Try a piece of paper 18 or 20 inches wide by 10 deep. Fold it through the middle on the length of it, then lay three plaits each side of the middle, and, towards the middle lapping them more than half over each other. Then measure down from the top at the ends six inches, and begin here to slope or round off the bag down to the ten inch point in the middle. The lining can be cut the shape of the bag after the plaits are laid, being sure to give it the full size of the outside from the place where the sloping begins.

The lining, with its pockets, and the outside, should both be finished, and the lining slipped into the outside, and the top edges of both turned in towards the wrong side of each. These turned in edges must be basted carefully together and the little finishing braid, ribbon ruching, or whatever you choose to have, sewed on; then the bag is attached to the frame.

It is easier to do this by taking an over and over stitch, putting the needle through the hole in the frame from the outside, and letting it go through the two edges of the bag and lining. Have silk twist or double silk thread, waxed, and take two stitches in each hole. You can easily avoid the finishing braid by letting the needle come out beneath it, and in sewing the braid on, let its upper edge extend a little bit above the edge of the bag.

Some bags are made with a small round bottom, to which the bottom of the bag is sewed. A circular piece measuring 4 inches across is a good size. Cut a piece of thin pasteboard this size and cover it with the bag material. Then the material for the bag is cut the desired depth, and it can be put on plain or fulled, depending on the weight of the material. It is seamed together, the lower edge turned up towards the wrong side, and then sewed to the bag bottom.

The lining is made in the same fashion, and after both are finished the lining is put inside the bag, and the top is finished with a casing through which ribbon or cords are put. Of course, there is a heading left above the cord casing.

Infinite variety is possible in choosing the designs and materials for these bags. Some of these bags have small mirrors suspended from a short strap, matching the lining.

MR. E. A. B.: If the dots in your imported organdie are small I should think it would be pretty for a dress for your little girl. Feather stitch around the head of the hem on the skirt, and outline the bottom of the yoke, the neck, and sleeves with the feather stitching also. The single stitch will be the best for so small a girl.

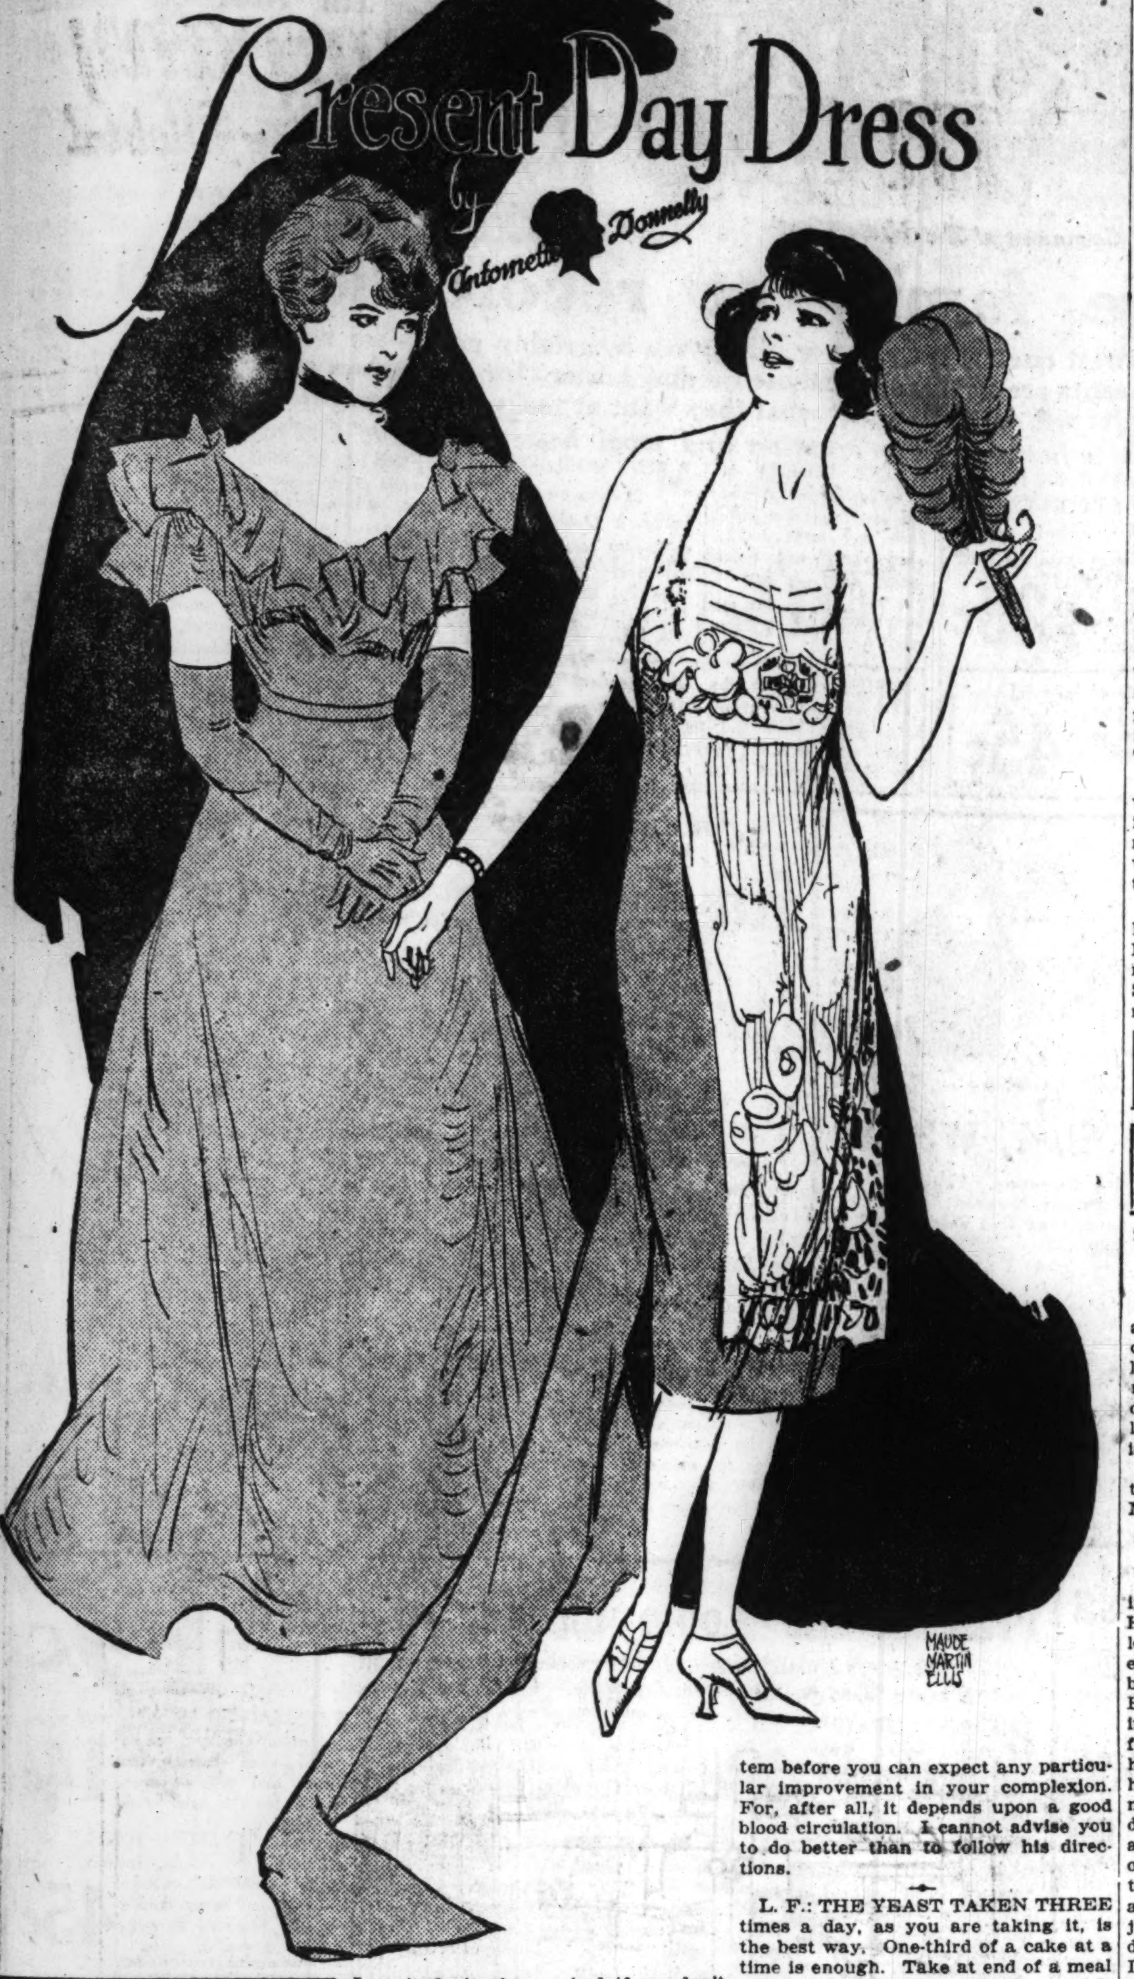
Present Day Dress

By Antoinette Donnelly



What's your beauty ill? You fat? thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

GOOD morning, my bright young pupils, and what do you think our lesson is today?

No, Johnny, not the weather, nor the white paper shortage, nor home brews. It is something much, much more popular as conversational material. It is about woman's dress!

Since the first Egyptian maiden wrapped herself in thousands of yards of mummy wrappings and modestly fitted herself into a glove tight coffin, the world has been inquiring whether woman's dress were growing decent or indecent?

Whether she plans her dress or dresslessness to attract the men or to attract mosquitoes? Or is she just trying to contract bills by way of impetus for husbands to make more money?

Whether she uses makeup for any reason or just to be using something?

Well, they're after us again, the reformers are. They want us to tack an inch or two to our skirts and to raise the bodices of the evening gowns and pin a couple of good sleeves in them.

And maybe they're right! Maybe they are indecent, these frocks that escape the ground like an airplane.

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard, says the short skirted, low necked dresses of today are immoral.

Undoubtedly countless other people are shocked by the modern maid, her modern ways, and her modern dress.

But with it all, is she different from the maid of ten, twenty, or fifty years ago?

I want to get your opinion on that question. I want to hear what you think about this present day girl in her present day dress, her frequently rouged cheeks, and her daring (?) ways.

Do you think she overdoes makeup, or do you think, as one man said: When a woman has a poor figure, she buys good corsets and good clothes to improve it. When a woman has poor color, why, therefore, should she not use ways and means of improving that?

Do women dress to attract men or to arouse envy in other women?

That is another stickler of a question I want you to help answer. For I can't do it alone. And if we don't settle it right away, it will be up again before the fashion clock has struck another hour.

Write to me today. Address Antoinette Donnelly, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. THE TRIBUNE will pay $1 for every letter published.

Beauty Answers.

MRS. J.: A WOMAN 5 FEET 7 AND 28 years of age should weigh in the neighborhood of 140, according to standard weight. But a variance of two or three pounds either way is allowed in a standard measurement, too. You are probably only about eight or ten pounds off, but you can get that weight down in a couple weeks' dieting. Will mail you some reducing menus if you will send the necessary s. a. e.

BAB: IF YOU START HENNA-ING your hair or dyeing it with any kind of dye, you let yourself in for a whole lot of trouble and expense, because it must be done well to look any way half right, and the dyeing process has to be repeated every so often. Why not be content with your brown hair? Almost every one has one or two different tones and shadings in the hair.

O. B.: YES, MAM; I HAVE A LITtle booklet you may have for the asking and a stamped, addressed envelope with seven reducing menus in it, and some good exercises for reducing.

DOTTIE: IF YOUR PHYSICIAN tells you you are anemic, you must do what he tells you to build up your system before you can expect any particular improvement in your complexion. For, after all, it depends upon a good blood circulation. I cannot advise you to do better than to follow his directions.

L. F.: THE YEAST TAKEN THREE times a day, as you are taking it, is the best way. One-third of a cake at a time is enough. Take at end of a meal—but if you are taking it before and it does not disagree with you, that's all right. It is good for the complexion, isn't it?

LOVE LETTERS

How does a love letter contest appeal to you? Don't you love to read them? Don't you love to receive them? Can you write a good one yourself? The Tribune is going to pay $5 for every love letter published. So, if you can write a good one, or if you have one in your private or family possession you would like to enter in the contest, send it to Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune. As no letters will be returned, send copies of the ones you wish to retain possession of.

IN THE FIRE'S RED HEART.

DEAR One: As I sit here dreaming of you, the glowing coals form and reform in reddening series of fancy's pictures, while little lumps of coal, forgotten in the first attack, swell with the gathering heat and, forming tiny volcanoes, burst into gas and flame.

I see you, dear, deep in some reddened nook of embers, looking forth with those grave, sweet eyes upon the place so altogether our own, and upon me alone within it.

And, as little children mail their letters to Santa Claus upon the burning coals that their sweet hopes and wishes may, burning, rise to him, so am I tempted to mail you this letter, beloved. Will it come to you, dear heart? Will it rise up and up and travel far and farther still, over the mountains of the moon to the Land Where Dreams Come True?

When you went away, dear, all that was the heart of me went with you an is with you now. Only memories remain. Memories of you and your little ways; your eyes, your hair, your little trick of looking up quickly, to smile.

Does it seem selfish to you, dear, that I would have you back with me again? Does it seem impossible that I could make you as happy? Who can tell? Selfish love is, yet selfish for the giving rather than receiving. If I thought that you were happier there than I could make you here, perhaps I would ache less to feel your little self in my loving arms enfolded.

How can I look upon the slowly treading years that are to come? How can I count the leaden days which lead to the Land of Things as They Should Be and You? How look upon the sunset's glow, the still, pale moon, the gentle dawn, with you away? Hope yields to faith, faith to sorrow and sorrow to despair.

What is life but sorrow?
What is love but pain?
The faith of today is the hope of tomorrow,
And hope of the morrow is vain.

But I should not write to you thus, dear heart. It is not thus that one should write who has shared your life even for such a little while. It is not letters such as this that should be mailed in the red embers' glow to flame and float away to you. And I shall not write so.

See, dear, I am smiling as I seal your letter—seal it with "love and kisses"—and now look! I will post it just here beside you in the fire's red heart. See! it burns. The first tiny flames encircle it to bear it away to you. Now, dear see, I am smiling, really I am. Remember your little trick? That's it; look up and smile.

A kiss to you—my princess that was.

THURAN.

Three Months' Silence.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am 19 years of age and have been keeping steady company with a young man for the last two years. After leaving me one night on perfectly good terms, I did not see or hear from him in the last three months. Do you think he is worth worrying about? MOLLY."

He might be worth worrying about to some other girl, but not for you, Molly, after three months' solid silence.

She's in Doubt.

"Dear Miss Blake: "I have been going with a young man for about a year. He is always telling me how much he loves me; says I am the first girl he ever loved. I know that is the truth because he never had a girl before. But two months ago he stopped calling on me and I never heard from him for two months. Now I am going with him again, but I do not think I love him as much. He tells me he loves me just the same and hopes for the day I will be his. I have kissed him and do it yet. Tell me what you think of him and also tell me if it is wrong to kiss him sometimes. I love him and again I don't care for him. This is just the way I feel. O, Miss Blake, I do wish I had some one to tell me. I have no mother, and here I am in this big city all alone but him. JANE."

If there is a doubt in your mind as to your love for the man you surely would not go on kissing him, would you? That wouldn't be fair to yourself or to him. Perhaps a definite separation of six months might give you a chance to find out whether there was another in the world who would leave no doubt in your mind as to being the real person.

Just Forget Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have been going about with a young man for six months. During that time I have learned to love him. Some time ago I had an appointment with him. Meeting one of my friends, he told her he would not be able to meet me. It is now a month. I have not heard from him. What shall I do? DISTRESSED."

Forget him, Distressed! Forget him at least until he takes it upon himsef to call you up and explain.

Been Around the World.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would you please advise me how I might get in touch with a real girl, one who thinks? I am 21, have no bad habits, am considered good looking and educated, and am lonesome for a girl companion who would appreciate a real true pal. Please don't think me silly. I'll admit it is, from one standpoint, but I've been around the world quite a bit, in both good and bad environment, thrown among people in all classes and trade, and I know the good are few and far between in either sex. I would be grateful if you would help me to get acquainted with some nice girl of my ideals. L. C. B."

I think you've just been unfortunate, because my impression is that there are a lot of real girls in the world who "think." Perhaps you do not stay long one place, with the rolling stone's usual poor luck.

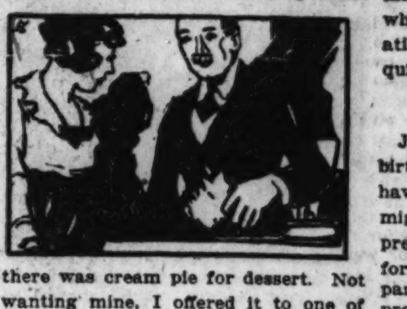
Ten Cents for a Tip.

I was dining at a restaurant with a girl on whom I was anxious to make a good impression. I was somewhat disturbed when I found I had only 10 cents for a tip, but managed to put it under the edge of the plate, so she would not notice it. While we were putting on our coats an elderly woman and her daughter came in and took the seats we had just vacated. We were making our way through the restaurant towards the door when the woman called after me in a shrill voice that could be heard all over the room: "Here, young man, is 10 cents you left on your table." P. D. J.

In Real Life.

One evening at our boarding house there was cream pie for dessert. Not wanting mine, I offered it to one of the boys at the table—the most fastidious member of our crowd. I must have been too impulsive, however, in delivering my gift, for that wretched pie, instead of remaining sedately upon its plate, cast itself, soft side foremost, upon the shocked and disgusted young man. Permit me to assure you that while such occurrences may be excruciatingly funny in the movies, they are quite the opposite in real life. B. A.



An Unnecessary Detail.

Jane was invited to a playmate's birthday party. Her mother did not have time to buy a gift, so said Jane might give her playmate one of the pretty little handkerchiefs she had got for Christmas. On arriving at the party Jane told the whole story, which proved a most embarrassing moment for her mother. E. S.

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

HE DIDN'T LIKE GIRLS.

DURING the summer of 1911 a certain rich and much bored young man decided that he would spend the summer in the Rockies instead of going east with his people. So a few days later found him wandering contentedly around the streets of Denver. Everybody at the hotel—that is, the visitors and tourists—was taking trips on a road which ran through the heart of the Rockies, so he decided he, too, would try it.

Accordingly, the next day he bought a ticket to where visitors played with snowballs during July and August. When the train finally puffed its way into the long train shed at midday, he, in common with the others, climbed out and walked down the tracks to the snow banks.

Right ahead of him he noticed a girl picking her way carefully, but he did not give her a second glance. He didn't like girls. He knew all about them. They bored him stiff—that is, the girls he knew back home in Chicago. The girl in front slipped and cried out, and he sprang forward to catch her. He did catch her before she fell, and he also got a glimpse of a pair of bewildering eyes that set his heart to turning somersaults. In between somersaults, he managed to ask her if she was hurt, and she said she wasn't; had just twisted her foot a bit. She thanked him and went on, and the young man suddenly found out that life didn't bore him half as much as he thought it did.

He watched for her, and she came back later and seated herself with her mother. She made no sign to him, so he went into the smoker wondering who she was, how he could meet her. He smoked up all his cigarets, and finally decided that meet her he must. But, alas, he lost sight of her at the depot, and although he searched the whole city of Denver through, waited around in all the hotel lobbies, he did not see her again.

Discouraged, he determined to leave town. Then an idea struck him. If the girl and her mother were tourists they would probably go to Colorado Springs next. Next day he was at the Springs, and, strange enough, he saw the girl whirl by in a touring car. She saw him, too, and smiled to him, leaned forward as if to wave her arm, changed her mind, and was gone.

Again he searched Colorado Springs as he had searched Denver, but with the same discouraging results. The girl had possessed him now, and the chase became an earnest matter with him. Find her he must!

But he didn't. Finally, discouraged, haunted by the wonderful eyes, he packed his things and went to Los Angeles. Here he spent several weeks, but he could not forget the girl. It made him restless and he started to examine everybody everywhere; he crossed streets to get a look at a girl's face when she seemed familiar, but she did not materialize. Then, one day, when he least expected it, he saw her again getting out of a taxi with her mother. He stared. This time she wouldn't get away! But she did. In some unaccountable fashion he lost her in the crowd near the depot, and she was gone.

That settled it for him. There was no use chasing a phantom that popped up all over the country and couldn't be approached but to disappear.

Home again, he took up his regular routine half heartedly and was quite indifferent to the nice girls he knew who invited him to dances, to dinner, etc. One day a friend of his mother's called him and told him to be sure to come to her home on the following Saturday, as she was entertaining some friends from New York, and she wanted him particularly to meet them. They were the wife and daughter of a famous New York playwright. The daughter was her father's leading woman. She was extremely talented, he was told, brilliant, and pretty. Would he come? He said he would, although the description did not interest him particularly.

Yes, you've guessed it, it was the same girl he had chased from east to west, and here she was smiling wonderfully and acknowledging the introduction with a twinkle in the marvelous corn flower eyes. He took possession of her at once. He's kept it ever since.

Campfire Butterscotch Pie

Here's a pie as rare in its goodness as the delicious, old-fashioned butterscotch candy.

Alice Bradley, famous cooking authority, prepared the recipe specially for use with Campfire, the cooking marshmallows.

Try Campfire. You get a finer flavor, better cooking texture, more weight for your money.

Recipe

2 cups milk
1 cup brown sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
3 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
Pastry crust
1 box Campfire Marshmallows

Scald milk in double boiler, mix sugar and cornstarch, add to milk, stir until thick, cover and cook fifteen minutes. Add butter and salt and pour over egg yolks slightly beaten. Return to double boiler, stir and cook one minute, remove from fire and cool. When ready to serve add vanilla and pour into a baked pastry crust.

Cut Campfire Marshmallows in pieces and put in a warm place until they are soft. Beat egg whites until stiff, beat in marshmallows and spread over the top of the pie. Brown in oven if desired.

Recipe folder in each package. For complete set of Alice Bradley's excellent Campfire recipes, write for the Campfire Recipe Book. Address our Recipe Dept.

OMENS and CHARMS

by Doris Blake

ON'T try to hear conversation not intended for you, as eavesdroppers never hear any good about themselves.

To find the unlucky one among a number of people, count "onery, machery, zen, hollowbone, crack-[illegible] willberry, waxstone, tollaway, [illegible]." The one on whom falls the last is the unlucky one. Another for the same purpose is: "Izort, [illegible] zigzort, zal, bobtail, a domi-[illegible] tee, taw, tal, halem, scalem, [illegible] sanktum, buck, spur, Tom, [illegible] the nail, good old man."

[illegible] steals along with silent tread,
Found oftenest in what least we dread;
Frowns in the storm with angry brow,
But in the sunshine strikes the blow.

If you boast of a thing you are sure to lose it. This is what was meant by "damning by loud praise," the same as "damning with faint praise."

If a person always keeps saying over every trifling annoyance or disappointment, "O, 'tis just my luck!" such person will never be lucky. To think you are lucky and successful is to make yourself so. Think persistently of success, and deny the possibility of evil, no matter how unlucky you have been; your luck will change.

To watch for any one to come is a sign he will not come.

It is unlucky to pay money for charms, as they will lose all their [illegible].

Good luck is not to be repeated.

Idiots and fools do not drown or sink in the water.

Better a grain of luck than a ton of knowledge without it.

If you wish to be successful in finding out a secret, carry an old key in your pocket.

When one misfortune or accident occurs,
Two more are sure to follow soon.

It is bad luck to be unusually gay and full of spirits. It is what the Scotch term "fey," and always foretells sorrow.

The following charm is found in Shakespeare's "Macbeth":

Thrice to thine and thrice to mine,
And thrice again to make up nine.
Peace! The charm's wound up!

The most curious paperweight in the world is said to belong to the Prince of Wales, and is the mummified hand of the daughter of Pharoah. He keeps it for luck.

An old saying is: "Never flatter yourself, for when you think you are all right you will at once fall through with everything."

If you are looking for some one and, thinking you see him, exclaim, "Here he is" when he is not in sight, he will tarry when he does come.

Say, "One, two, three, good luck for me," when you know you have said or done something unlucky. It breaks the spell.

If you suffer privations in early life you are sure to make up for it in later life. If you are rich as a child, you will not always be so. Every one must some time wear the kitchen apron.

A person who wishes to be lucky should never speak of himself in the third person.

To carry the knuckle bone of a ham will bring good luck.

To rid yourself of bad luck, throw a penny over your shoulder, and the one who picks it up will get the bad luck.

Unlucky at play, lucky in love.

One extreme follows another. If you sing all day today, tomorrow you will probably cry.

When you desire that a friend shall have good luck in any undertaking walk around him two or three times, in the direction of the sun.

It is said good luck and bad luck come in waves, one following the other. This may have given rise to the adage: "It never rains but it pours!"

If one has good luck he must not tell how he got it, or it will turn to bad luck.

Take a rubber ball, and bounce it as many times as you can without missing. Begin with your own age as you count, and when you miss it shows when you will either die or marry.

Straight is the line of duty;
Curved is the line of beauty.
Follow the first and you will see,
The second following after thee.

When so much as speaking of your good health or fortune tap the back of your hand or forearm three times to avert the bad omen.

Weariness Is a Warning

Do you walk on your spine? Weariness, recurrent pain at the back of the neck, aching legs and feet—all these are evidence that the jolt of every step is falling on your spine. It proves that your weight is all "dead weight" on your arches. That your footwear is wrong.

Cantilever Shoes have a natural inner sole line that encourages correct poise. In ordinary shoes all the weight falls on the inside, the weak side, of the arch. But in Cantilevers the weight is distributed properly over the heel, the ball and the outside of the foot. There is no muscular strain, no distortion of the foot.

Cantilevers hug the arch and support it. The flexible shank allows the muscles to exercise and grow strong. They prevent and correct fallen arches. Widths from AAAAA to EE. Write for Booklet.

"We guard our throats against germs"

"We first became acquainted with Formamint when our doctor, several years ago, prescribed it for an epidemic of sore throat. You know how it runs through a family.

"We like Formamint because it relieves so quickly and is so much more convenient than gargles and sprays, especially for the children who hate such remedies.

"Then you remember the 'flu' epidemic. How fearful we all were of crowded, stuffy places; theatres and shops; crowded cars and illy ventilated school rooms. Again the whole family 'Formaminted' their throats and mouths, by using the pleasant tasting tablets freely, whenever there was danger of contagion.

"Formamint must be really antiseptic, because none of us had the 'flu,' and few had sore throats, that whole winter. You can put our family down as Formamint enthusiasts."

Formamint is sold by all druggists. Any druggist will tell you how widely Formamint is recommended by throat specialists, physicians and dentists.

Bright Cretonnes for the Bedroom.

DIFFICULTIES OF A DECORATOR

IN the practical work of refurnishing, the decorator is usually confronted with the questions: "What has the client got that must, either for reasons of economy or preference, be retained?" and "For what type of person is the room to be planned?"

Do not underestimate the importance of this latter point. However lovely an interior may be, if it is not suitable and in accordance with the personality of the client, it is a mistake. A fluffy little Dresden blonde in a gorgeous deep toned Italian interior, or a splendid oriental type of brunette in a pastel tinted room would be equally at a disadvantage.

My advice to every home maker is to study herself or to engage a decorator capable of studying her type, and playing up to it so that her surroundings may not only be beautiful but flattering. Let everything that comes into the room be subservient to her own personal advantage.

It isn't enough to create a room that is lovely in itself and in which Mrs. Smiling Rival looks adorable. Nay, nay. Nothing so simple. It must set off one's own good points to the consternation of the whole Angora sisterhood.

Sometimes one of the points to be considered, that of retaining certain belongings, is directly at variance with the other, that of flattering the client. Then the problem becomes knotty indeed.

Fancy this case for example: Mrs. Client had moved into a new home, a pretty stucco house in the suburbs. The front door opened directly into the living room. She had bought and paid for and could not change a purple rug, and it was on the living room floor. That was all that was in this room.

Adjoining, was the dining room, plainly in view, furnished in mahogany, bright blue seats to the chairs, blue and taupe draperies, blue and tan rug. As I looked at the owner standing on that purple rug, pretty as she was, I could think of nothing for a minute but a bunch of carrots and beets, for she had red hair.

The upholstery stuff had to be chosen and the draperies and the accessories selected. She had a davenport, two comfortable wing chairs, two mahogany chairs (Chippendale type), all to be upholstered, and a baby grand piano.

We selected fabrics and accessories. At the right of the front door (the room was long and narrow), we placed the davenport with a davenport table behind it. The material to cover it was a heavy greenish ecru stuff with large design in raised velvet on it. The ground work was not velvet. The colors were the amethyst like the carpet and the blue like the dining room chairs with spots in two tones of olive.

For the lambrequin, we selected velveteen in olive gray. No side draperies, as we wished to economize, but the lambrequins were shaped down at the sides.

At the front was one window. At the left wall were two windows. At the wall space facing the front door were two doors with a narrow wall space between them. One door led upstairs and the other into the dining room. These were curtained with olive gray velveteen like the lambrequins.

These framed in the wall space nicely, and here we placed a lovely little wall table; hanging above it an exquisite bas-relief, the irresistible portrait in pilaster of a baby friend, lovingly done by Lou Wall Moore. The plaster was rounded at the top and finely polychromed. Trailing up around it, we put a Della Robbia ivy, and flanked it with a pair of polychromed candlesticks.

At the left wall we changed one to a French door to open to the sun room. Between the French door and the window eventually will be a fireplace. This is just opposite the davenport. At this wall space we hung a decoration, a painting of roses and larkspur keyed to blue.

We placed beneath the painting, to remain here until the fireplace is built, a small carpentered open bookcase, with ends rather high and rounded. This we treated as a part of the woodwork of the room, painting it old ivory to match. To reflect the light from these two windows we hung a long, narrow mirror, horizontally over the davenport table.

One wing chair we covered in rose, taupe, and dark blue damask brocade, and the other in dark blue velveteen. At the windows on the whole first floor we placed silk gauze in changeable gold and blue. The fabric has wonderful resilience, looking greenish gray, which blends well with the stucco from the outside, and golden where the light falls through it, viewed from within.

Now everything was well excepting the rose colored strips in one wing chair and the anethyst velvet figures of the davenport. These colors were not meant for a Titian blonde, so we made a cunning little pad of old blue taffeta, with ornamental tassels at each side to "background," her head on the wing chair, and on the davenport table we placed two vases of Italian ware, figured in blue and lemon mock oranges, with blue green leaves. These we made into lamps and topped off with bright turquoise blue silk shades.

On the table we placed a turquoise blue bon-bonier and a bit of lemon colored Ruskin ware. All this (as the davenport back was low), came back of my lady's head most beautifully.

We repeated the blue and yellow green of the vases by copying the design on a parchment lamp shade to stand beside her own dark blue velveteen wing chair. We trimmed the parchment shade with greenish gold colored fringe, applied under greenish taupe moss. We put the baby grand near the front window.

When we had finished we liked the scheme so well that we carried the colors up to the bedroom. The chintz here is an old blue and greenish gray stripe with American roses. The wall is pale old blue and the carpet is amethyst. The window draperies are of changeable blue and gold Demfast.

The hardware, lighting fixtures, etc., are in light brass. The furniture is citron gray. The domination of blue with accents and accidents of lemon and greenish gold and the turquoise touch have made it flattering. The hair, juxtaposed on this ground, is the lovely glittering color of sandstone. There is no longer the least suggestion of carrots and beets.

In listing the caloric values of foods, the U. S. Department of Agriculture gives a high standing to macaroni. It outranks meats, vegetables and all but one breakfast cereal in nutrition. Fortune Macaroni, made exclusively from the choicest of macaroni wheats—durum Semolina—abounds in the elements that sustain and nourish the human body.

So different and delicious are the forms in which it may be prepared that there is always a new dish with which to surprise and delight the family.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

AN EVERY DAY DRESS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—If you go to the frolics you will get your money's worth. On a Monday you will see everybody celebrated for anything whatever, from her who conduct the greatest of the salons and tries to keep alive the tradition of the grand courtesans of Europe to her who is celebrated for having promoted herself from the chorus of the New York Frolics to the wife of a financier. From seeking fame as an artist she has settled down to achieving it for the number and the variety of her fur coats, which range from sable and chinchilla to squirrel and kolinsky, with ermine included in the outfit. It is worth while going to the dance place to see which coat is on that evening.

Julie Thompson was there last week. She is distinguished for having told the Prince of Wales in a reported conversation that he should run along home to bed. She is also celebrated for her bracelets, extending from wrist to elbow and representing conquests.

Her gown was of black chiffon dotted with gold polka dots, like coins. The belt was of three blue roses of different shades, and the train was a panel down the back, caught at each side of the waist line by one of the rosos, which held it in place. This not exactly conservative costume was topped with a black hat that looked as if it had had its entire back brim lifted off by a shell, so flat it went across her chignon. A huge black bow looked as if it might have been put on—an artist having been summoned to do an extra fine piece of work—to cover the damage. The bow extended beyond the hat brim and jutted out on the left. Now that fashion has decreed all trimming shall be on the right, the ultra smart are putting them on the other side.

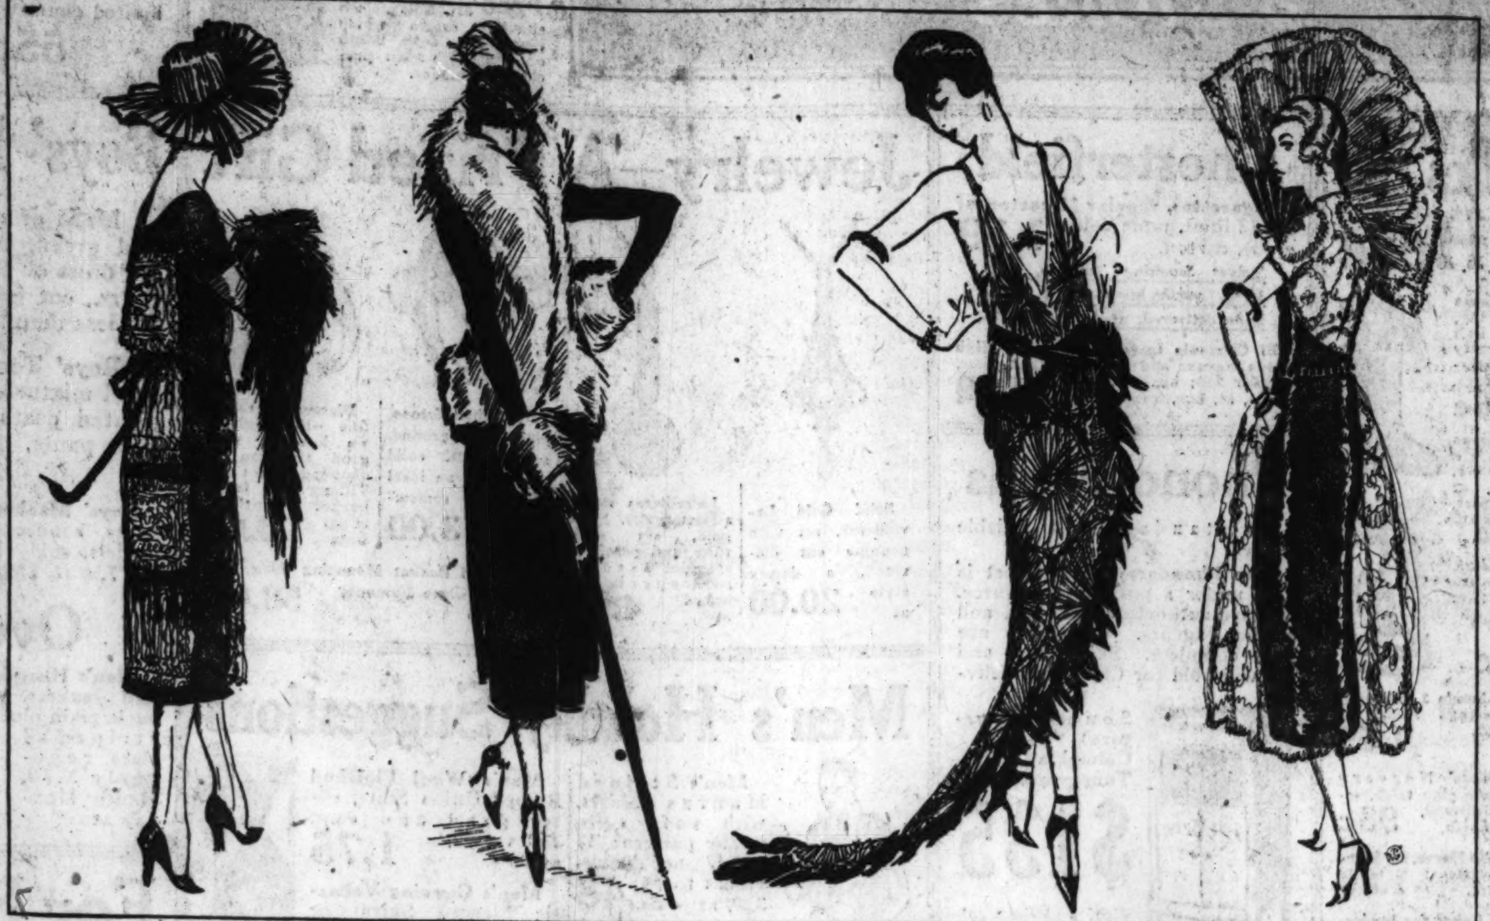
Jeanne Eagles was there, a little frail thing, ethereally blonde, and done up as if to represent a medieval window. She was all in white and crystal beaded, with something which I suppose she calls a hat or headdress, but which might pass for a halo.

Then there was the little girl of the first sketch, who evidently thought it was not worth dressing up for. This is one of her everyday dresses in dark blue serge, heavily embroidered in gray soutache braid. The motif is put on in four squares down the back. The front is solidly of embroidery with a floriated edge. A simple tie around belt holds the dress in place. It has short sleeves and a round neck. Gray hose go with it, a silver fox fur, and a plaited hat of marine blue taffeta.

Lanvin furnishes the rather Victorian suit of the second sketch. She certainly goes in for breadth. The Victorian effect of this suit comes in its decoration of gray fox. It is against dull midnight blue velvet made with tight sleeves and a straight skirt. These close lines allow the bushiness of the fox to show big. A tiny edge of scarlet appears round the edge of the skirt. An almost microscopic blue hat tops off the costume and gives the full value of contrast to that bushy fur. The hat is decorated with a straggly feather.

The third is an evening gown which you could not quite wear just any place at all, but for formal functions it is regal. The material is of silver tissue heavily embroidered in tornished silver. The skirt is draped high over one hip. It is edged along all of its borders, even to the length of train with fur tails. They go round the side that is attached to the bodice. Emerald colored beads "high light" the design in the embroidery and two large emeralds hold the silver bodice at the shoulders. A jade bracelet is not an unimportant part of the "get up," its place being at the elbow. A bracelet of pearls circles the wrist. The sandals, doubtless created for that costume alone, are of turquoise satin. Pear shaped pearls drop from the wearer's ears.

The fourth offering is a dinner gown of black silk lace, covered with a tunic arrangement of black velvet, which has its back entirely removed to meet the exigencies of dinner costuming. Tunics for the most part belong to the morning. This one comes high up near the throat line in the front, and is held in place by a chain passing around the neck. In the back it hollows out, and to satisfy the demands of the present for a covered bodice is filled in with the silk embroidered lace that covers the shoulders as high as the throat. The gown is held in place by a belt of jet. A huge fan of the same lace accompanies the costume.



Blue serge dress embroidered in gray soutache braid.

Tailored suit by Lanvin of midnight blue velvet, trimmed in dull gray fox.

Evening gown of silver tissue heavily embroidered in tarnished silver tissue.

Dinner dress of black silk lace and velvet held in place by a belt of jet.

Bright Sayings of the Children

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune

Mary had reached the stage of satiety where she steadfastly refused all offers of "a little more turkey," a bit more dressing or mashed potato," or "another piece of bread." Nothing apparently could tempt her to eat another mouthful. Finally, however, the nuts, raisins, and candies were passed. "Yes, I will have some," said Mary, and then, apparently thinking her conduct needed some explanation, she added: "I can still eat little things!"

In the early spring Cameron was assisting his aunt in sowing some seeds in their little garden.

After the carrots, onions, radishes, turnips, and lettuce seeds were planted Aunt Lulu turned to Cameron and said, "What shall we plant now, Cameron?"

"O, let's plant soup seeds, Aunt Lulu. Mother just loves soup."

K. C. H.

In a family where there are three boys, the two older had been having more than their share of colds and sore throat this fall. Burton finally got his turn.

When the doctor came and found him with a cold compress around his neck he said, "Well! Well! What have we here?"

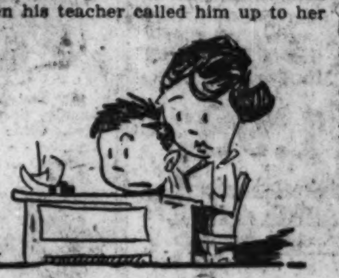
Burton replied: "Well, I have some kind of an animal in my throat but I don't know if it's a hoarse or a frog."

I. M. S.

The cover illustration of a magazine depicts a young girl looking into a mirror with two pearly tears on her cheeks. She is attired fashionably but scantily as are most young girls these days. The object of her tears not being apparent at first glance, Dorothy, on being consulted, immediately suggested that it was "cause she hadn't any clothes to wear."

A. E.

It was Robert's first day in school, and he was having a good time talking to the little girl that sat next to him, when his teacher called him up to her and sat him on her knee till she had finished the lesson, when she said to him:



"Now, Robert, are you not sorry you made so much noise that Miss Clarke had to call you up and sit you on her lap?"

Robert snuggled up to her and looked up into her face, and, smiling, said: "No, I like it."

M. F. S.

Chester could not understand why Lloyd was called his half-brother. It was explained to him—his father had married twice. He couldn't seem to grasp the idea, however. Lloyd soon married and was later divorced, all of which mystified Chester greatly. But when Lloyd married again, his bewilderment was complete. "Dad," he implored, "what relation is Lloyd to us now?"

M. W.

Genevieve had everything that an indulgent family and admiring friends could shower on her, so at Christmas time it became a problem to know what to give her. Her uncle finally asked her outright what she wanted most in the world from Santa Claus and was both astonished and amused to hear her say, "A little baby sister and a decent pair of mittens."

M. S. C.

Harry was sent to wheel the baby over to the avenue and back, but was a long time in getting back.

"I'm afraid baby has taken cold," said mother. "Why didn't you come faster?"

"Why, 'cause there was a p'liceman on most every corner an' I didn't want to be 'rested for speedin'," explained Harry.

A. H.

My baby cousin was lying on the bed, and I was bending over her trying to get her to smile.

Not having any success, I said: "The baby doesn't seem to know me this morning."

Betty was standing near by and trying to offer a suggestion said: "Well, why don't you tell her your name?"

K. L.

Jane, in reading the paper, came across the heading, "In the Wake of the News." Upon being asked by her brother what the words meant, she answered, "O, I suppose it's the earliest news in the morning."

S. A. P.

Once, having just moved, not all of us had a place to sleep, and Kenneth had to bunk on the floor. After two nights he became tired of this and asked his mother when he would not have to sleep that way. On receiving the answer that the beds would be put up the next night, he exclaimed: "Aw, I want to sleep in a human bed once."

An Ohio Electric Cleaner for Christmas gives your wife time to be your pal

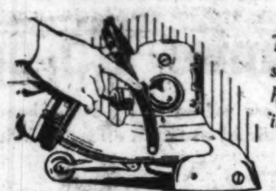
IS YOUR wife tied down so tight to the grind of keeping her home clean that she doesn't have time to play with you or with her children? Does she look tired, and is her health really good? Does she look, at times, just a little wistful, instead of fresh and gay?

An Ohio Electric Cleaner is a time saver and health saver, and because it saves time and health, it brings happiness to the whole family. It gives her time to be a playmate to her children. It gives her time to be your pal, when, on a winter afternoon with your work at the office and your wife's work of cleaning the house all forgotten, you are free to go skating together, or dancing, or to parties.

And an Ohio will satisfy your wife's instinct for cleanliness. It makes it possible for her to have a house that is spotlessly clean without sacrificing her time and her health to keep it so. The one, first job of the Ohio Electric Cleaner is to clean, and it does clean absolutely and thoroughly everything in the house. A demonstration in your own home will prove it to you.

With your work at the office and your wife's work of cleaning the house all forgotten, you are free to go skimming off together over the ice—real pals, real happiness

OHIO TUEC ELECTRIC CLEANER



The motor automatically starts when you lower the handle into natural sweeping position

The automatic switch

An automatic switch stops and starts the motor of the Ohio Electric Cleaner according to the position of the handle. When the handle is in the natural sweeping position, the motor starts. When you put the handle in an upright position, a catch holds it there securely, and the motor stops. It is the simplest, most natural way of doing it, and it prevents any possibility of burning the hand from the short circuiting of a frayed electric cord.

A friction brush

The Ohio Electric Cleaner works on the one principle—gentle brush and powerful suction—that has proved its ability to clean without doing damage to rugs and carpets. The brush is not driven by the motor. It revolves slowly, as you push the cleaner. It does not tear the nap of rugs or carpets. It merely straightens the nap and lifts threads, etc., into a position where they can be caught and whisked into the bag by the powerful suction. You can clean everything in the house with the Ohio.

The automatic dust valve

When the motor of the Ohio stops, an automatic dust valve closes, preventing any dirt from falling back from the bag onto the floor. Simple as can be, but it had to be thought of by somebody, and it happened to be thought of by us. It is a patented feature of the Ohio.

Give her an Ohio for Christmas

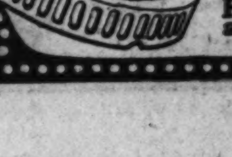
This trade-mark is the safety sign on glass-packed foods



It depends upon the Closure that seals them—the metal Cap to which you have paid little or no attention. The letting in of a little air to certain goods, or the use of unsanitary materials, or any defect in the Cap will play havoc with the contents.

This trade-mark is found on Caps of the best quality. A quarter century of study, experiment and experience is back of it. Always look for it. Never accept glass-packed foods unless this trade-mark is on the Cap. It means the packer has provided the safest seal that can be made.

And if you wish to know more about safe sealing, how to guard against improperly sealed foods, write today for "The Story of Preserving." It's free and all should read it.

9833—Women's long waisted dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches.

9836—Girl's dress—Sizes 8 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 36 inch with ¼ yard of 36 inch contrasting and 5½ yards of binding.

9600—Woman's apron. Size 36, 40, and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¾ yards of 27 inch, or 2¼ yards of 32 inch material, with 8¾ yards of binding.

How to Use the Patterns

MADE up attractively in silk or woolen, No. 9833 is just the sort of a dress one will enjoy slipping into for a day's shopping to wear under a long coat, or it will be equally nice for afternoons at home. It will be so easy to get into and out of, and will be comfortable as well as smart looking.

The skirt is cut in three pieces, there being one back breadth and two front ones. The side seams are sewed together, and the fronts are lapped one over the other, and left open for a distance of three inches down from the waist for closing.

The skirt measures 2⅛ yards at the bottom, quite an unusual measurement, and decidedly comfortable for hurrying in and out of stores and across streets.

The waist is quite simple in design, the collar and revere being the only part that could give any trouble. After the waist seams are finished, cut out one collar section of the dress material, and stitch it around the neck of the dress across the back in a seam that comes to the wrong side. Then stitch the collar ends to the front revere, exactly according to the notches, and have these seams come to what will be the upper side when the dress is on.

Cut the collar and revers for the upper side out of whatever material you may have decided on, and join them together on each side, having the seams come to the wrong side (which will be the upper side when the collar lays back on the dress). Then lay the right side of each collar and rever sections together, baste around the outside edge, and stitch in a half inch seam. Turn the collar right side out, see that the seam is turned flat, baste it down, turn the edege of the outside in, and hem down over the seam—of course clipping all edges around the neck across the back, so there will be no puckering.

If the dress is made of a plaided woolen, the collar and sash would be pretty made of satin or duvetyn. This is a longwaisted dress, and should fit easily at the waist.

No. 9836 is a dear little model for a small girl's dressy dress. Challis, serge, crêpe de chine, or any material you desire will be all right. If short sleeves are used and a dressy material, the dress will be ideal for "dress-up" occasions; on the other hand, if you choose woolen, and make long sleeves, it will be suitable for many other occasions.

The skirt is a straight, gathered one, cut in one piece, and the waist is a slip-on one, cut down a short ways in the neck in the front. The skirt is joined to an under waist, and the outside one is held enough in place by the sash ends, which tie at each side. This is a pretty idea and will add to the attractiveness of the dress a good deal. Of course, these sash ends should be lined, and they can be seamed together on the wrong sides, across the ends, or they can be gathered at the ends and a small silk tassel or ball set in there.

The neck opening is bound, and one or two eyelets should be worked on each side of the opening and ribbon laced through.

Most homes are so well heated today that children wear thin dresses most of the year, and there is nothing more appropriate or lovelier than sheer white wash materials. For a little dress to wear afternoons at home there are the checked flaxons, lovely and sheer and shown in a number of different designs.

The sash ends would be made double and seamed across the ends. At the top of the hem on the skirt, put in a line of feather stitching and repeat on the edges of the collar and cuffs. It might be pretty to make the collar and cuffs of a plain, sheer lawn.

The lacing at the neck in the front could be done with a delicate shade of pink or blue instead of white, and eyelets could be worked on the outside of the cuffs to match, even though the cuffs do not open.

No. 9600 is one of those enveloping aprons that are so nice to wear when one is getting dinner or supper and is dressed for the afternoon or evening. These aprons are capable of being made so they are attractive looking by choosing pretty materials and finishing with trimming in the shape of binding the edges in some contrasting color. Or you may set a wide ric rac braid on the under side so that the points on one side extend beyond the edge. Stitch twice, once on the edge and the second time so the stitching will catch the opposite edge of the braid and the edge of the hem at the same time.

Film and acid aren't your teeth's worst enemies

Pyorrhea is responsible for the premature loss of teeth more than all other causes combined. All dental statistics prove this.

Pyorrhea starts with irritation and infection of the gum tissue. The only way to prevent it (or to check its progress) is to take proper care of your gums.

It is of no avail simply to keep your teeth white—to remove the film—or to counteract acid condition of the mouth. This is all that most dentifrices do; they fail to protect you against pyorrhea because they have no beneficial effect upon the gums.

But there is one preparation which does aid the gums—Pyorrhocide Powder. It contains both gum-strengthening and tooth-cleaning properties of the highest effectiveness.

If your gums are healthy, Pyorrhocide Powder will keep them so. If they bleed easily, are soft or tender or have started to recede, Pyorrhocide Powder will aid in repairing them. It stimulates the blood circulation, helps to restore hardness and firmness, thus increasing their power of resistance against pyorrhea infection.

As your dentist knows, Pyorrhocide Powder is medicated with Dentinol, a germicidal and healing agent extensively used by the dental profession in the treatment of pyorrhea at the dentist's chair. He also knows that long and thorough clinical tests have proved the value of Pyorrhocide Powder for maintaining and restoring gum health.

The economical dollar package contains six months' supply. At all druggists and dental supply houses.

Free trial package to prove what real gum health means

Send coupon for free sample of Pyorrhocide Powder. Note how it leaves a refreshed, cleanly feeling of the teeth and gums long after brushing. To you who have used other dentifrices, it will prove a revelation. We will also send our educational booklet on the Prevention and Treatment of Pyorrhea.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

By Jane Eddington.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

THE COOKING FATS.

It rather surprised a number of good and thrifty souls to find that a "mock lamb stew," containing for its name meat only two tablespoons of lamb fat, should be so good and attractive, too. Served in a border of rice, molded in a round border ring, it is good enough for a Haviland chop plate, or in an oblong border for even a Lenox platter.

And it will look quite fine as well served on the humblest of stone china platters, the border made by dipping up tablespoons of boiled rice and arranging them in a nice range of mounds all around the platter next its rim. I know of economic homes where this has become a standby and where it does not have to be served from stone china.

Mock Lamb Stew.

Here is the recipe: Two cups of potatoes, one onion, two tablespoons of lamb fat, one teaspoon of salt, one cup of carrot, one small turnip, one level tablespoon of flour, water to cover. Slice or dice the vegetables and cook until tender, covered with water. When done drain off liquid and shake over fire for a few minutes. Brown the flour in the lamb fat, and add liquid to make a medium thick gravy. Let the vegetables simmer in the gravy a few minutes. Serve on a hot platter with a border of plain rice. A can of peas may be added ten minutes before serving, if desired.

Look at this recipe and see how many ways you may vary it, following the different methods there are for making lamb stew or the supposedly more elegant ragout. But, as we all know, a ragout is just a stew put together with fineness.

Use Mutton Fat.

However, we are not talking primarily of stews, but of fats. Mutton fat is in general considered one of the intractable, useless fats for cookery, but valuable in old days for candle making.

Suppose some day you have to stand around while some of the people who are devoted to fried lamb's kidneys buy four or five from the butcher. He will take off the fat, and it will be for the moment what an English novelist calls "a block ornimint," using the common cockney vernacular.

Moreover, the common people of whom he wrote, buy anything in the way of meat fat for "dripping," because of their extreme poverty, being wiser in solid primitive wisdom than any but a modern dietition can guess, as wise as those European peoples of the Hoover-helped soup lines, who eagerly estimated the width of what was often only a film of fat over the bowl of soup given them. If it was a quarter of an inch thick they knew they would feel warmer and in every way more comfortable until another day came, and with it the chance of another bowl of soup.

For 10 cents or less you may buy a pound of that lamb fat which lies there on the block. Do not be ashamed to do so. When you get it home wash it carefully in warm water, rinse it, drain and dry it; take off the skin which contains more of the lamb or mutton flavor than ten times its weight of the fat, and render in any one of the various ways you render suet.

If cooked with milk to soften it, the product must be used at once or many times rinsed, but rendered without water in a double boiler you will have enough fat for a dozen mock lamb stews, and it will keep well. If we were not talking about cooking fats, we might tell how valuable this fat is for sore hands, and how it might be altered for the purest and most healing of the old fashioned salves.

Rendering Beef Suet.

Beef suet costs nearly twice as much as the lamb fat, but the fat from it, whether used as "dripping" or a homemade margarine, or no matter how, is a most economical household supply, quite good enough for cakes and cookies if not browned the slightest in the rendering. If cleaned and prepared for the rendering with care, it is as sweetly and agreeably flavored as the best butter. It is dirt that turns it into objectionable grease.

A housewife of 83, with whom I have just been talking, renders it for winter use in five pound portions. Just notice that she can get five pounds of suet for less than a dollar. She has educated her butcher to give her nothing but kidney suet, but with her method of treatment "cot suet" would yield something not to be despised, just as it may when treated to get a savory fat.

This dean of the kitchen, who in her prime was purveyor to a large family, first heats the skinned and cut up suet in considerable water, cooks it a few minutes, lets it stand over night, drains it from the water, and then cooks in only so much water as will cook away when it has melted from the tissues. Of course, the water is a constant protection, because the temperature of boiling water is safely below the lowest temperature at which any fat will burn or brown. She does not whip this all up to a fluffy softness, with a fork, but only so much at a time is so treated as she needs. She says she has often fried potatoes in this fat, finally added a little butter, and been told that she was extravagant for using all butter for such cooking.

Marrowbone Fat.

The marrow fat taken out of the bone and poached, by the great chefs, or baked in sections of the bone, the ends of these being well plastered with a paste of flour, is considered as precious as truffles or pate de fois gras, for garnishing, for a dish for a king or for a king of epicures. We waste it recklessly or coarsely utilize it.

The fat that rises from a long cooked marrow or soup bone when the liquid underneath is of a consistency that will jelly is good enough to be used in making a cake or for at least half the shortening. It used to be considered highly valuable to use in heating up hashes, but who makes hashes today? They were ridiculed out of existence because of the effects poor to wretched cooks secured out of worthy materials.

If this soup pot fat is strained and cooked with some milk, and perhaps with some butter, a trifle ancient or ancient enough to need renovating, we get a fat that is plenty good enough for cup cakes, inexpensive fruit cakes, etc.

Fats from the Fowls.

Chicken fat, whether from the top of the pot in which the old hen was simmered back to chickenlike tenderness, or chicken fat from the rendering of the fat that is exposed when the chicken is "drawn," which is often carelessly thrown away with the viscera even as the giblets are, is good enough for the most delicate cake and cookies. It is worth infinitely more as food than ten times its weight of giblets, which some housewives do carefully clean and cook while they reject the fat. Chicken fat is also considered excellent for shortening baking powder biscuits.

Mock turkey hashes may be made with turkey fat, and, like the stock made from the rack of the roast turkey, this fat is excellent in various vegetable cookings. And when it comes to goose fat, we get something that has been the energy reliance of countless thousands of people. There is an extensive lore about it. When rendered with care and whipped it is not only used as a spread for bread but for fine cooked cream fillings for cake.

This emulsifying of any fat or oil by beating it makes it more palatable. We make it more palatable by cooking it in water, which takes off objectionable flavors, but not dirt flavors, unless a good many waters are used. We take off flavors and add some by doing as the Scotch woman did when she added "one small onion and one small carrot" to her boiled mutton to "take off the sheep flavor." By using vegetables when we cook or render animal fats we can make the least attractive of them "savory" and quite highly palatable—good enough to mix with condimental raw vegetables like chopped green pepper for highly excellent sandwiches.

Pork Fats.

Cooks in general know a good deal about the many uses of pork fat, whether the fat from the trying out of leaf lard and the highly palatable cracklings that may result if it is not burned, or the bacon fat or the sausage fat, the pot fat from boiled spareribs or other cuts, but enough ham fat is daily wasted to supply food fuel for the population of a city ward every day in any of our large cities.

Some one recently told me about the wealthy women of a certain community turning just now to soapmaking. The fats they use for poor soaps, if used for food, would keep many a large family "lubricated" and muffled, as it were, against the colds and pneumonias of winter. But they have been guided by people who write, saying "I put aside mutton and soup fat for making soap."

But notice what we may do when we use our fats for soap instead of for food! Beef fat or our suet contains 3,540 calories per pound and mutton kidney fat, according to the same authority, averages over 4,000 calories per pound, although we are accustomed to think that no food can yield more than 4,000 calories of food per pound. The cereals average, before cooked, 1,600 calories per pound, and pure sugar, a great fuel food but with more dangers digestively than the fats when these are rightly handled, yields only about 1,800 calories.

Is it not more sensible to make mock mutton stew than a grain of soap from two tablespoons of lamb fat? We need the heaviest of fuel foods, which are the fats, in winter, more than we need heavy underwear and furs to keep us warm. Heat goes out from our bodies as fast as it can, as fast comparatively as from a furnace, for it is a furnace. To throw away our fuels, the fuel from the top of the soup pot, and eat the almost fuelless, but yet in its way valuable, soup is a crime. The ordinary beef soup yields only 120 calories per pound.

CARELESS BUYING ONE CAUSE OF HIGH COSTS

Not Enough Attention Given to Merit of Merchandise

There is too much laxity in buying methods. Still people complain of high prices—when, in reality, careless spending is instrumental in keeping up costs. Not enough attention is given to the actual value of merchandise.

For example: a housewife goes into a grocery store. She orders a can of this—a pound of that—a peck or a package of something else. She looks upon high prices as a condition over which she has little or no control.

All too often she entertains the perverted notion that a price-tag is a badge of quality—that high priced goods are naturally the most meritorious. She has lost the true perspective of worth in the jumble of high costs and judges by what she gives more than by what she gets.

It is a grievous error—and a predominating cause of high prices. Every buyer of foodstuffs and all other kinds of merchandise should consider QUALITY first. If an article that retails at a moderate price will answer your purpose as well or better than one that sells at exorbitant figures, favor the lower priced item by all means.

QUALITY THE ONLY TEST OF VALUE

Should Be Buying Guide for Every Housewife

This doesn't imply that all goods sold at a moderate price possess desirable merit. Poor merchandise at any price always proves expensive. Quality alone is the only test of value—and should be the buying guide of every housewife.

High-priced commodities that are not worth the prices at which they are quoted are sold because there is a demand for them. The grocer must handle them because his trade insists on having them. The grocer is not to blame. He hesitates to offer buying suggestions to customers because so many persons view such advice as an outright insult to their buying intelligence.

The conscientious grocer—and the huge majority of grocers are of that stripe—is eager to save money for his customers—willing and able to give them intelligent and helpful advice along the lines of economical buying. But the customer must display a willingness to be advised.

There should be a clearer understanding between the retailer and the consumer—a finer spirit of co-operation. The grocer is dependent upon the consumer. His interests lie parallel with those of his trade. He carries food products of greatest excellence produced by manufacturers who permit retail sales to be made at legitimate figures.

ENCOURAGE SALE OF SOUND QUALITY GOODS

I am fully convinced that the buying public should encourage the grocer to push quality merchandise that sells at an economical price. This will have a tendency to whip up production of goods of sound merit and fair prices—at the same time discouraging the manufacture, sale and use of products that represent extravagance and waste.

There should be no mistake about this matter of economy. The housewife who boils "potatoes with jackets" to prevent waste of peelings—who saves her left-over coffee—can, I am sure, defeat her splendid intentions many times over by unwise buying. Proper selection of foods is the first step towards reduction of food prices.

I am positive that the important things for the housewife to remember, practice and preach are, "don't buy food products that can be duplicated at a saving of cash and a gain in quality; investigate the food value of an article; don't accept high prices as final proof of high quality; do not accuse the dealer of holding up prices when you deliberately persist in buying goods for which he must pay high prices.—Florence King, President National Woman's Association of Commerce.

FOR AND BY BUSINESS GIRLS

DAY OF SPECIALISTS.

"IN this day of specialists," said Marion the other day, while we were waiting for Minnie to bring us our luncheon, "the girl who expects to earn her own living without having been trained for any special work has a hard time finding a suitable job—that is, one where the work is interesting and the salary enough to live on."

"Our thoughts have been running in the same channel," said Ann, "for I've been thinking about that for the last few days. We have two girls in the office who have had no special training, and they take care of the few odd jobs, such as sorting and distributing the mail, filling out cards by hand for our index, running errands for every one about the place, and so on. The two girls have been doing precisely that and nothing more for the past two years.

"I was checking up a list of the girls who have been with the firm two or more years for Mr. Andrews the other day, and I was surprised to find that out of seventeen who have been with us that long these two are the only ones who have stayed on at their original jobs."

After Minnie had served us, Ann went on: "I've been tempted to give them a bit of advice, but that's usually a thankless job, when unsolicited. Maybe I can encourage them without being too obtrusive about it, to study stenography, filing, or the operation of one of the many calculating and efficiency machines used in offices today. I think I'll try it, anyway. They can do it in the evening if they can't afford to give up their jobs for a little while. Our offices are as thoroughly systematized and our office manager will not hire any but especially trained people for all but a few small jobs, that an untrained girl has little chance of getting a good job with us. I suppose it's the same in many other offices, too."

"Yes, it's like that in our office," said Marion. "The advantages of specializing occurred to me this morning because a young girl for whom I got a job with the firm six months ago and who studied filing at my suggestion has just been appointed to the position of chief file clerk for the house."

"Why did you suggest filing to her as a profession?" asked Dorothy.

"Well," said Marion, "we have an enormous and complicated filing system, and as our files are constantly being referred to it is extremely important to keep them in order and up to date. We have always had a lot of trouble about the files, however. It was the one department in the house that wasn't properly managed. It was under the supervision of the office manager, but he never had time to give it the attention it deserved.

"It was always our policy to hire inexperienced girls to work in the file room, on the absurd supposition that anybody could take care of the files. Consequently, we were always losing important documents or having them turn up, after a long search, in unexpected places.

"The condition of our files has always been on my nerves," Marion went on, "and when Nellie asked me to find a place for her with our firm, I got her a job through the office manager in our file room, and suggested that she take a course in filing at night.

"She was perfectly willing, and after two months at the school she asked and received permission from our manager to readjust our entire filing system. It meant a lot of hard work and some opposition from the people in the house. She had a strong ally in the manager, however, and set to work with a will. There was a little confusion for a week or two, but the wonders she has finally accomplished have more than compensated for that.

"Now, when we want something from the files it can be found in a few moments. No one has access to the files but the girls in that room, and when anything is taken out a complete record is made of the transaction.

"Nellie has created an important position for herself and has a corps of workers under her. Simply," Marion concluded, "because she has realized, as we have, and taken advantage of the fact, that this is a day of specialists, and unskilled labor in any field is not in great demand."

Asks Hearing Device.

"I am hard of hearing—cannot hear ordinary conversation at all—and at times it almost makes me despondent. If any one has an electrical hearing device to pass on to me I should be most grateful to have it and will pay the mailing expenses. A. C."

Overcoat for 6 Year Old.

"Could you help me, please? My husband deserted me, leaving three children for me to support. My 6 year old boy is without an overcoat, and I will have to keep him from school until such time as he gets one. "MRS. M. K."

Will Give Shoes.

"I have a good heavy pair of shoes (size 8½ AA) which, with new half soles, will give some one a year's wear. I have outgrown them. Is there some one who will knit the hand part of mittens to two pairs of cuffs I have for my little son? I will furnish the yarn. He requires so many things and they are hard to get. L. F. H."

Needs Silk Pieces.

"I think your corner is wonderful, and I come to make a plea for a poor crippled woman who has no father and her mother is quite old. This young woman would like to get silk pieces, as she makes quilts and sells them, thereby helping to make a living for herself and mother. Kindly ask your readers to send to her any silk pieces they have. B. E. B."

Won't you please turn your scrap bags inside out and see what silk pieces you have for the crippled girl?

Wants Doll Buggy.

"I am asking you to please help me to get a doll buggy for my little girl. I cannot afford to buy one and thought perhaps some of your readers have one they would like to pass along. I will call for it or pay for expressing. "MRS. M. S."

My Funniest Childhood Adventure

The Smallest Clown.

I was about four when I was taken for the first time to a circus. The clowns, of course, interested me most. When mother wasn't watching me I slipped out of my seat, went into the ring with the clowns, and tried to imitate their somersaults and other tricks. In the course of time, naturally, mother spied me, and lost no time in going to rescue me. I howled with disappointment, and the audience shrieked with mirth. L. V.

Mother Didn't Tell.

Father made it a rule that if mother had to punish me at any time during the day he would also punish me when he returned home that evening. One day when I had been naughty and mother had made me sit in a high chair. I was allowed to think that I had quite outgrown this chair when I was a good little girl. It was placed in a corner and one could see down the street about two blocks from the window when seated in it. I knew it was nearly time for father to come home and I also knew that he would know when he saw me in that chair that I had been naughty. I waited till he was almost home, then asked if I might get a drink of water. I was given permission, but mother said I must get right back into the chair. I got my drink slowly, and father came in while I was drinking. I strolled over near the detested chair and seating myself in an unconcerned manner said, "O, hum, I guess I'll sit down!" My mother thought this so funny that she did not tell on me for some time and then only to say how funny she thought it, and I escaped my second punishment that time. L. P.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

THE punctual tide of the theater will cast three new dramas upon this thirsty beach in the course of the present week. They are not so much new dramas, of course, as second-hand ones, since all three have been in service elsewhere, and come to us as honest veterans from the eastern fields. Therein is one of the advantages of the provincial playgoer. The wares that reach the distant marts are time-tried and dependable. They have been examined and found good and stapled by the severe and exacting appraisers in other metropolises, and thus the hazards of the playhouse are reduced for us to a comfortable minimum. Who, under such felicitous circumstances, would prefer to be a producing center?

Yet here are the Messrs. Selwyn, with two new theaters in Dearborn street, threatening to make us the headquarters for experiments. If plans come true, which often they do not, in the world of the theater, we shall have to take chances on our first nights at the Selwyn shows, since they propose to start them here. We shall not have the experience of an older play-going civilization to guide us, in case the Selwyns do this, and the possibility exists that we may like a drama that is not good, and that we may not care for a work that demands affection. We have been known to err, even under the present helpful conditions.

We seem to be safe, however, for the present week. Mr. Barney Bernard, an established characterization, is coming tonight with the accolade of distinguished approval in a continuation of Mr. Potash, bereft of Mr. Perlmutter. This incarnation is called "His Honor, Abe Potash," and it represents Mr. Bernard as trafficking in law and order as the quaint mayor of a small town in New York. The redoubtable George Lederer will place on sale tonight a musical comedy entitled "The Girl in the Spotlight," and his composer, Victor Herbert, will be here to lead the band. Tomorrow night William Collier will come in a jocular revel named "The Hottentot," declared by experts to be an uproarious exposition of Mr. Collier's witty personality. Mr. Collier in this drama gives extraordinary pleasure, it is said, when he tries to ride a racehorse in a horse race. The three of these plays were more or less indispensable to New York last season, and we may go to them in the glad confidence that they are to be admired.

MR. HODGE'S sentimental circus, "The Guest of Honor," has been subjected in other centers as well as in this to the contemptuous poohpooh of the sophisticated observer. You, who know so well your way about the intricate pathways of an impoverished poet's precarious existence in New York City, may sneer at Mr. Hodge's gauche approximation of such a life; and you may laugh at all his pitiable little endeavors to be "natural." When the delegates from the New York ladies' culture club come to visit him in his attic, and to bestow upon him the ingenuous laurels of their petty approbation, it may seem to your urban scrutiny that it is all incredibly cheap, foolish, and unreal. You have been told in the text books that the art of the theater is the art of the preparation. Mr. Hodge proves this axiom indubitably. He prepares and he prepares and he prepares. He asks of himself and all the others ask of him the simplest questions, and no intelligently adequate answer is forthcoming. Characters and situations dangle irresponsibly; they drift in and out, rich in promise but barren of fulfillment; and no one present is in the least unhappier.

Everything Mr. Hodge does appears to you to be quietly preposterous, a hippodrome of the obvious simplicities, with all the reticent gaudiness of a billboard. Yet does he gladden a multitude numerous, respectable, and important. Mr. Hodge is to the drama as Harold Bell Wright is to literature, the Rogers groups to sculpture, Dr. Frank Crane to ethics, Case & Martin to pies, or Wrigley to romance. He is potent in giving happiness to his fellowmen, and I suspect that he pleases more human beings than does Matthew Arnold or Maeterlinck. It is, no doubt, too bad, but on Tuesday night at the La Salle theater, looking over the smiling visage, and hearing the wholesome guffaws of the many who were present, I doffed my critical chapeau and said to myself that he adds a strange and other hue unto the rainbow of the drama a subtle tint invisible to this unmicroscopic eye, but enjoyable to more stalwart optics.

Two of the season's unusual "successes" will depart for other parts on Christmas night—Miss Barrymore in "Déclassée" and Mr. Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln." Miss Barrymore will be succeeded at Powers' by Miss Leonore Ulrich in "The Son-Daughter," an ornamental thing from the Belasco laboratories, and the Lincoln play will be followed at the Blackstone by Henry Miller and Miss Blanche Bates in "The Famous Mrs. Fair," by James Forbes. Both of the prospective newcomers were popular in the East.

"The Beggars' Opera" now predominant in England, will be imported for production in America by either Sam H. Harris or the Selwyns, as one of the first gestures of their proposed independence of the established syndicates.

George M. Cohan's next activity, scheduled for the East at Christmas time, is a comedy by Vincent Lawrence and Edgar Selwyn called "Live and Learn." Wallace Eddinger, late of "Wedding Bells," will be the principal actor.

The New York newspapers say that Henry Hull and Alma Tell haven't a natural moment in "When We Were Young" and that it is just as much their own fault as it is the author's. Mr. Hull acts a dissipated young chap who is about to shoot himself when he is dissuaded by Miss Tell, who represents a beautiful shopgirl.

Amelie Rives, in whose dramatization of "The Prince and the Pauper" William Faversham is having good luck in New York, is negotiating with that actor for a footlighting of Twain's "Joan of Arc." Mr. Faversham celebrated the author's eighty-fifth birthday at a stage dinner last week and Senator Reed of Missouri was the principal talker.

The biographical Mr. Drinkwater has disposed of another historical drama to William Harris, the producer of "Abraham Lincoln." "Oliver Cromwell" is its name. Miss Laurette Taylor is the actress to whom will fall Mr. Drinkwater's "Mary, Queen of Scots."

The Yiddish actor, Ben Ami, in "Sampson and Delilah," seems to have lashed New York into a fury of enthusiasm, and they are saying that he is as good as John Barrymore. Mr. Wollcott, in the Times, reports that the mischievous Mr. Huneker, pondering the problem of the great American actor, remarks "Ami or Ami not?"

Houghton-Mifflin & Co. announce that the sales of "Abraham Lincoln" in book form now amount to 49,887 copies. The average circulation of a printed play, it is said, is 2,000 copies.

◆

Mme. Pavlowa and her Ballet Russe will appear again in Chicago, this time at the Auditorium Sunday evening, Dec. 26, under the direction of Messrs. Wessels and Voegeli.

Elsie Janis will produce a new "show" this week at the Queen's in London—libretto, music, and stage direction all her own. It is called "It's All Wrong," the title having been suggested perhaps by the reiterated line of the doughboy grouch in Miss Janis' overseas revue.

The London production of "The Storm" was accompanied by disturbances between the English and the American interests in the play. Mrs. Lillian Trimble Bradley, the American stage director, was finally forbidden the theater by Arthur Bourchier, the London manager.

For the opening performance of Mr. Griffith's picture play, "Way Down East," $10 for each lower floor seat will be charged at the Woods theater.

Mr. George Kaufman, dramatic editor of the New York Times, wires me that he will print this morning the following news and comment of the theaters:

Miss Elsie Ferguson has come back from overseas and is seeking a play with which to return anew to the stage. The managers, it is said, are reluctant to confer too promising a manuscript upon Miss Ferguson, since her unwillingness to appear outside of New York necessarily reduces the obtainable revenue.

Mitzi will come to Town in "Lady Billy" in another week, succeeding "The Half Moon," at the Liberty theater. "Lady Billy," primarily the work of Zelda Sears, has been hanging up records in the outlying districts and much is expected of it in New York.

Miss Theda Bara, it is said, is not finding trouping to her liking, even in a play which attracts such bad notices and good receipts as "The Blue Flame," and is accordingly thinking of ending her tour. The play is at present only booked for a few weeks longer, but the tour is being extended week by week as Miss Bara's permission is obtained.

"Mary Rose," with Miss Ruth Chatterton as its star, opened in Atlantic City last Thursday night. A week in Baltimore and another in Washington will follow, and the play will go to New York during the week of Dec. 20.

In a few weeks also, "Transplanting Jean" will reach New York. This is the French comedy which Arthur Byron and Martha Hedman played in Chicago and Boston—with some success in the former center and quite satisfactory results in the latter. Miss Hedman, who was generally considered to be not quite happy in the part, has seceded from the cast and is being replaced by an actress whose identity is at present a mystery.

"The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," contrary to the announcement, did not move on to Chicago at the end of last week, but closed, temporarily, at least, at the Thirty-ninth Street theater. The sudden defection of two members of the cast, it is understood, brought about the closing

With his accustomed quietness, Mr. Belasco has brought "Deburau" to the point of production and the initial performance will take place on Tuesday night in Baltimore. The New York premiere, as previously announced, is set for Thursday night, Dec. 23, at the Belasco theater.

Mr. Brady, with a trio of plays in town, is still not content to call it a season. He has acquired a new one by Jasper Ewing Brady, well known as a writer for the films, and Philip Bartholomae, who has been but sporadically active since his "Overnight" was produced. The new play is entitled "Personality."

Morris Gest wires THE TRIBUNE that Mr. Johnson, executive director of the Chicago Opera association asks him not to cancel the January engagement of "Mecca" at the Auditorium, and that therefore he will not do so. The new Gest spectacle is so popular at the Century theater in New York that Mr. Gest had hoped to continue it there until next season; postponing the Chicago appearances until January, 1922. The Auditorium contract, however, will be observed and "Mecca" will begin at that theater Tuesday night, Jan. 26, continuing for six weeks. "Mr. Johnson and the Chicago Opera association have helped me so much," Mr. Gest telegraphed, "that I must keep faith with them and carry out my obligation." The spectacle will resume its run in New York after its Chicago presentation.

Off Again, On Again, Gone Again—O, You Norma and Wallie!

BULLETIN.

Norma Talmadge and Wallace Reid are galloping along the course at a speed truly terrifying to the devotees of other stars. Unless something little short of a miracle happens, dear knows they'll be chasing off with the honors.

Not that anybody objects, but

WHAT has become of the other darlings that used to cause the fans so much pleasure and worriment?

Eh? (Pronounce it "Huh.")

By Mae Tinée.

THERE are a lot of things we could write about, but what's the use when the only thing you're interested in is the movie contest!

Just let anybody tell me again that people don't care as much about the movies and the screen stars as they used to, and watch me hand 'em proof. Proof? I have barrels of it. I'm cross-eyed counting it!

As you were told last week, THE TRIBUNE's New York paper, the DAILY NEWS, started the ball rolling. The curious people at the head of the motion picture department had lunch together one day (at least, maybe they did), and, being hard up for something to talk about, I imagine—this is purely imaginary—started in guessing who was the most popular movie star. Don't know who bet on whom—that sounds like awful English, somehow—but, anyhow, they decided they'd let the world in on the argument.

So they started a contest. And you know—or I'm telling you—it made such a hit that away off here in the primitive west, where we break banks and bronchos, it occurred to our imitative minds that we would go and do likewise.

Likewise—we did. And look at us now!

Swamped with votes,
From our equilibrium parted,
We haven't made a train
Since the durn thing started.

Not that we mind! Shusshay NOT? It would be perfectly fierce if you weren't the darlings you are and didn't come across so generously with your votes and your interest! You know it must be fierce to be an evangelist and get a perfectly corking sermon all cooked up and then only have a few old men and ladies with colds come to hear you preach it!

If you'd neglect paying attention to our movie contest I'd feel just like an evangelist. And his name wouldn't be Billy Sunday. Believe us, if he started a contest it would be some contest. (Whom would you rather see upon the screen, Wallace Reid, Billy Sunday, or Lew Cody?) There's something for you to think about. Don't tax your brains, though.

But, coming down to brass tacks, are you still getting stronger every minute for Norma and Wallie?

Yeppy, I think they're nice, too. The fact that they're married hasnt' made a bit of difference, has it? That old idea was exploded long ago, wasn't it? (Every time I make a statement I ask a question, don't I?)

Fact of the matter is, what we want in the people who depict life on the screen for us is humanness. What on earth difference does it make if the whole infant population of California and New England, for that matter, can call 'em ancestors.

As long as they can talk to us sincerely of the things we want to talk about; wash out our tired eyes with a few healing tears and sent us out of the theater with a little more pep than we had when we went in—we should worry!

I'm a little surprised, however, to find Mary Pickford taking second place. "America's Sweetheart"—who'd a thott it! Would you mind writing in and telling me your ideas on the subject? And why isn't Tom Moore getting as many votes as Tom Meighan? And why does Mary Miles Minter tag along behind Constance Talmadge? And what's the matter with Harrison Ford?

You have me guessing (which is, of course, what a contest is for, isn't it, even if the bally critick does get handed a dose of her own medicine?)

Well, on with the good work. Let's read the thermometer again. Here are the latest returns on the leaders:

met Mary Pickford. I HAVE MET MARY PICKFORD."

You are now saying things about a certain person playing "Irene" in Chicago.

WAIT UNTL YOU SEE DALE WINTER!

I am told she learned the title part in two weeks. The road show is now playing here. It's not a very big jump at that from Colosimo's to the modern stage, but—

WAIT UNTL YOU SEE DALE WINTER!

She's a bit clumsy in her dancing, as yet, but she never smiled more sweetly over a table at Big Jim's than she smiles in "Irene" here. She's marvelous, wonderful—just sweet, that's all. Everybody in Washington is humming the Alive Blue Gown song. And everybody (myself excepted) is talking about the wonderfully sweet "girlish" thing who plays Irene.

Don't put all your eggs in one basket. WAIT UNTL YOU SEE DALE WINTER! Good luck,

CHARLES N. WHEELER.

The key to the above ecstasy is that Miss Winter is one of the widows of the recently murdered Mr. Colosimo, and that in gayer days she was a quiet chanteuse in his glad refectory on the south side. She won her present position as prima donna of "Irene" without disclosing her spectacular identity; and when she was assigned to the company now playing at the Garrick she asked that she be sent elsewhere.

After Dec. 12 it will not be possible to see Miss Jane Cowl in "Smilin' Through" on Sunday nights. Miss Cowl thereafter will explicably reserve the Sabbath evenings for herself, but she will play on Thursday afternoons to make up the deficit.

Chicago, Dec. 1st, 1920.

Mr. P. T. Harmon,
Care Dreamland Ballroom,
1701 W. Van Buren St., City.

Dear Mr. Harmon—

I attended the Victory Party of Judge Genzel and the Twenty-eighth Ward Republican Club at Wicker Park Hall and was profoundly impressed when I heard the DREAMLAND Orchestra.

Chas. Elgar, the leader, has surely combined the best talent in this country. I am surprised that such a wonderful combination is not in vaudeville, where they would undoubtedly head any bill on any circuit.

I speak here and now for the agency and assure you that I can book them continuously for more money than they could possibly earn in any ballroom.

Sincerely yours,
BILLY JACKSON.

MUSIC

Concerning French Opera; Specifically "Le Chemineau"

By Ruth Miller.

As we sat at our blonde and shiny new desk in the W. G. N.'s deserted local room in the little hours when last Thursday's warmish morning was borning cogitating on the various piquant possibilities for this Sabbath's music "lead" a plump envelope landed with a pleasant thump on our rheumatic typewriter and ended our ruminating by deciding the matter for us.

We were indebted for this concise epistle to the one man who can discuss sanely, tolerantly, practically, and with unassuming erudition on the various phases of the situation of the lyric drama in Chicago.

It contained a significant page from the Boston Transcript concerning the activities of the Chicago Opera company. Significant because indicative of the widespread interest in the operatic accomplishments of this energetic organization, and highly pertinent, if not illuminating, in certain remarks concerning the season's répertoire.

About "Jacquerie" this correspondent, slinging a caustic eastern pen, writes rather cynically: "Yes, Mr. Marinuzzi did well enough in a way, but when we think of the gorgeous operas waiting production or revival in our American opera houses, the "Sadkos," the "Legends of St. Christopher," the "Nights of May," the "Khovantchinas," the "Otellos," the masterpieces of Wagner and Mozart that we are denied, too many of these half way Italianate affairs annoy.

"The Chicago Opera company, which has been pioneer in modern French opera (considering it, as one must, the grown up child of Hammerstein's Manhattan seasons and of the former Boston Opera), has a precious heritage and must not fall upon evil days now that its two guiding geniuses have passed where it is to be hoped there are more than harps to please their ears. They deserve more.

"The schedule for the season lists but three novelties—'Jacquerie' aforesaid, the last and as yet unproduced opera of Leoncavallo, 'Edipo Re'—a piece in a single act—and Erlanger's 'Aphrodite,' already heard in Boston and New York but not in Chicago.

"Among the revivals are 'Lakme,' 'Salome,' 'Tales of Hoffman,' 'Lohengrin,' and 'The Valkyrie.' The standard répertoire mentions twenty-four Italian and eight French and no American operas. Thus the Italians have the better of it. Is the trend thus toward the worn out stuff that Hammerstein and Campanini gave their lives to thrust away? It is saddening to believe it."

As we read the short, trenchant phrase in the foregoing, "The Chicago Opera company, which has been the pioneer in French opera," the just heard pleasant and successful trivialities of that venerable harridan of the lyric drama, "Lucia," were replaced with the luminous but tentatively successful music of "Le Chemineau," that essence of lyric fineness which our company does with such ineluctable suavity of operatic finish.

But for all its exquisiteness and wonder of operatic workmanship "Le Chemineau" is listed in the black books at the Auditorium's box office. And why? Because to our ears, accustomed to the excessively melodramatic opera now in vogue, "Le Chemineau" sounds unnecessarily cold, objective, almost aloof.

Its theme, for all its scarlet possibilities [theater audiences will remember its dramatic prototype, "The Harvester," which played here several seasons back, with Otis Skinner], is handled with the delicacy, the reticence that is essentially Gallic. Its score has no throb for the audience that loves its emotion raw and bleeding. Its characters are neither suitable subjects for the specialist in pathology, nor should their names be recorded in a vice report. They are simple, lovable, wrong headed, foolish, normal human beings, like any one else. They arouse no morbid curiosity; therefore they do not interest.

We who have wallowed esthetically for so long in the Mittel Europa cult of musical mass—color smeared on the artistic canvas regardless of lines—have little patience or understanding of the subtlety, the style, the whimsicality, the sharp cut lines of the French and the new Anglo-Saxon music, with its satyric new Russian background of Stravinsky.

When one has been taught that the perfection of art lies in a Titian with its pinkish bodies, with their heavy thighs and stomachs, hot, fleshly eyes, and languorous voluptuousness, it is difficult to adjust one's viewpoint to a proper appreciation of a Whistler or a Corot. One is in a similar position with a music drama of Strauss or Wagner or their Latin imitators and "Le Chemineau."

To get the proper angle on a work like "Le Chemineau" one must recall that the Frenchman is essentially scholastic—a totally different word, it should be pointed out, from pedantic—in all they do. And this concentration on the intellectual aspect has made them to all outward seeming, until the war proved otherwise, emotionally superficial or at best light heartedly frivolous.

It is an interesting bit of musical history which upsets scandalously the tradition of licentiousness affixed to France that, back in the musical stone age, the Italian operatic invasion was fought in Paris on religious and moral as well as political grounds. And referring to this war of the Gallic righteous on the stage and music at that period, Romain Rolland explains the tardy growth of native opera in his "Some Musicians of Former Days" by saying: "And this was why, although the first Italian opera in Paris was a great success, many years elapsed before opera found a definite place in France."

One must not forget that partly responsible for this aristocratic reserve in their art is the enormous part the Greek and Roman classics play in French belles-lettres. They have been intimately known and frequently quoted by writers whose pride is the traditional patrician French style.

And in the huge literature devoted to the canons of musical art in the country of Moliere, this same scholastic devotion to delicate lines, exquisitely chiseled form, cultural sophistication, emotional depth that is not insane hysteria, and artistic reticence has been unswervingly emphasized by French composers from Gluck to Saint Säens and Debussy to the cynical and brilliant Ravel.

And it is inevitable that out of this stern musical tradition and cultural background would come a finely etched lyric masterpiece like "Le Chemineau," the bald story, if you will, of a tramp, a typical wandering Willy with his entire worldly goods tucked away in a voluminous bandana, who in his peregrinations meets and betrays and then deserts a peasant girl; returns twenty years later to find her and his son in misery and disgrace; makes reparation, and then slips away into the night.

It has all the dramatic potentialities of an operatic "Slice of Life," but we, who have had our rapine presented to us a la "Tosca" or the "Jewels" right out on the stage before everybody, cannot fully grasp the true significance of Toinet's indiscretion with the Vagabond. It lacks the realist, obvious touch. Never having been required to use our imaginations operatically, we are a trifle at loss.

If the time ever comes when eastern papers will not be publishing curt sentences to the effect that "The standard répertoire contains twenty-four Italian, eight French, and no American operas," with the broadening of our operatic viewpoint we shall relish "Le Chemineau" better.

And right here it should be stated that, regardless of the grinning and popular innuendo that the American music lover is a lascivious prude, musical fleshliness is not our instinct, but our training. And the proof of our artistic viewpoint and the clean fineness of our esthetic instinct may be found in the optimistic vitality, the imaginativeness, the rhythmic forcefulness, the whimsical humor, and the glorious color that does not muck or smear in the music of our newer American composers (we have three of this splendid native school in Chicago in Eric De Lamarter, John Alden Carpenter, and Leo Sowerby).

Remembering them and their wholesome, vigorous musical ministrations, and forgetting our gloating over the "Salomes," "Toscas," and "Jewels," we are able to read with fewer qualms Rolland's dictum—to return again to "Some Musicians of Former Days"—"The political life of a nation is only a superficial part of its being, and in order to learn its inner life—the source of its actions—one must penetrate to its very soul by way of its literature, its philosophy, and its art, where the ideas, the passions, and the dreams of its people are reflected."

Six Orchestras Not Enough to Satisfy New York's Robust Passion for Music

By James Whittaker.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Henry Ford wants all the Jews in America to go back to where they came from. Presumably the automobile trade could weather the exodus. The rade of music would die very suddenly. The Jew is half the patronage and much more than half the performance of music in New York. There is no racial census of concert attendance in New York available, but the most casual estimate of any audience in Carnegie hall, Aeolian hall, or the Hippodrome of a Sunday impresses the fact that the Gentile prefers his music properly diluted with legs and comedians.

Last week end six orchestras played in four concert halls. They all played to capacity houses, as theatrical slang has it. The capacity is the Jew's for absorbing music—all sorts of music, good music, bad music, constant music. A city population of musicians works madly in this town preparing for the Jew, and then fails by a dozen concerts a week to sate his appe-

Probably the Jew has a natural preference for the best music—though that theory may be discussed. But, there being not enough of the best to go around, he gives lavish patronage to the second best and the third best. Second best music is rather dull, and third best atrocious. But they both flourish luxuriantly in New York concert halls with the shekels of the American Israelite for loam.

I should say that it is nothing to be proud of that Chicago starves all but the finest music and musicians. It indicates a weak appetite. New York's is robust. So far this season a stifling quantity of music has been crammed down its capacious musical maw—60 per cent of it second rate stuff—and the maw is dripping for more.

The orchestras are none of them as fine as the Chicago Symphony. A visiting band from Philadelphia with Stokowsky conducting comes closest to the studied perfection of Stock's much rehearsed men. A minimum of rehearsals is the rule here.

Bodanzky, with two or three operas a week to conduct at the Metropolitan, gives two concerts with differing programs in Carnegie hall. Even the fleet subway with an entrance built into the north wall of the Metropolitan and another into the west wall of Carnegie can hardly solve the problem of his being constantly in two places at once. The Metropolitan performances do not suffer. Those of the National Symphony orchestra do.

There is much cinder and little coal to sift out of Bodanzky's concerts. However, a happy accident sometimes produces a little fire. At the first concert of his that I heard a playing of the Schubert Unfinished Symphony was a marvelous accident.

Mr. Bodanzky is a lethargic person. He uses his baton as a curb. One might classify conductors like jockeys. Colonne of Paris, for instance, always used his baton as a whip and thrashed his pack of players into wholly untraditional but exhilarating bursts of speed and racket at least once during every concert.

Felix Mottl, the Prussian from Munich, used his baton as a goad. He always considered the orchestra an elephantine instrument of whose inflexibility he was impatient.

Mottl could give an impression of titanic force when, after he had conducted for many minutes with an almost imperceptible rhythmic quiver of his stick, he would approach some climax in the work he was conducting. Players in his orchestra say that his eyes were ferocious and hypnotic at such moments. From the audience side one saw his right arm shoot out toward the unlucky trombone or horn from which he wanted more than it was giving, and stab the air as if he would gladly do some pig sticking if he had the reach.

Gentle Bodanzky, in the performance of the Schubert Symphony, checked his players as if he had to deal with a too excitable thoroughbred. But his men are obviously unexcitable hacks, and Bodanzky's restraining influence caused some strange slownesses. Their strangeness was accidentally beautiful. The innocent Schubert music, melodious without mystery and mournful without majesty, became both mysterious and majestic in Bodanzky's lengthened phrases.

Walter Damrosch, with his nervous band of New York Symphonists, provided the quick, sharp thrill in last week's concert with a playing of John Alden Carpenter's concertino for piano and orchestra. Percy Grainger played the solo part. Carpenter was in the audience. Damrosch, who uses his baton for virtuosic whipsnapping effects and is more a part of the performance than its director, put his own excitement into the leading of the exciting opusculo.

The concertino was heard for the first time in New York. It seems to be a firecracker of a composition, lit by Mr. Carpenter with entertaining and not malicious intent. It crackles like witty conversation, which Carpenter, in his program notes, said it was his intention to portray. To hang on to his little joke during the many months that it must have taken him to elaborate it into the cut jewel of musical sound the concertino was an astonishing feat.

A thing Chicago is mercifully spared is the Sunday popular concert by the opera company. The Metropolitan squeezes a half dozen solos out of unwilling prima donnas and some juiceless blasts out of its tired orchestra for the delectation of a great number of persons who do not go to opera for one reason or another, but do go to the Sunday nights for no reason at all. Perhaps they delight in parking their persons in seats hardly cooled from an Astor or a Whitney. Perhaps an opportunity to hear Destinn or Scotti sing is a bargain even at their second best.

But for the presence of Harold Bauer on last Sunday's program, this report would not be incomplete without any mention of the opera concerts. He came fresh and perfected for his playing of the Saint-Saëns C minor concerto. When Bauer is in condition he is as near the master as any who make piano playing a public habit now. Surely he is middleweight champion. There was no power, but everything of fineness and pleasant skill to his playing of the concerto. He had a short bout with the tired orchestra at the beginning of the composition. The orchestra threw up the sponge immediately and panted heavily and interferingly in Bauer's wake to the last double bar.

Paderewski once played this same concerto magnificently. That was when Paris had been flooded for a month in 1911 and the prefects were all tearing their hair for fear the Venus de Milo would get wet in the basement of the Louvre, and the poor of the Auteun quarter were tearing their bed clothes into strips of rope by which to escape from upper windows.

A benefit performance for the latter was organized, and Paderewski telegraphed from Switzerland that he would come. Twelve hours before the concert his train stopped at the edge of the flood twenty miles outside of the Paris fortifications. Six hours later Paderewski had managed to hire a flat bottomed skiff. Two hours before the concert he and his boatman were struggling with mud and torrent in the outskirts. And a half hour before the Conservatoire orchestra struck the first note of the overture the great Pole set foot on Paris pavement and started to walk. There were no cabs. He arrived exhausted, struck by the tragedy of the town he loved and exalted for a fine effort.

The inferior inspiration of Saint-Saëns was transmuted into a miracle at that playing. Events and persons and the gods must conspire to produce such playing. They do seldom. I should have liked to hear Paderewski play Chopin while the Russians were in the suburbs of Warsaw. Or I should have liked to hear the band of the Alpine Chasseurs play the "Sambre et Meuse" as they marched into Sedan regained. Having heard one or two such things and wanting more, one is unsatisfied by the regular bread winning of Bauers, Gabrilowitsches, and Destinns. That is bad for the morale.

Indubitably the musical Jew, with his sturdy craving for music as she is mostly manipulated and frequently murdered, has the best fun as well as the best seats.

MISS ELEANOR WEEKS JACKSON

MISS ANITA DUNN — TRIBUNE PHOTO

Three of the prettiest and most attractive debutantes are Miss Theresa Higginson, Miss Eleanor Weeks Jackson, and Miss Anita Dunn. Miss Higginson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson Jr. of 1322 Astor street, was introduced yesterday at a tea, followed by a supper-dance at the Casino. Miss Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Jackson of 174 East Pearson street, will not make a formal debut this year because her mother's family is in mourning, but she is participating in all the debutante activities and is one of the most popular girls in the younger set. She gave a luncheon Friday for Miss Isabel Watkins, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Watkins of 199 Lake Shore drive. Miss Dunn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morrill Dunn of 102 Bellevue place, was presented formally to society at a tea on Saturday, Nov. 20.

Time and Leisure Mean Naught in Quest for Culture

By Mme. X.

It almost makes the busy mortal ache to think of those other women, fellow human beings, with much the same outlook on life, who have time to attend the Kinsolving musicals, the Walton Pyre poetry mornings, the Soares lectures, the afternoons of music, the Pierre De Lanoux causeries, the Katherine Merrill readings, the class in politics, the meetings of the Fortnightly, the Friday club, the Scribblers, and the dozen other intellectual, artistic, and instructive pursuits offered nowadays to the woman of means and leisure.

W. L. George was right; we are the most acquisitive people in the world. Money is not our only, nor even our chief, goal. Is there "culture" lying around loose, we must have it no matter what the cost to our time and leisure.

Let us hope, however, that we shall escape the dread title "highbrow." "A highbrow," says a sapient and observant mortal, "is one who is solemn without being serious." Still more searching is the analysis of another, one of Winnetka's wise men, though now a resident of our lower browed burg: "A highbrow is one who is more interested in his intellectual operations than in his visceral sensations."

Somewhat apropos are the folk described in "Potterism," whose doings and thinkings have been occupying the scribe's midnight hours when reading is undisturbed by telephone or doorbell. Whoever Rose Macauley may be, she has us and our friends all "down fine." As her men and women pass before the reader there's many a look and gesture which makes the said reader feel as if that page were a mirror.

To confess that one is or could be a Potterite is the depth of candor. The term describes one's neighbors so much better. The book is caustic, modern, and depressing, but wholesome, O, very wholesome.

At Least 1,600 in Pageant.

This is, however, no time for reading or discussing books. Immediately ahead of us all is the "Pageant of the East," in which our fairest and noblest are inextricably involved—at least, 1,600 of them are. Mrs. John H. Winterbotham's Omar group alone takes in over eighty splendid specimens of Illinois Persians, princes, princesses, water carrier, dancers, jugglers, houris, poets, philosophers, archers, everything Persian, in short, except cats, which is a sad omission, as one of the most characteristic and choice of Persian products is the cat that bears that name.

Mrs. Joseph Coleman will be one of the famous Persian sultanas. John McCutcheon will be a splendid sultan, one of the gorgeous kind depicted in old Persian manuscripts. John Wentworth, as a grand vizier, promises much cheer to the eye in search of the superb.

Omar Khayyam himself, in the able hands of Richard Henry Little, will find his fame augmented. Mrs. John Carpenter will be Omar's "Thou," and make the loaf of bread, the jug of wine, and the wilderness seem secondary as features in Omar's philosophy. As a Nubian prince (those Nubians were always visiting the Persians), "Billy" Gamble will do much to allay the race feeling. One of the most striking and entirely characteristic of the Omar group will be Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis in the guise of an astrologer.

No Persian of good standing ever moved without his astrologer, and in all ancient Persia there never was such a gifted delver into the future as Mrs. Lewis. To leave the ball a moment and record an instance of Mrs. Lewis' gift: A year or so before the Republican convention of last June, at a Washington entertainment where she was reading palms, Mrs. Lewis had occasion to study the palm of Warren G. Harding.

"You've a remarkable future, Mr. Senator," she said. "You are going to great heights; in fact, I should say that you will fill the greatest office in the United States." What Persian seer was ever more accurate?

Omar and His Satellites.

To return to Omar and his satellites: At the head of the princes will be Robert Allerton in dazzling array. John Carpenter will, of course, be the musician in chief. Master juggler will be Roy McWilliams (just returned from France). Chief of the revellers will be Joseph Ryerson. The townspeople will be led by Mrs. Edward H. Bennett. The harem ladies will be marshaled by Mrs. Edward Harris Brewer. Charles Dewey will lead the merchants. Mrs. Laird Bell will be water carrier in chief of Omar (who should also have some other beverage, if his sentiments as expressed in the Rubaiyat can be believed).

John H. Winterbotham, with his bow and arrow, will guard Omar, while Mrs. Arthur Ryerson will carry his treasure (probably the royalties from his famous work).

Court monkeys, an indispensable adjunct to a Persian assembly, will be impersonated by W. E. D. Stokes and John B. Ryerson. Favorites of the sultan, a classification evidently quite apart from the harem, will be Mmes. Howard Linn, Edmonds, Charles Belmont Davis, and Miss Mabel Linn.

A troupe of Persian dancers will be preceded by the dancer in chief, Miss Mary Baker, who will be brought in on a litter borne on the shoulders of sturdy Nubians (they won't need to be so sturdy, either). Miss Baker is noted as a dancer for being unusually light of foot and graceful, and will, with her attendant coryphees, present one of the features of the group, an oriental dance.

Revolt Against Egypt.

So peculiarly eastern is Persia that it takes two groups to do that nation justice. Mrs. William Nitze and Mrs. Freund of the University of Chicago are organizing this second battalion. They were, however, it must be confessed, driven to Persia, really, by the revolt of the men of their group against the habiliments of the early Egyptians, to which they were first dedicated.

In spite of the fact that the Egyptology department of the university, headed by Prof. Breasted, is the finest of its kind in the world of research and education, these learned scholars refused to represent the warriors, seers, and potentates of ancient Egypt. A careful study of the bas reliefs on the obelisks and temples that border the Nile somewhat explains this reluctance.

The apex of this group of Persians will be the human chess men, which will be ready for any enterprising chess player. As the university men and women are all as clever as clever can be, this group will be one of the most interesting of the parade.

Two of the most brilliant and successful of the Batik ball sectors, the Javanese and jewel divisions, will be in their entirety incorporated in the pageant.

Opera and Stage Stars Enlist.

One of the most picturesque of the groups will be that of the "Magic Lute," as portrayed by the opera artists, headed by M. and Mme. Marinuzzi, aided by Mme. Rosa Raisa, Miss Van Gordon, and Rimini. The dramatic stars in town will also take an active part in the pageant. Ethel Barrymore as Salome, Jane Cowl as Scheherazade, Elaine Innis as Herodiade, together with Georgie Sewall and Donald Brian, will all be in the show.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Rodman Carter and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Chapin will head the Arabian Nights cortége. The Hindus will be represented by a group in charge of Mrs. Fifield, who will have in her train the well known dancer, Oukrainsky.

A special feature of the ball will be the supper to be served, if desired, in the boxes, while before the ball opens a cabaret dinner in the basement of the Coliseum can be ordered through Mrs. Claude Hopkins, Superior 7994.

Doesn't it sound as if the ball was destined to set the high water mark in Chicago's socio-philanthropic annals?

Backing Maternity Bill.

Apropos of the object of the ball, the statistics on our national childbirth rate are rather startling. The monthly death rate of children under one year and mothers in childbirth is over 20,000. The annual rate is 268,000. Most of these are preventable deaths. We stand fourteenth among civilized nations in the matter of scientifically handled births.

These facts were brought to the writer's notice by meeting last week Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, who spent a few days in Chicago as the guest of Mrs. James W. Morrisson. Mrs. Pinchot is one of the remarkable women of the day. In appearance she is striking, being tall, slender, with very regular features and the most wonderful Titian red hair I ever saw. It's so fervid a red as to suggest that it would glow and be visible even in the dark.

Her mind is as well endowed as her body, for she is one of those eager, modern women who feels the responsibility for the welfare of her kind, especially for the women and children, to the extent of surrendering to it much pleasant leisure and diversion. She is secretary to the Women's Trade Union league and to the League of Women Voters.

The latter organization is concentrating its efforts on putting through the short term of the next congress a maternity bill that shall lift us from our ignominious place among civilized nations to the front rank. The bill is backed by all the national women's organizations. It aims to provide federal aid to the states, so that child welfare stations can be established wherever needed and trained nurses be distributed throughout the country districts, where at present such a high mortality exists. This bill must be put through this session, as all the state legislatures convene next year for their biennial sessions, and to defer would mean a most unfortunate delay.

It is this that brought Mrs. Pinchot west, where, last week, at Lafayette, Ind., there was an important meeting of the National League of Women Voters.

We earnestly commend to the real music lover next Thursday evening's performance at the opera of "Le Chemineau." It is the choicest of French operas presented by Gall, Pascova, Dufranne, Baklanoff et al. with a perfection not equaled anywhere else in the world today. By the way, that unimpeachable authority on everything Russian, Samuel Harper, says that Baklanoff is pronounced with the accent strongly on the second syllable.

Galli-Curci Returns.

Last Wednesday evening was the greatest of the opera evenings this year. It was Mme. Galli-Curci's debut, and a mighty ovation greeted her. Perhaps the most conspicuous box party was Mrs. Arthur Ryerson's, her guests being Mrs. Marshall Field, Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Wood, Capt. Wurtsbaugh, and Col. McCoy.

The uniforms gave a gay look to the group, while the presence of Mrs. Field never fails to mean much to her many friends here. She will always be, to those who were part of the gay world when she lived here, the genius of perfect and sumptuous hospitality. Some have a genius for painting, others for music, still others for writing. Mrs. Field is one of the few, the very few, who have a genius for entertaining.

She is as famous in Washington, where she now makes her home, as she used to be here. Her beautiful house on Sixteenth street is noted for its wonderful dinners, with the silver and gold plate, the rare china and exquisite service. Most of the distinguished people who come to Washington are entertained there, and it is a favorite rendezvous for the great world of the capital. Statesmen, diplomats, soldiers, travelers, scientists all meet there.

At the Art institute will be repeated this year "The Drama of the Nativity," a play by Cloyd Head, which was given there last year. The music is by Eric Delamarter, and there will be four performances—Friday evening, Dec. 17; Saturday afternoon, Dec. 18, and Sunday and Monday nights, Dec. 19 and 20.

The costuming and scenery are in the hands of Herman Rosse, while Clarence Hough is in charge of the whole affair. It will be given in Fullerton hall, and will be an interesting and picturesque performance, with the traditions of the Art institute to back it. The Antiquarians, the Arts club, and the Friday club are all interested in making it a success.

Sunday in River Forest.

There are many large and hospitable houses in Chicago, but there is none that has quite that atmosphere of friendly, genial welcome which is dispensed at the old Waller mansion on the banks of the Desplaines river in River Forest. Last Sunday Miss Mary Waller (youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Waller) and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Winterbotham united and gave a luncheon there to seventy-five of their friends.

Although it is a good ten miles out there, they all came. The capacious grounds were full of motors. The November sun shone softly over the leafless trees and patiently withered gardens. The river, holding the grounds in a semi-embrace, glimmered in the middle distance. The day was a perfect one picked from six weeks of smoky gloom.

The house itself is an old fashioned, roomy dwelling, built before we became so self-conscious in our architecture. One of its most attractive features is a generously proportioned bowling alley connected with the house by a long and winding, glassed in corridor. This was the gathering place of the guests after luncheon. They clustered about the wide and deep fireplace where huge logs threw out their warmth and cheer. The rumble of the ninepins punctuated the conversation without in the least interfering with it.

To be nearer her many activities, for she is prominent in many social enterprises, Miss Waller has taken a small apartment in town on East Erie street for the winter.

Our Dense Atmosphere.

The powers that be have announced, according to the public press, that the smoke nuisance is this year abated one-quarter. Looking back on the last six weeks, all we can say is, Then do, for pity's sake, give us back that lost fumiferous portion, for the atmosphere has never been so dense and unbreathable as this autumn! We Chicagoans must be entirely lined with a somber gray coating of unconsumed carbon.

When will the scientist, now experimenting at the Illinois university, provide us with that miracle working device for extracting all the heat, and power from our soft Illinois coal and that without smoke? It used to be said, when anthracite was plentiful and cheap, that Illinois coal was a drug on the market and a mark on the drugget. It is still the latter, though no longer the former.

League for Deaf Planning Annual Christmas Party

It has been estimated that there are more than 15,000 deaf persons in Chicago, many of them in need of help to equip them for earning a living. It is for the purpose of making the lot of these persons happier and more hopeful that the Chicago League for the Hard of Hearing is conducted.

Five years ago the league was established, and since that time its members have been energetic in assisting the deaf in procuring employment. Employers have been urged to consider the applications of persons thus handicapped; and opportunities are found by the league for those who are seeking work.

Instruction in lip reading is the ablest medium in aiding the deaf to receive the speaker's words. Consequently classes in lip reading are held every week for those who live far away from public schools, where it is taught at night classes, or for those who cannot afford private instruction. Scholarships in lip reading are given and a course of lectures was arranged recently whereby story tellers actually make their audiences "hear" by careful formations of their words.

Aside from the business activities of the league, there are many recreational plans which are carried out by the social committee. A monthly entertainment of a specialized order is given, and there are teas every Saturday afternoon; also a card club, a men's club, a sewing circle, and a young people's club help form the social life of the handicapped persons. Other entertainments are arranged from time to time, aside from these stated features.

A special committee arranges delightful outings to the forest preserve, the sand dunes of Indiana, the parks and bird houses, and talks are given to those who evince more than a casual interest in the great outdoors. Talks also are given on trees, flowers, and birds.

It has been the annual custom of the league to give a "pound party" at the Christmas season, when members and their friends have donated food and clothing which later was distributed among the needy. This year the plan has been changed somewhat, and gifts of money will be placed upon the tree, later to be used for purchasing the gifts which will bring the most use and happiness to the recipients. The party will be held on the evening of Dec. 18 and will include a program to be followed by a social hour.

There will be a meeting of the executive board tomorrow at 2 o'clock in the league headquarters, 90 Auditorium building, to perfect plans for the party. Mrs. A. L. Drum will be chairman of arrangements, assisted by Miss Rose L. Dickinson, president of the league.

The advisory board includes Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, Mrs. Ernest A. Hamill, Mrs. Frederick L. Wells, Miss Harriet E. Vittum, Theodore Dickinson, Norman D. Fraser, and Peter A. Mortenson.

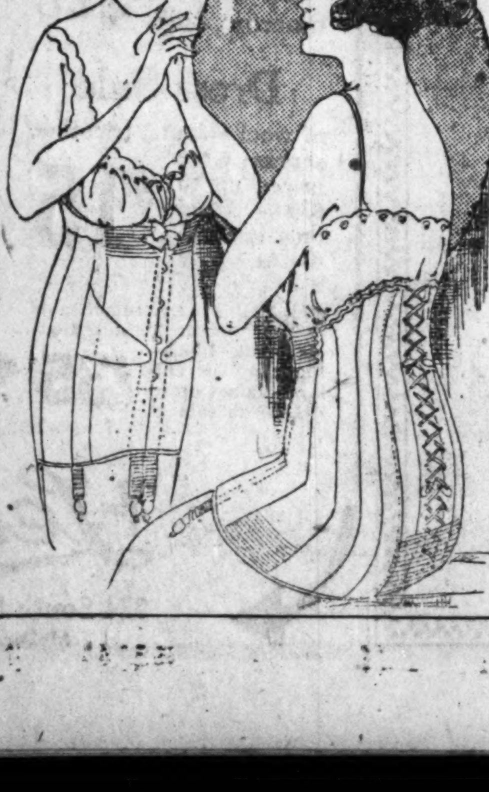
How Many Women Realize the Corset's Importance to Their Health as Well as to the Figure's Fashion Lines?
Third Floor—Center



Every woman who has had the wisdom to spend half an hour with one of our corsetieres, having her explain what scientific, hygienic fitting methods mean to her, will realize the unusual importance of her corset in regard to her health. And in choosing corsets for health's sake you choose them for fashion's sake at the same time if they be

Nemo Corsets
For Nemo corsets are made along the lines of both health and fashion combined. Their many unusual improvements, their many patented features, all designed along scientific lines, are scarcely noticeable; have our corsetieres fit you to a pair and demonstrate just how the Nemo model, designed especially for your type of figure can prevent and in many cases cure so many of woman's ailments. For this fitting service no charge is made. Our corsetieres are conceded to be the best in Chicago, and are recommended by the foremost physicians and modistes. Why not take advantage of this splendid service? Remember, we always have Nemo corsets in every size and style, so that we can properly corset every figure.

Nemo self reducing corset, style 327, topless in front, with wide band of elastic across top that gives perfect freedom; slightly higher in back for those who like a little support from their corset above the waistline. The long skirt will take good care of a plump figure; sizes to 36; at.................. 5.50

Nemo corset, style 514, is the same as the famous 511 and 512, only this model is topless in front, with an elastic section that is called the diaphragm reducer; always perfectly comfortable and will not "dig in" at the pit of the stomach as most topless corsets do; the skirt takes wonderful care of large, bulging thighs. A corset that should make any figure smaller and straighter. Sizes to 36, at.................. 7.00

FUTURE EVENTS

Christmas parties this year that will add to the holiday cheer will be given at the Christmas tree festival and toyland circus at the Coliseum Dec. 13-23 for the benefit of the Red, White, and Blue club at 1001 Currier street. Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman, general chairman, both of the club and the festival, will give a number of these special parties, at which her guests will be the poor children who go to see Santa Claus and the tree and receive a present. Her entertainment will consist of rides on the ponies, the merry-go-round, Ferris wheel and visits to the various attractions of the side show, supplemented with all the crackerjack, ice cream, sandwiches, candy, coffee, doughnuts, and redhots that her guests can consume. Other members of the board, including Mrs. Frank G. Letts and Mrs. Kay Wood, will give similar parties, and all the women interested will persuade their friends who go to the Coliseum spectacle to gather groups of the poor children, who are expected by the thousands, and give them parties that will omit nothing that goes to make the big festival a Christmas delight. Blocks of tickets are being purchased by firms and individuals and distributed among the children of the congested districts, and are being sent to the schools for distribution. The proceeds of the festival will be used for the maintenance of the Red, White, and Blue club, where an average of 350 children a day not only are made welcome, but are being taught the principles of Americanization and its practical application. It is in charge of Mrs. Sophie Edelstadt and her daughter, Vera.

Twelve groups, not including the gypsy caravan, a pageant in itself, will portray ancient fairy tales and legends at the Pageant of the East on Friday at the Coliseum. The first group, Isis and Osiris, with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Deutsch in the characters of the Egyptian deities, will present the festival of the rising of the Nile, B. C. 4000. This girl had never worked before—

Miss Randolph had been graduated from high school with a good record. Circumstances at home made it necessary that she go to work.

But she didn't know what to do.

She didn't know a thing about business and she couldn't afford to spend six months or a year studying shorthand.

She worried about it for some time—trying in vain to reach a decision. Then, one Sunday, she saw one of the advertisements on The Illinois School of Filing and decided to send for the 54-page free book—"Filing as a profession for women."

That book was a revelation to Miss Randolph. She had never even imagined that filing was such an important branch of business—or that it could be studied.

So she took the course and studied the principles that underlie all filing systems—learning through actual practice. Today this little girl who had never worked before, is already getting $17.50 a week, plus a BONUS—and she has just started.

Who knows! Unless Miss Randolph had read that book and taken the course in filing she might be just one of a hundred girls in an office! Who knows but that it will open up a similar future for you, too!

Drop in tomorrow to see Miss Gladys C. Bridges, the principal of the Illinois School of Filing. She will be glad to tell you about the course. Write today for the free book.

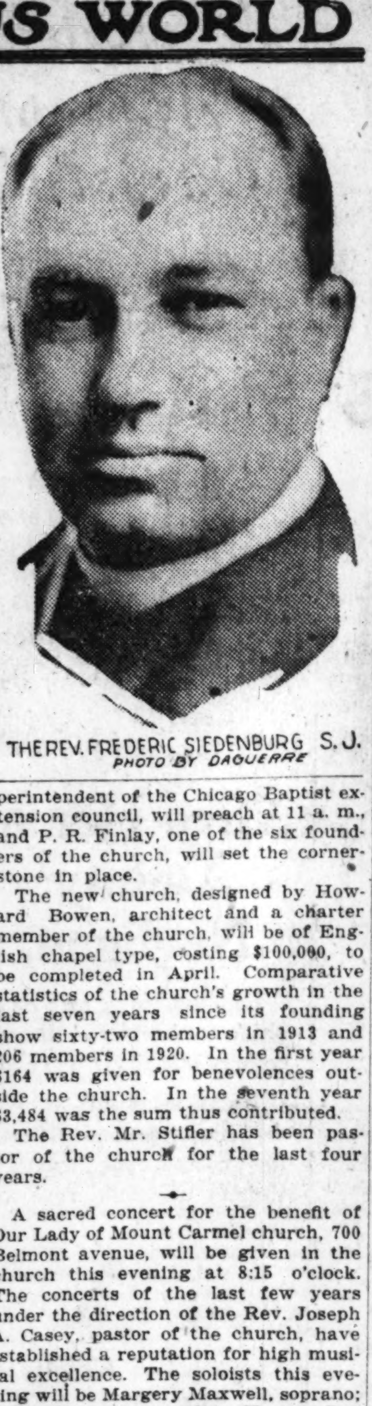
Loyola School of Sociology Showing Brisk Development

By the Rev. Gardner MacWhorter.



THE REV. FREDERIC SIEDENBURG S.J.

WHEN the Rev. Frederic Siedenburg started giving a course of lectures on Christian sociology in September, 1912, to a class of about thirty school teachers, it is doubtful whether he even dreamed that within eight years his class, under one instructor, would grow to 1,689 registered students, with a faculty of forty-eight teachers, and become a separate department—the School of Sociology—of the great Loyola university, with four teaching centers, on the south, west, and north sides of the city.

The school, fostered by the Jesuit society, is of nonsectarian character. Both Protestant and Catholic laymen and laywomen are on its faculty and student roster, its purpose being, as stated in the catalogue, to give "a thorough course in the basic principles of sociology and fundamental and practical courses in civics and social economy, as a preparation for social and charity work of all kinds."

The four teaching centers, in addition to the central offices of the school on the sixth floor of the Ashland block, Clark and Randolph streets, are St. Mary's High school, 1031 Cypress street; St. Xavier's college, Forty-ninth street and Cottage Grove avenue; Visitation academy, on the south side, and Loyola university, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue.

Father Siedenburg, now dean of the School of Sociology, was born in Cincinnati, O., in 1872, the son of a Lutheran father and a Roman Catholic mother, and received his early education in the public schools of that city, graduating from St. Xavier's college with the degree of bachelor of arts in 1893. He entered the novitiate of the Society of Jesus at Florissant, Mo., in August of that year, studied science and philosophy at St. Louis university, taught physics and higher mathematics at St. Ignatius' college, Chicago, for three years and for one year at St. Louis university, where he completed his theological studies with the degree of master of arts, and was ordained to the priesthood in 1907.

Graduate study in the universities of Innsbrück and Vienna, where he specialized in social and economic questions, fitted him for the work that lay before him in Chicago, and shortly after his return the lecture course in Loyola university was inaugurated which resulted in the establishment of the School of Sociology. Father Siedenburg is a frequent contributor to sociological journals, including the American Journal of Sociology and the Catholic Charities Review, and he has addressed the National Conference of Social Workers and is secretary of the National Catholic Welfare council. Father Siedenburg has the distinction of being the only Roman Catholic priest who is a member of the Hamilton club.

Next Sunday noon following the morning service in the Wilmette Baptist church, the Rev. Francis C. Stifler, pastor, the corner stone will be laid for the new church at Forest and Wilmette avenues. Dr. Benjamin Otto, superintendent of the Chicago Baptist extension council, will preach at 11 a. m., and P. R. Finlay, one of the six founders of the church, will set the corner-stone in place.

The new church, designed by Howard Bowen, architect and a charter member of the church, will be of English chapel type, costing $100,000, to be completed in April. Comparative statistics of the church's growth in the last seven years since its founding show sixty-two members in 1913 and 206 members in 1920. In the first year $164 was given for benevolences outside the church. In the seventh year $3,484 was the sum thus contributed.

The Rev. Mr. Stifler has been pastor of the church for the last four years.

A sacred concert for the benefit of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, 700 Belmont avenue, will be given in the church this evening at 8:15 o'clock. The concerts of the last few years under the direction of the Rev. Joseph A. Casey, pastor of the church, have established a reputation for high musical excellence. The soloists this evening will be Margery Maxwell, soprano; Mina Hager, contralto; Hector Dufranne, baritone; Arthur Kraft, tenor, with E. Stanley Seder, organist, and Samuel Leviton and his double string quintet. The chorus of fifty voices is under the direction of Robert McGuirk.

Batty, priest in charge of St. Lawrence's, Libertyville; the Rev. Robert B. Kimber, associate rector, St. Chrysostom's; the Rev. Herbert Buckingham, assistant minister, Christ church; the Rev. Earl C. Schmeisser, assistant minister, St. Peter's.

Sinai Social center activities this week include a lecture tomorrow evening by Dr. Will J. Durant, educational director of the Labor temple, New York, on "An Amendment to Democracy," at the center, 4622 Grand boulevard. On Thursday evening Lessing's "Nathan, the Wise," will be the subject of discussion by Prof. George L. Scherger before the members of the literary study circle and their friends.

"Adventures in Patriotism" will be the subject of the Rev. Frederick R. Griffin, pastor of the Frst Unitarian church, Philadelphia, and chairman of the general Unitarian conference, at the meeting this evening in Kimball hall, Jackson boulevard and Wabash avenue, under the auspices of the Unitarian Laymen's league, beginning at 7:45 o'clock. This is the fifth meeting of a series of seven consecutive meetings having as their keynote, "Religion and Christianship."

* * *

The Rev. Andrew J. Graham, C. S. B., member of the board of lectureship of the mother church, Boston, will deliver a lecture on Christian Science in the Fifth church, 4840 Dorchester avenue, this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Tomorrow evening Dr. Walton Hubbard, C. S. B., of Los Angeles, will lecture in the Third church, Washington boulevard and Leavitt street.

"Rollo's Wild t" to List of mmer Successes

By Burns Mantle.

EW YORK. — [Special Correspondence.]—The best of the three light comedies that were produced last week is a play "Rollo's Wild Oat," with Roland playing the name part. Clare r, who already has "A Suc l Calamity," "Good Gracious, bel," and "Be Calm, Camilla," credit and only one failure, "The g Angel," checked against her, the story of this particular Rollo r ago, and had no difficulty selling the Selwyns.

play was produced out of town d not fare particularly well; and duction in New York was de. Finally the Selwyns, losing con in it, gave it up, and Miss r decided to finance its local g herself. Now she is in the position of those playwrights have bravely backed their own ent and can point with pride to result, for "Rollo" threatens to one of the real comedy sucs of the season.

of the play is a young man ed of a modest inheritance and ming desire to play "Hamlet." has ideas about Hamlet. Nothing tionary, except that he intends interpretation shall be modern. He no reason why Hamlet should not played without a wig or why he ld shave his mustache merely be most of the Hamlet prints are of shaven young men.

he has an idea that a greater acy should be established between players and the audience, as was when the tragedy was performed Shakespeare's day. Let there be s leading from the auditorium to stage, so that at any time those in t wish to take part in the action, become a part of the crowd attending the theatricals at Elsinore, or to ow the melancholy youth through experiences with the ghost, they y step upon the stage and declare emselves.

He engages a company of old time akespearean actors, rents a theater, d proceeds with his production. His helia, however, is a sensible young man who cannot, try as she will, ke the experiment seriously. She ows that she cannot act, and she has r doubts about Rollo. Therefore, she of a mind to accept the first legitite excuse that offers to lessen the nces of failure by breaking up the w. The night of the premier word received at the theater that Rollo's ndfather is seriously ill. This is helia's chance. With the fateful mese clasped tightly in her hand, she lks into Hamlet's first scene and inms Rollo that he cannot decently on with the play. His grandfather ill and needs him.

Rollo attempts to reason with Ophe. Has she "gone mad before her "? Does she realize that she has staken her cue and that she is not a rt of that particular scene? Ophelia, wever, refuses to be swerved from purpose and the curtain is lowered. transpires later that when the manr of the enterprise stepped before curtain and asked if there was a mlet in the house, the audience pracally arose as one man and started the stage. From among the willunderstudies Rollo's valet, who had an actor in his youth, is entrusted th the part, and the play becomes e laughing success" of the year.

Miss Kummer has a rare gift of ing the real with the unreal in her edy plots. As fantastic as this y may sound, it frequently has the ding value of convincing drama, and n it dips frankly into farce it is the ind of farce that amuses without ofding the intelligence of its audience. also has the gift of writing brightdialogue than a majority of her temporaries, and as a result her e play trips along to an accompaniment of hearty laughter, and at the of the evening the audience is so pleased with its entertainment t it is eager to remain in its seats d give evidence of its approval.

As for Rollo—he discovers that grandfather was not really ill, but that he had sent that message to the theater in the hope of preventing his grandson from making a fool of himself. The experience is enough to discourage any young actor, and Rollo agrees not to repeat it. He will marry his Ophelia, if she will have him, which she will, and go into his grandfather's business of manufacturing airbrakes.

Mr. Young's performance is in his best comedy vein, and the little girl who played Ophelia, Lotus Robb, had the satisfaction next day of reading in the reviews that she was the most charming of the ingenues who recently had appeared hereabouts.

Neither of the other comedies amounts to much. They are both heavily and foolishly sentimental. "When We Are Young" is an attempt by Kate L. McLaurin to catch the spirit of Rachel Crothers' "39 East," but being entirely artificial it never comes within shouting distance of any of the other sentimental comedies that have preceded it. The story in this instance is again of the idle young waster, who, going daily to the dogs, meets the poor but pure young shop girl in a New York boarding house and is saved by her from his idle ways.

When he comes home late one night, full of moonshine and determined that being a failure he had better kill himself, she stays his hand and fires him with an ambition to prove that he is not a quitter. She dares him to go to work, double dares him to go out on the street and shovel snow and prove that he is a man. Which he agrees to do. A few weeks later he is completely regenerated. Snow shoveling has given him an appetite and a zest for life. If the shop girl will marry him he will agree to go on being a man. Of course she agrees, and to make the happy ending complete a rich aunt dies and leaves the young man a greater fortune than he had wasted before.

"When We Are Young" was originally called "The Crucible" and was intended to assist in elevating Henry Hull to stardom. He is engagingly youthful and a good actor, but stars are seldom created overnight, and he probably will go back to the serving of his apprenticeship with more patience than before.

"Daddy Dumplins" is the kind of play you might reasonably expect it to be from the title. A soft hearted bachelor, acquiring a fortune, decides to adopt not only the orphaned daughter of a former sweetheart, but six other youngsters as well, adding a new one to his family every two years. He is a happy bachelor, and they are a contented group of children, until the meanest man in the world takes "Daddy's" fortune away from him and he is forced to send his charges back to the children's society from which he had taken them.

He manages to save enough from his small salary as a bookkeeper to provide a Christmas eve celebration in his tenement room, however, and this occasion is made memorable by the news that the meanest man has repented and died and that the fortune again reverts to "Daddy." The whole affair is so hopelessly of the theater and bears so little relation to any series of adventures that could plausibly happen that there is little hope for it, unless it can create a public of its own. It is too sweetly sentimental for the regulars.

Worthy of a Medal

By Guy F. Lee.

He's lacking in culture and grace,
He makes a sad show as a dancer;
He's blessed with a negative face,
His lips cannot form a bright answer.
To look at him one might well sigh,
And vote his a life full of sorrows;
And yet he's a popular guy:
He takes back the books that he borrows.

He hasn't got very much sense,
He hasn't got very much money;
But every one thinks he's immense,
And most of the girls call him honey.
He's found all his yesterdays great,
And looks for the same on the morrows;
And it rests on this heavenly trait:
He takes back the books that he borrows.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT

To Chicago Theater Patrons:

IT gives me great pleasure to announce that Monday night, Dec. 13th, the Woods Theater will see the beginning of an engagement of the most beautiful and unusual entertainment ever presented in Chicago.

This will be an attraction that will amaze, delight and thrill theatergoers. It is not Grand Opera; it is not Drama; it is not Tragedy; it is not Comedy; it is not Pantomime, nor an exploitation of Choreographic Art; it is not Poetry nor is it Painting!

And yet, you will find it is compact of all these arts—a new and an Eighth Art—combining the beauties of all the other Arts, welded together into one perfect, harmonious whole, by the Master-Magician of the Age!

Respectfully,

A. H. WOODS

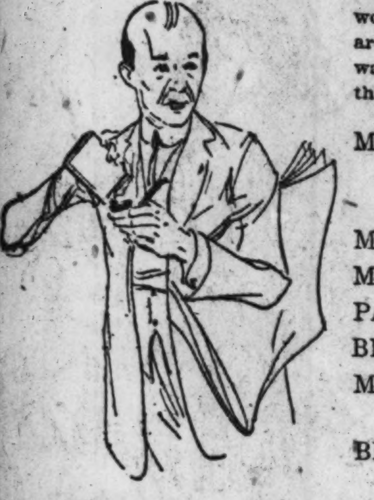
THE POTTERS

They Discuss Christmas Presents

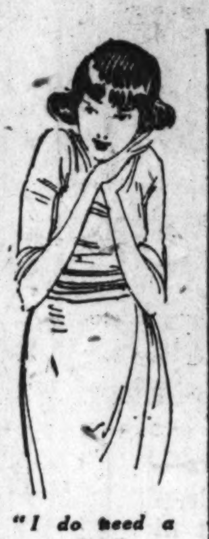
by J. P. McEvoy

SCENE: Living room in the Potter apartment. The cheerful gas logs would be lit except that the chimney doesn't draw. (It never did.) Gathered around the living room table the Potters are discussing the presents they want. Peter E. Potter (better known as Pa) is wondering how much all this is going to set him back. The Spirit of Christmas is everywhere.

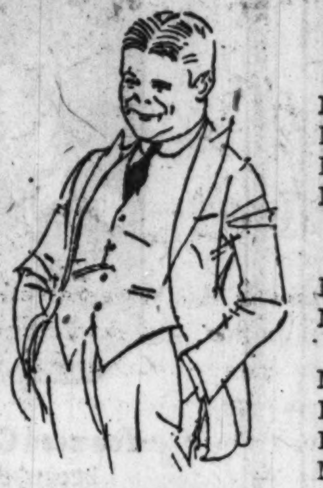


"I don't want a doggone thing."

MA: Now, Pa, don't get me a thing this year; I've everything I need.
My coat will do another year.
MAMIE: Why, Ma; it's gone to seed.
MA: I know it has, but we must save——
PA: Your mother's right, my dear!
BILL: If Ma don't want a coat, Mamie—why do you interfere?
MAMIE: I was talking to Pa, and not to you—you're always buttin' in.
BILL: (Singing) Oh, the female of the species is more deadly with the chin.
MA: Now, William, stop your quarreling.
BILL: Aw, Mamie makes me sick.
MAMIE: Rose Morris says you think you're smart, but you act just like a hick.
BILL: If you knew what Bill McGowan said about your line of chat.
He said—
MAMIE: I wouldn't believe a word.
PA: Hey, that's enough of that!
MA: What do you want for Christmas, Pa?
PA: I don't want a doggone thing.
BILL: Why don't you get him that sewing machine you wanted to buy last Spring?
MAMIE: Let's get him a swell tea wagon, Ma—they cost such a small amount.
PA: I certainly need one awfully bad.
BILL: They'll charge it to your account.
MAMIE: I do need a fur for 'round my neck, my old one is a fright.
BILL: Wear that Siberian Cheese hound thing you wore the the other night.
MAMIE: That was opossum, I'd have you know.
BILL: It looked like an old Tom cat.
MAMIE: You think you're smart.
BILL. I know I am.
PA: Hey, that's enough of that.
BILL: I ought to have a dress suit, Pa; my friends have all got one.
PA: Maybe they'll let you borrow it.
MAMIE: That ought to hold you, son.
BILL: God pity the man who marries you.

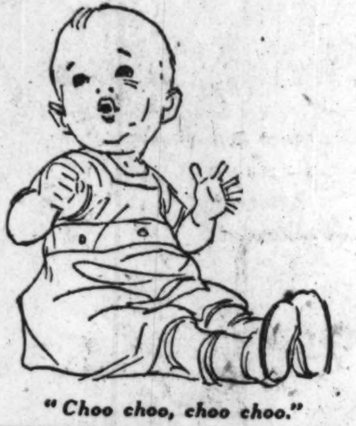


"I do need a fur."



"I ought to have a dress suit, pa."

MAMIE: God pity the wife you get.
But no one would have you.
BILL: Maybe not, but you haven't been kidnaped yet.
MA: Oh, baby knows what he'd like to have. Listen now, Daddy, do.
What would you like for Christmas, love? A little train?
BABY: Choo Choo.
PA: Now, just for that he gets a train.
BILL: That kid sure has a bean.
MAMIE: You mean he has a head, I guess.
BILL: I said just what I mean.
MA: Now, children, hush a minute, please, I want to talk to Pa.
Remember, I don't want a thing this year.
MAMIE: Oh, listen, Ma, I saw
The swellest coat on sale today.



"Choo choo, choo choo."

MA: Your Pa said we must save.
BILL: Dress suits don't cost so very much.
PA: You'll drive me to my grave.
MAMIE: Now, Bill, you heard what father said, your suit will have to wait.
But I do hope I get a fur.
BILL: I hope you get the gate.
MA: Remember, Pa, I don't want a thing—I'll make my old coat do.
MAMIE: I need a new fur.
BILL: Who kissed you in?
BABY: Choo choo, choo choo—choo choo.
MA: Listen, the baby!
MAMIE: Dear little baby!
PA: Even the baby, too.

ART

Tantalizing Whiffs of Lovely Venice in Blum Etchings

By Eleanor Jewett.

From misted seas
  Where the pink coral grows,
And white gulls drift
  Like spirits of past snows
Against the stars,
  A haunting music flows.

A golden song
  Under a silver moon—
Where flowers pale
  In the hot skies of noon
And spring lives on
  In the embrace of June.

From misted seas
  That flow beside white walls
The music sweet
  Runs rippling, lifts and falls,
In Venice lanes
  When love to young love calls.

THE mystery of Venice is compounded of many things. There is youth in it—and age. Tragedy, comedy, love, hate, despair, moonlight and hot sun, the smell of water running under century-old bridges, the whisper of grief under the stars, the sweep of a gondolier's oar and the melody of his song at midnight, the freshness blown in from the wide sea and the breath of incense from the gold, dust-flecked interior of San Marco—all these are part of the mystery of Venice. It is a city to be young in, to make love in, to dream in, and to dream of ever after.

A whiff, just a breath, of Venice is borne to us in the etchings by Robert Blum in the print room of the Art Institute. Not enough is given to turn one's head, but a sufficiency to make the longing to see that place of canals and palaces again rear itself to dragon size in one's heart. "See Naples and die" may content some persons, but the witchery of Naples, for those who love Venice, is not a tenth as potent as the charm of "Santa Lucia" sung by a golden voiced tenor, under a low swinging moon, when the gondola creeps silently through flowered byways to the wide expanse of the Grand canal.

Robert Blum gives romantic snatches of Venice. Here is a doorway, there a palace; here a view down a canal, over yonder the sail dotted bay. Beside these etchings he offers for our appreciation "Busy Hands," "Man with Donkeys," and "Illustration." Each of these has its own charm and message, but the background of Venice is missing.

The exhibition in the Print room is diversified, and one of the most entertaining that has been given us for some time. The drawings by John Flaxman, R. A., have been seen before, though not in this gallery. They are illustrations to the text of Pope's Iliad and Odyssey. The vigorous drawing and spirited action make these pictures ones to be remembered with pleasure. An attractive feature of the wall where they are hung is the portraits of John Flaxman and Mrs. Flaxman, the gift to the institute of Robert Allerton.

The lithographs by William Rothenstein form an interesting group of representations of prominent men. We recognize among them Max Beerbohm, Fantin-Latour, John Singer Sargent, Auguste Rodin, and George Bernard Shaw. The portraits are virile and show a mastery by the artist of his instruments.

The chief part of the exhibition comprehends the etchings by A. Beaufrere. They were presented to the institute by Morton H. and Alfred K. Eddy. The majority deal with scenes in France. They are handled in a delicate, appealing, gentle manner. We find none of the broad assumptions of Zorn nor the abrupt perfections of Whistler. Possibly the most whimsical of the etchings is the one showing soldiers on leave fishing, with long, slender poles, on the banks of the Aisne.

Beaufrere leaves France when he depicts the beauties of Algiers. Some of the etchings made from scenes in that land of sunshine and palms are exquisite. Look, for example, at "Vue sur Alger" and "La Mitidja et le Mont Bou-Zegga." The print, "A Tolga," has unmistakable charm, too. Besides these there are a few etchings illustrative of Biblical events, such as the "Flight Into Egypt," "Jesus and the Woman of Samaria," and the "Nativity."

A number of exhibitions have been scheduled for December. Among them are the annual exhibition by the Chicago chapter of the Wild Flower Preservation Society of America, paintings by Guy Wiggins, Charles H. Woodbury, Alfred Juergens, and John and Anna Stacey; a group of paintings by Gifford Beal, W. Elmer Schofield, and Eugene E. Specher, pastels by William Penhallow Henderson, and sculpture by Jo Davidson.

The Chicago Camera club announces an exhibit of prints by C. W. Christiansen, to be hung in their gallery from the 1st of December to the 21st. On Wednesday night of this week there will be a life class, which, if the results are as satisfactory as those of the last one, should yield some pictures of interest. On Dec. 15 the president of the Illinois Audubon society, Orpheus Moyer Schantz, will lecture on "Birds of Chicago and Vicinity."' The talk will be illustrated with an excellent set of slides.

An announcement in the Camera club bulletin reads vaguely, but is worth repeating for the sake of the meaning that seems to lie beneath the words: "The sample post cards submitted by the club have been approved by the Municipal Art league, and the privilege of producing the first series of cards has been awarded to your club committee. Let this be an incentive to all members to prepare prints for this important purpose."

What are these post cards? Views of Chicago? Art cards? Comic—but that, no. This sounds like an enterprise of serious value to Chicago. When you consider the commonplace cards generally found at stations and on bookstalls it seem surprising that some action has not been taken before, not only here but in other cities. Boost Chicago! This may be another departure to be copied by Boston and sister cities.

You need Duofold for comfort indoors AND outdoors!— because it's double-fabric construction—cotton inside and wool outside—gives the soft, agreeable feeling of pure cotton, with the warmth and protection of wool. The wool doesn't touch you!

AVIATION

Each Downstate Town Should Be an Aviator's Haven

Each Village Urged to Provide Landing Field

BY MORROW KRUM.

WHILE the low clouds, the blinding mists, and the piercing snows are keeping nearly all of the flying men on the ground this winter, aviation promoters throughout the state are making efforts to provide landing fields and service stations near all of the downstate towns.

Illinois is said to be one of the best states in the union for flying. Except the southern part, a pilot can pick with ease a field large enough to permit a landing. Flyers have been known to relax their usually constant lookout for fields as they have floated over the state. The "squared mile" system of roads helps, and the rivers, railroads, and numerous towns are great aids to the stranger who flies by a map.

But most of the downstate towns do lack a plainly marked landing field and facilities for obtaining gas and oil. Of course, there is an emergency field close by every village that can be used for flying, and there are few villages in the state that have not been visited by airplanes.

The flying men want the names of the towns painted on broad roofs. They want a landing field marked. They want some garage in each town to provide a means of carrying gasoline to the landing field.

This work can be done by the local associations of commerce of the rotary clubs. It wouldn't cost much to mark the fields, the flyers argue. And when it is taken into consideration that flying is going forward in gigantic zooms, the people of the state will realize the importance of this. All aircraft owners and builders predict a big season next summer.

Sterling, Ill, is said to have the biggest welcome sign for aviators in the state. The word Sterling has been painted in letters 40 feet high on a broad roof there. A landing field on the edge of the city is plainly marked. The work has been done by the Sterling association of commerce.

Last week William E. Kayser, a former pursuit observer in the air service and a member of the rotary club of Carbondale, made a motion before the latter organization asking that a field no the north edge of the downstate city be marked for flyers.

In Champaign pilots see the golf course on the university grounds, and land there. In Dwight they pick out Col. Frank L. Smith's private golf course. The landing field in Pontiac is located on the southeastern edge of the city. Joliet has a field at the corporation limits.

A campaign to have the fields and towns marked has been started by the Aviation club of Chicago.

"If you want to keep apace with the times and profit by this new industry, make your city an airport," is the plea sent out by that club.

Raise Funds.

A new and effective service to be performed by airplanes was demonstrated recently when eleven De Havilands and a Caproni took off from various towns in Texas in an endeavor to stimulate interest in the effort of the American Legion of Texas to raise funds for the hospital for ex-service men who are victims of tuberculosis. This hospital is to be located at Kerrville and it was necessary to raise $350,000 by Nov. 11.

Record Flight.

Lieut. George W. Goddard made a record flight from Dayton, O., to Washington, D. C., last week, covering the 400 miles in three hours and twenty minutes.

Lieut. Goddard first flew to Dayton from Washington in a D H-4 B, bucking the wind all the way and taking five and one-half hours to make the distance. The purpose of the trip to Dayton was to have the D H-4 B remodeled and converted into a photographic plane which will be used for mapping purposes around Washington.

Less than a week's time was consumed between the start from Washington, the remodeling of the plane at Dayton, and the return to Washington. On the return flight Lieut. Goddard had the wind with him and made the distance from Dayton to Moundsville, W. Va., in one hour and twenty minutes, thence to Washington in two hours.

Test Flight.

The messenger airplane was flown in its initial flight Nov. 1 by Lieut. John A. Macready of the flight test branch, Dayton, O. This airplane is the smallest now in the service, and is equipped with a three cylinder air cooled radial engine of sixty horse power. The airplane responded very well to the controls and was reported by the pilot to be pleasant and easy to fly. The high speed was ninety-six miles an hour, which is considered remarkable for such a small airplane with an engine of such low horse power.

U. S.-Cuba Gap Bridged by Air Mail in One Hour

Regular air mail service between the United States and a foreign country is now being carried on as surely as regular transatlantic ship mail service.

Every day since Nov. 1 huge aeromarine-navy cruisers, freighted with several hundred pounds of mail and ten or twelve passengers, have been running on schedule between Key West, Fla., and Havana, Cuba, crossing in an hour the gap which takes a steamer an entire night to bridge.

The big flying boats travel through the air with the sureness of a locomotive along its rails or a steamer across a smooth sea, for they were specially built to fly over oceans for long distances.

As a means of testing their stamina and reliability the two aeromarine cruisers were flown down the Atlantic coast from New York to Havana, a distance of 1,600 miles, just before the Key West-Havana mail service was inaugurated. The 1,600 miles were ticked off behind them as regularly as a watch marks off the second, although no effort was made to try for a speed record. The big cruisers can do 100 miles an hour. The aeromarines, with their luxurious cabins and other fine passenger facilities, are not racing planes, but air yachts designed to carry passengers swiftly, yet in comfort.

Flying Time.

The flying time for both free and observation balloons was 29 hours and 3 minutes at Fort Omaha last month. Free balloon flying time was 9 hours and 2 minutes, and observation balloon flying was 20 hours and 1 minute.

7 men last week
prominent in Chicago's commercial life
Convinced themselves of Marmon superiority through self-demonstration

OUR offer of loaning you a Marmon for a day or a week-end is still in effect. We will gladly send a Marmon to any responsible man in Chicago, caring for his own car in the meantime.

Of those who took advantage of this offer last week, seven leading business men "sold themselves" Marmons.

This is the very extreme in comparative demonstrations, which we have long advocated as the only sane way of judging cars.

But it takes a car like the Marmon to dare a self-demonstration. It takes a car like the Marmon to sell itself without the presence of alluring salesmen.

The Marmon needs no experienced demonstrator to put it through its paces. The Marmon is not a trick car. Any man who drives, or any man's chauffeur, can drive a Marmon and make comparisons.

In loaning you a Marmon, we accompany it with a Marmon Score Card, so that you can check off the comparative tests. We also furnish a stop-watch, for acceleration and deceleration tests. If you wish, we furnish a Marmon equipped with a one-gallon gasoline test tank, so that you can measure fuel consumption.

We invite you to try a Marmon for a day. Drive it as if it were your own. Put it through your routine. Compare it with your present car.
Name the place and hour, and we will gladly send a Marmon to you. Please telephone Mr. White, Sales Manager, or write.

FARM and GARDEN

Bright Lights and Less Work Lure 'Em Back to the Farm

By Frank Ridgway

BRIGHT lights have always attracted man as well as birds and insects. This has been manifested in the constant stream of people moving from the country to the city. Today many are hopeful that this same peculiar affinity of man will have an important bearing upon the reversal of the current of population, with the constant increased installation of electric lights and power on American farms.

Electricity is being talked about by farmers today more than at any time since it was discovered. Some enthusiasts predict that the time is not far off when rural America will be webbed with electric wires, supplying the farmer's home and barn with electric light and power and the conveniences of the city. It is believed that possibly no one thing will have so much to do with improving conditions on the farm as electricity.

It is no more a dream with the farmer—it is practical—for electricity has already been harnessed to run most of the machinery around the barns and homes on many farms. Some have their own lighting plants installed on their farms, while others have built lines from the power plants in nearby towns.

Saves Man Power.

Throughout the dairy districts of this country many dairymen are using electricity as their chief source of power in operating their plants. Some plants are equipped with electrical appliances to do everything from handling the feed to milking, separating, and bottling the milk. The work is done as efficiently by machinery as it could be done by man, and one is impressed with the fact that comparatively few men are needed to operate a large dairy farm where the machinery is run by electricity.

At the Four Pines farm near Hinsdale, Ill., every building on the place is lighted with electricity, including silos and small sheds as well as the dairy barns and the homes where the men live. Here is an excellent example of what is being done with electric power on the farm. All of the machinery in the dairy and horse barns is driven by electricity, enabling the men to save themselves of hours of hard work.

Everything is done on this farm with businesslike regularity the same as is found in the most modern manufacturing establishments in the city. At this "milk factory" they begin, like the manufacturer, with the raw product, and wherever it is possible the material is handled with electrically driven machinery until it comes out as a finished product ready for the market.

Just Turn a Button.

At milking time the herdsman and his attendants in white uniforms walk into the barn and turn a button or two, flooding every corner of the building with white light and starting the motors to humming like a nest of bumble bees.

The use of electricity for eight years at Four Pines has convinced E. D. Comstock Jr., manager, of the efficiency, safety, and simplicity of operating the machinery, and the ease with which back breaking jobs may be eliminated, saving time and expense in operating the farm. He considers it the most dependable source of power, which is an important factor with all dairymen who must care for their herd every day in the year. The hired man and gasoline engines may go back on you, but you can almost always depend on electricity, farmers say.

Electric motors make little noise to disturb the cows. That is an important thing around dairy barns, for a cow is about as sensitive to noises as a thermometer is to the changes in temperature, and she will not produce at her best when disturbed. The milk sheets that dairymen use in recording the number of pounds of milk produced daily will register any noise or disturbance around the cow barn.

Hitch Motors Everywhere.

With the power from the electric motors, hay and grain are hoisted into the mow and bins with ease at the Four Pines farm. The feed grinder is also run by electricity. With these tiny but powerful motors the milking machine eliminates the tedious and laborious method of drawing the milk by hand, and with one of these little giants the cream separator is turned at a terrific but uniform speed, throwing the milk into one can and the butter fat into another.

Wherever it is possible to hitch a motor on to the machinery and save man power, it has been done on this up-to-the-minute dairy farm, and it is done because it pays. Out in the repair shop the emery wheel, grindstone, and drills are kept buzzing with an electric motor. Hundreds of gallons of water are pumped on this farm every day by electricity, and during the summer the Guernseys in the barns at Four Pines stand in their breezy stalls with a huge electric fan paddling over their heads from sunup to sundown.

Electric Hoist Best of All.

Those who visit the Four Pines farm, which is owned by F. K. Babson, are impressed with the convenience of the electric hay hoist used in pulling hay and grain from the wagon up into the mow and storage bins on the second floor. Including all of the contrivances that are rigged up and driven by the electric current at this plant, the manager says that the hoist is the handiest thing of them all, saving hours of hard and dangerous work of pulling hay up with a team or throwing it in by hand.

He says that in hay time the electric hoist increases the efficiency in labor more than 10 per cent, and he believes the smaller the farm the more important this is. The hoist is a simple device made with two drums around which the ropes attached to the big hay fork are wound. It is merely substituted for the team. With the hoist the pulleys can be slightly rearranged and the hay piled in any corner of the mow. Safety as well as labor saving is a desirable feature of the electric hoist.

Bell vs. Yell System.

"We use the bell system in signaling the hoist up and down. When we used the yell system," said Mr. Comstock, tightening his lips and shaking his head as he recalled a pitiful scene during harvest time a few seasons ago, "one of our men got his hand torn into shreds in a pulley before we could relay our yell to the driver and stop the team.

"By using the electric hoist the fork can be returned to the wagon in half the time that it takes to make the return with a team. The ropes will last three years longer than with the old system. Our signal system is two bells, go ahead; one bell, stop; three bells, back up, and a series of short rings when the load is all off."

Th danger of fire is eliminated where electricity is employed. Not a single fire in eight years is the record at Four Pines. The insurance rate is lower. Little space is required by the motors, and they are not affected by changes in temperature in winter or summer.

Electricity used in separating milk saves the labor of one man on Mr. Babson's farm where the cost of electricity used in milking mechanically is less than one cent a day for each cow. The milking machine is operated by a vacuum pump which is connected by pipes running over the stanchion and driven by an eight horsepower electric motor. The same motor is used in grinding feed and operating the hay hoist. An average of four minutes is all that is required to milk a cow.

Slams of Life

By J. P. McEVOY

MY WIFE'S OPERATION.

The new league of nations may bulk in your view,
The mangle of Wrangel may interest you,
The falling of prices intrigue you the while,
Or the newest example of feminine style;
The high cost of porterhouse, soup and pea hay
May loom rather largely in your vision today.
But large as they loom, they must go to the shelf—
My wife's operation,
My wife's operation
Is vastly more vital—she says so herself.

Whenever the neighbors drop in for a call.
They don't have to wait very long for it all,
They hear how she bravely bore up with a smile—
How it took so much ether, and such a long while,
How the doctor was proud of her courage and vim,
What he said to her, and what she said to him,
And "My dear (whisper, whisper)"—"You don't mean to say!"
O my wife's operation,
Her new operation
Provides conversation forever and aye.

She sings it at home and she chants it afar,
At dinner, the movies, afoot or in car,
To friends and to neighbors, and strangers as well
The wistful details she must thrillingly tell,
And over and over and over again
Per omnia saecula saeculorum, Amen—
Some say she can't last, but they don't know my wife.
Her swell operation
She'll cry with elation
Through all of the nation the rest of her life.

REO

Do You Really—and Fully—Appreciate Reo Values?

If you have ever owned or driven a Reo you do, of course.

"Five hundred miles ride in a Reo forever spoils you for any other car."

But we find that folk who do not know Reo quality and Reo performance intimately, are unable to appreciate why Reo is, "The Gold Standard of Values."

Most buyers compare Reos with other cars selling for about the same prices.

That's no comparison at all. It is, in fact, unfair to Reo.

Take the six cylinder touring car for example.

It sells for $1850.

But that's no basis for comparison.

Nor does the $2750 price of that luxurious Sedan truly reflect its quality and beauty.

Do you know of any other motor truck at anywhere near the price that will do the work of a Reo Speed Wagon?

Compare a Reo, of any type, point for point, with the best car you know selling for $1000—yes, $1500—more.

Analyze—and the more critically the better—technical points and mechanical details.

Note the careful discrimination of Reo engineers and the care and fineness of the making.

Hidden values—concealed excellence—those beauties that you learn to appreciate only after long and hard usage are Reo attributes.

Any Reo model will measure up with—and in many cases excel—other cars selling for twice the price.

Compare motor—the sweetness and silence of it; economy of upkeep and operation; power. Ask Reo owners about its sturdiness and long life.

Compare transmission, axles, springs and all the mechanical details.

Then compare externals—especially quality of materials and fineness of finish.

Then ask yourself what more you can hope to receive to compensate for the great difference in price.

Of the Roadster and the Coupe the same is true.

Compare any Reo model with the best car you know of same type, but selling for a much higher price.

That's the only comparison that does full justice to Reo quality, Reo value.

Name?—there's none stands higher than Reo.

Ownership of a car of this make is at the same time, a badge of social distinction; and an evidence of good taste and sound judgment.

The very word Reo is a synonym for quality—and any Reo car, at its price, represents "The Gold Standard of Values."

ASTRONOMY

SUN AND WORLDS.

In astronomy there is a sharp distinction between suns and worlds. A world is a body which has a surface; a sun is one which has not.

On earth we never have any trouble in knowing where solid land begins, where there are cliffs or mountains, hills or valleys, because the substance of the earth is sharply divided from the substance of the air. Neither do we have trouble in knowing where the surface of the water is, for it makes, if anything, a sharper plane with air than the land does. Only in the rare instances of bogs and quicksand is the boundary between the water and the land beneath ill defined.

The only place on earth where strata are not clearly marked is in the air. Fogs, mists, and clouds—names for the same class of objects—exhibit no fixed limits. A mist has no true surface like a pond of water. Even though it is lying still on the ground, or in a valley, with the appearance of a sheet of liquid, there still is no place where its top can be said to begin.

From this we learn that solids and liquids have surfaces, while gases have not. The sun is entirely gaseous, even to the core, and nowhere on it are shapes more sharply marked than tongues of flame are here.

If you were to approach the sun, you would first behold a gigantic, white hot sphere, surrounded by a far flung veil of soft green haze. On one hand this corona, or "veil of glory," as it is called, would melt into the blackness of the surrounding space, while on the other, it would merge into the brighter, hotter forms below.

Beneath the corona, but high above the sun itself great cloudy shapes of scarlet gas are floating, much like clouds afloat in our air. Beneath them, in turn, are fiery, flickering tongues which play and dance above a tossing sea of white hot gas. And through the holes between the waves appears a fleeting glimpse of hotter, fiercer heat below, extending downward into the substance of the sun. In all this vast expanse of fire there is not one solid atom, nor even a drop of liquid, but only flame.

The stars are also suns, and built on the general pattern of the sun. The giant planets of our own solar system are more like little suns than they are like worlds. Jupiter and Saturn have no surfaces other than banks of seething clouds about a flaming core.

Of all the planets which are worlds, only the earth, Venus, Mars, and Jupiter's third moon seem fit for habitation.

To be a living world, a globe must have a shell of atmosphere. Without it, its land is naked, and exposed to the biting heat and cold of space. Only these four bodies, out of the hundred or more which comprise the prominent members of the solar system, have the necessary conditions to support life.

THE EDGE OF THE SUN
BY S.F. MAXWELL

They Laugh at this in Vaudeville

RIALTO.

"Have you ever seen Maude Adams?"

"No, but I worked for her father."

"You worked for Maude Adams' father?"

"Yes, Adams' Express company."

"Here's a proposition. I have a new act in my trunk. Go down and read it carefully."

"What, the trunk?"

"No, the act. Then come back here and we'll hold a rehearsal. And then I'll take you with me—that is, if you act with credit."

"No, sir; if you want me to act, you got to pay me cash."

"That'll be all right. The name of the act is 'Taking Chances.'

"If I go out with you I'll be taking some awful chances."

"You'll never have another opportunity like this as long as you live."

"I'm afraid if I go with you I ain't going to live long."

"You'll be as safe as if you were in the trenches."

"That'll help some."

"And now leave me alone, as I have a date with a girl that's a peach."

"I bet she's a rotten peach."

"You're no judge."

"If I were, I'd give you life."

MAJESTIC.

Watson, Young, and Nashville:

"By the way, constable, what makes your nose so red? Sunshine?"

"No, moonshine."

"See that suit? It was made by the six little tailors."

"Five of them were drunk."

"We lost our trap drummer last week."

"O, did he die?"

"Well, if he didn't, we played a dirty trick on him. We buried him last week."

"Say, there are mice in that room."

"Are they little tiny ones?"

"No, these mice are so large."

"O, those belong next door. They're not ours."

A Practical Gift

Why not surprise her Christmas morning with something she will really appreciate. A gift that will remind her every week of every year of your thoughtfulness? We suggest

The 1900 Cataract Electric Washer

We recommend this washer to you. Our tests have proved it to be the best and we place behind it our absolute guarantee.

There is no other washer just like the CATARACT. The double oscillation of its planished copper tub is an exclusive feature, and is rigidly covered by patents. The wringer also is electrically operated and swings to all positions, so that you may wring your clothes from the washer to the rinse water into the blue water and thence into the basket without moving the washer. This means that you have completed, without tiresome effort, the entire task which now requires hours of rasping and rubbing on the washboard.

A $5 Payment Is Sufficient

The purchase of a 1900 CATARACT WASHER requires merely a down payment of $5.00 (five dollars). Perhaps you had in mind an inexpensive gift. Why not let us make arrangements to deliver this machine to your home and start to pay the balance in 1921? We would like to have you make arrangements for your Christmas CATARACT as early as possible, so that we may guarantee delivery a day before SANTA CLAUS pays his visit. You are invited to visit our demonstration upon the Sixth Floor or at any of the CATARACT stores listed below:

Historic Highway Lifted from Ruts of Past Century

State Paves Two-Thirds of National Old Trail

BY J. L. JENKINS.

Four major trunk lines make up the splendid chain of hard surfaced highways which will be connected early in 1921 to give Illinois one of the finest systems of continuous through routes in the world. State highway officials have concentrated every resource and all of the federal aid funds in the last two years in driving through this 850 mile project as a foundation for the complete network of $60,000,000 bond issue roads which eventually will connect every county seat and important town in Illinois with each other and with the federal aid or transcontinental routes.

In a series of five stories The Tribune has reported detailed progress on three of the trunk lines. The Dixie highway lacks but five miles of completion between Chicago and Danville. Ten short gaps, now provided with good winter detours, alone remain on the Lincoln highway between Chicago and the Mississippi; and the 350 miles of paving on the Chicago-Peoria-Springfield-St. Louis road will be opened for traffic complete next summer. Here is a "wind shield view" of the fourth big link, the historic National highway.

ONE HUNDRED years ago a ribbon trail, weed grown, rutted and grim, stretched across the Illinois prairies, beckoning a few hardy adventurers on to St. Louis and the unknown west. Covered wagons, an occasional mule train, and now and then a sturdy buckboard labored through the mire of the first pioneer highway to open a mighty western treasury to the world. Vandalia was the capital of Illinois in those days. The state archives had been moved over the historic trail from Kaskaskia a year before in a two horse wagon. St. Louis was the center of western culture. A fifty mile journey was a serious undertaking.

Today the same old trail runs into the west across the prairies, straight as the crow flies from the Indiana state line to Vandalia and hooked and winding through the Kaskasia bottoms, where the old wagon trains picked their routes as best they could. It is the same old road, but two-thirds of its 160 miles between the state line on the east and Eads bridge on the west is paved with permanent concrete, brick, and macadam instead of the deep mud and hidden sink holes that worried adventurers in 1820.

Sixteen gaps still remain to interrupt the all-weather surfacing that will represent Illinois' contribution to the National Old trail between New York and Los Angeles in 1921. Years ago government engineers and contractors laid macadam on the road across Indiana, and graded the trail overlapping into Illinois as far as Vandalia.

They also built culverts and bridges to the old state capital. These structures, erected when material and labor were made to work for the future, are still in use, although state construction forces have supplemented them with superstructures of steel or concrete in some instances.

Completed concrete paving reaches from Terre Haute across the state line to Marshall now. Then comes a gap to Martinsville. One state contractor is handling this entire stretch and hopes to complete it early next season. From Martinsville paving has been completed nearly to Greenup, and concrete has been laid through the town. A second short gap under contract takes the road to Woodberry, and a longer uncompleted contract runs through Montrose. New concrete begins in Teutopolis and runs into and through Effingham. Heavy grading has been completed through Funkhouser to pick up a long paved stretch opened through Altamont, St. Elmo, Avena, and Brownstown.

Near Vandalia state engineers have succeeded in overcoming the impassable bottom lands of the Kaskaskia through raising the road in a heavy grade and embankment above the river. Paving from that point is complete through Hagarstown, and the contractor is still at work in an attempt to close the five mile gap and relocation through Mulberry Grove.

New paving runs to Smithboro to meet another uncompleted contract running to Greenville. A short paved stretch is open to Stubblefield, but lack of materials this year has left a long gap in the project running from that point to Highland.

From Highland to Collinsville and on into St. Louis the road is paved all the way with macadam or brick reinforced by concrete. Heavy trucking from coal mines in the vicinity has already ruined several miles of the improvement, according to state engineers, who are preparing, they declare, to bring suit against firms guilty of overloading coal trucks. East St. Louis is preparing to wind up the Illinois contract with a flourish by running a subway under five railroads at its outskirts where five separate grade crossings now endanger the motorist.

This work on the old national road can hardly be completed before late fall next year. Sand and gravel could be had during the season just past only in small quantities because of the freight car famine, and constant delays were encountered all along the line. The road is the only link in the federal aid system that cannot be recommended for tourist travel in the 1921 season.

How About Your 1921 Auto License?

If you are partial to your 1920 state license number, remember that Dec. 11 is the final date for its reassignment to your 1921 plate. Application blanks for new automobile licenses have been mailed to every car owner in Illinois by Secretary of State Emmerson. They must be filled out and returned, together with the registration fee, before Jan. 1.

The schedule of fees is the same as that established last year: $8 per year for cars of 25 horsepower and less; $12 for 35 horsepower and more than 25; $20 for 50 or more than 35; $25 for more than 50 horsepower, and $12 for electrics. The Chicago Motor club has finished compiling the horsepower of various makes. You may compute what fee you owe for 1921 by locating your model car in the following table. Horsepower fractions are counted again this year:

Uncle Sam Votes Billion for War on Mud Highways

National Election Drew Eight States Into Bonded Union

FIVE states voted bond issues aggregating $192,000,000, a sixth passed a constitutional amendment enabling the state legislature to vote bonds to the extent of $50,000,000, and a seventh passed a constitutional enabling act without specifying amounts, at the general election held over the United States Nov. 2. Another, New Jersey, voted $29,000,000 in bonds for the construction of a vehicular tunnel under the Hudson river.

The total thus added to funds appropriated for highway construction and maintenance was $271,000,000, which, added to the bond issues passed by eight other states since 1918, gives a figure of $543,800,000 from this source of revenue alone. Funds available from federal aid sources are placed at $160,000,000 by officials of the bureau of public roads, while funds obtained from direct levies and other sources of state revenue and county issues or appropriations, will, it is estimated by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, swell the total so appropriated to more than $1,000,000,000.

Not all of this sum is available for expenditure at once, of course, as most highway programs are extended over a period of years, but it is deemed highly significant of the interest of the public in highway transport, that such issues should be passed, and generally speaking by huge majorities, in a year when other aspects of the election are generally all absorbing in interest.

The full extent of the funds appropriated for highway work is not yet known nor is it possible yet to ascertain definitely what the projected program of work for 1921 will be. If, however, the line of curve of expenditures since the war should be extended in 1921, an approximate expenditure of $550,000,000 would be arrived at for 1921, a figure which is believed not unreasonable by those in touch with the national road situation.

An interesting phase of the election outcome is that seven of the eight states which acted favorably upon bond issues or enabling acts, did so for the first time in their history, indicating that the bond issue is coming to be an accepted medium of highway finance.

In only four states were bond issue proposals defeated, and in each case the defeat is attributed either to purely local conditions or to provisions in the respective measures which failed to meet with the aproval of the electorate. Thus, for example, in New Mexico, officials deemed the proposed issue unnecessary.

One Every Mile.

Alabama, Arkansas, Nevada, South Dakota, and Oklahoma have one motor vehicle for every mile of road.

Trailing Oil.

More than 1,200 pipe trailers were sold for use in the oil fields of Texas, Oklahoma, and Wyoming during the last twelve months by one trailer manufacturing company. A number of other companies have also been making large sales in the oil fields during the last three years, about one-third of the output of one leading company for the last year having been pole and pipe trailers used in the oil and lumber industries. There are almost no hard roads in the oil fields, and the soil is bottomless mud in wet weather. A mad rush to haul in derricks, oil well casing, stills, and other heavy materials made the conditions so exacting that some of the trailer companies sent their engineers to study the conditions on the ground and design trailers in coöperation with the oil operators.

For Safety.

Massachusetts has a safe roads federation made up of representatives of numerous organizations, including motor vehicle clubs and dealers' automobile insurance companies, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, women's organizations, and others interested in the cause of preventing highway accidents.

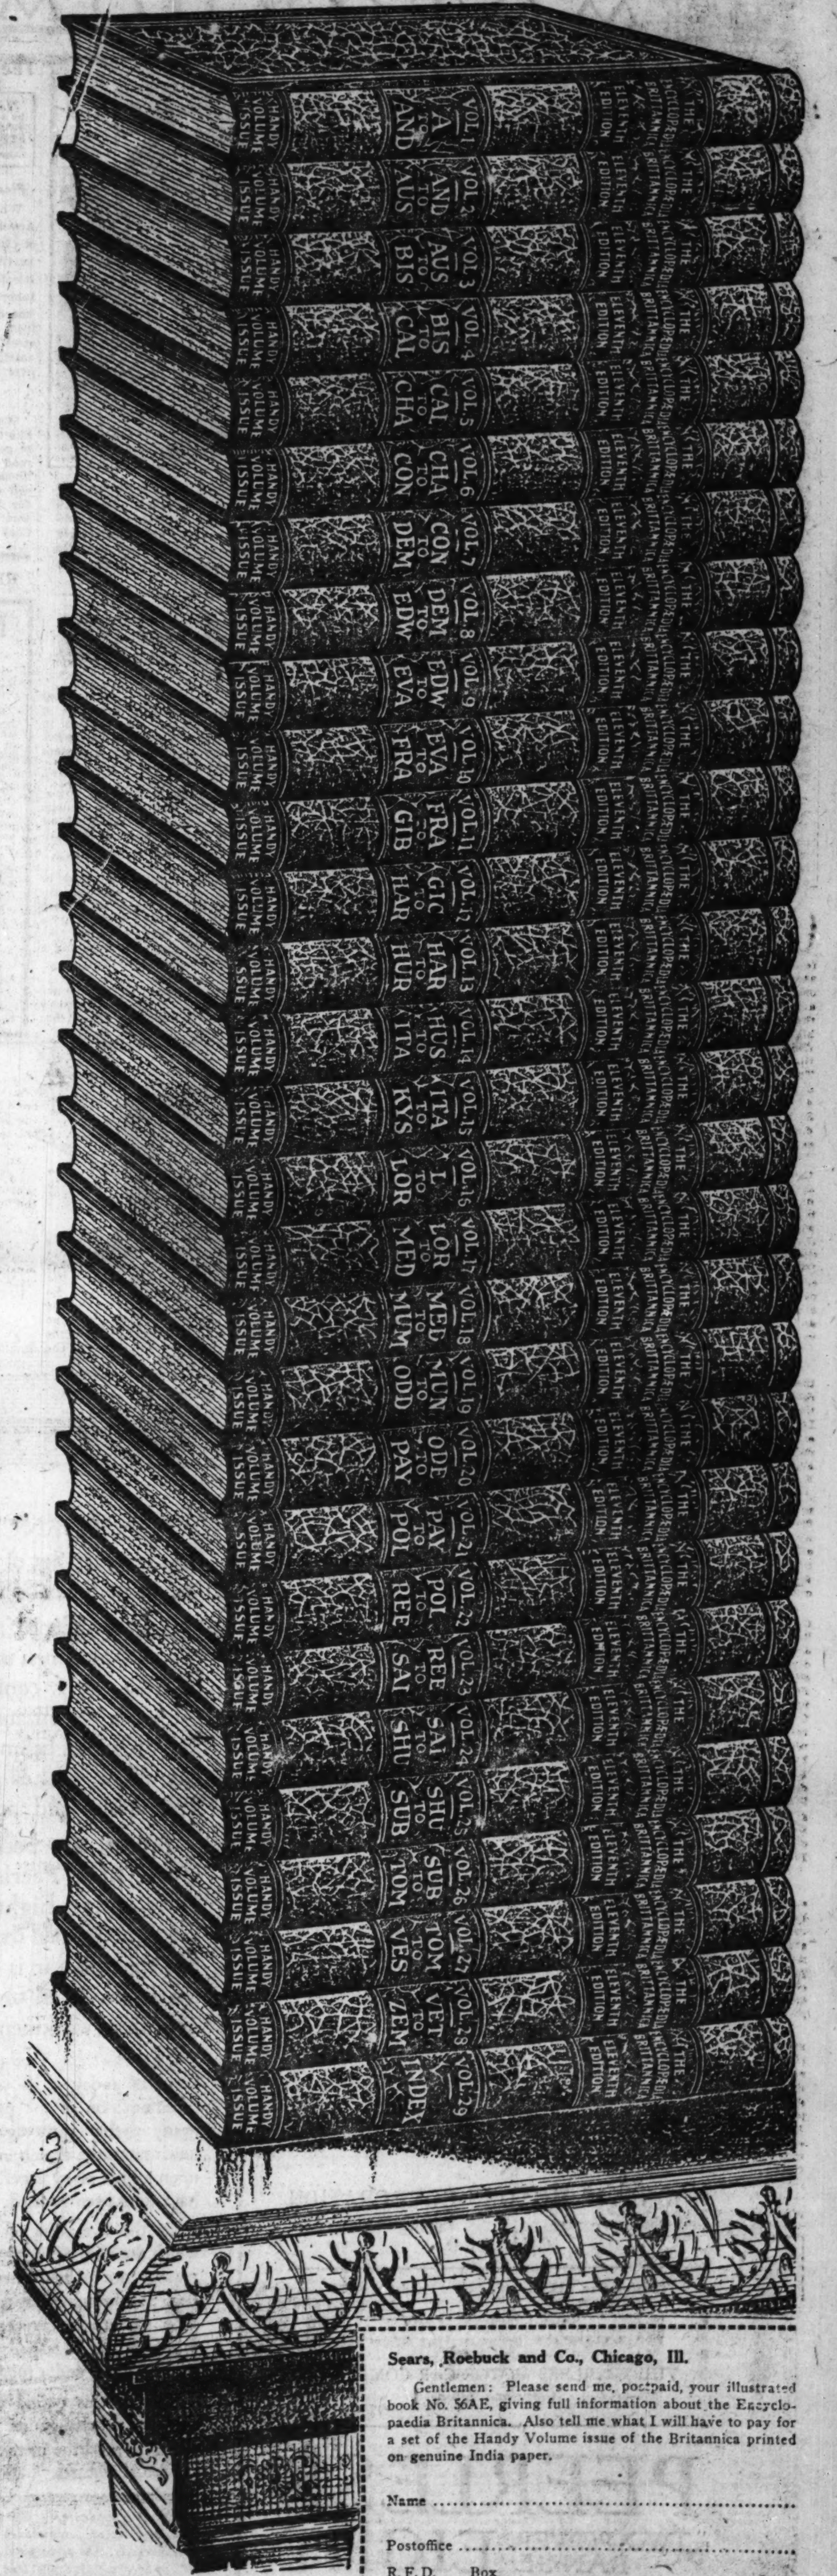
YOU NEED
THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

THE PAST TWO YEARS have brought a tremendous stimulus into every field of human thought and activity. In science, medicine, engineering, chemistry, physics, agriculture and aviation there have been epoch making discoveries and inventions. Art, painting, sculpture, music, literature and the drama have received their share of this new vigorous interest. There has been a marked renaissance of reading. The industries have felt the stimulus in the demand for greater production, although business has had to contend with serious problems of labor and finance. There has come a new and intensified interest in social service, education and a new spirit in religion. There is a greater interest than ever before in athletics, in sports and games. As a direct result of the war and the participation of the United States in world affairs, there has been aroused a great incentive to the study of history and of foreign countries, together with their peoples, government, political development, products, resources, exports and imports, customs and commerce.



The Britannica Goes Hand in Hand With the Awakened World

The tremendous quickening of thought and activity puts upon every man and woman a great responsibility to understand the meaning of the present day developments in science, art, industry, economics and politics. The necessity for authoritative, comprehensive and unprejudiced information has never been so great. The Encyclopaedia Britannica, known for 150 years as the standard authority and the greatest guide to accurate information among English speaking peoples, furnishes the foundation of knowledge most needed by the business man, the manufacturer, the worker in the industries, the scientist, exporter, importer, student of world affairs, the social worker and teacher.

Are You Keeping Abreast of the Times?

What are you doing to keep abreast of these vigorous times? Do you understand the significance of these great discoveries and inventions and the tremendous progress being made in all branches of science? Can you read about these new discoveries and inventions—the new movements in art, religion, literature and drama with intelligence based on a general knowledge of these subjects?

Business and the industries of the nation have expanded tremendously during the past few years. Business has been facing new and strange conditions endeavoring to get back to a normal basis. In this tremendous readjustment it has been the men with the broad foundation of knowledge who, as executives and workers in our industries, have been able to take the responsibility and have risen speedily to positions of greater power and greater remuneration. To the business man, manufacturer, the worker in the industries, the Britannica will furnish information of practical, helpful and comprehensive character, and furnish a knowledge which will give to the man a broader insight into his work and the problems of today.

Gives You Information on Everything

No matter what you want to know—it may be information about your business or other businesses related to yours—it may be information you want as a result of discussions at your club or lodge, or information wanted in your home by your wife or children. Many subjects come up in the day's news in the papers and magazines, or in books you are reading. The Encyclopaedia Britannica will give you just the information you want on every subject you can think of.

The Most Authoritative Work in the World

The Britannica has had a long and enviable career, and has grown in authority and esteem from generation to generation until it occupies the position today as the great reference book, ahead of any other in any country or any language. It was published first in three volumes in 1768 and has appeared in eleven editions. It has had as its contributors a host of the greatest experts in the entire world throughout these 150 years. When you read an article in the Britannica, therefore, you feel confident that the information is reliable and authoritative, for the Britannica is the product of the wisest minds of the day, each a great specialist in the particular subject on which he is furnishing an article in the Britannica. These writers are either professors in our great universities here or abroad, or men and women who have acquired far advanced knowledge in their subjects, or, again, the great workers of the world who have achieved extraordinary success in their particular lines of work. You will be surprised how interesting and fascinating are the articles in the Britannica and you will have many hours of recreation and pleasure from a set of this great work.

MOTORDOM

American Makers Assign 300 Cars to Chicago Show

At the first automobile show held in Chicago in 1900 there were in all a few more than fifty exhibits. At the twenty-first annual Chicago show to be held in the Coliseum and First Regiment armory from Jan. 29 to Feb. 5 there will be nearly 400 exhibitors of motor cars and motor car accessories, and of this total eighty exhibitors will show different makes of cars. This does not mean that only eighty automobiles will be on the floor, for each manufacturer will display several models and it is estimated that more than 300 cars will be shown.

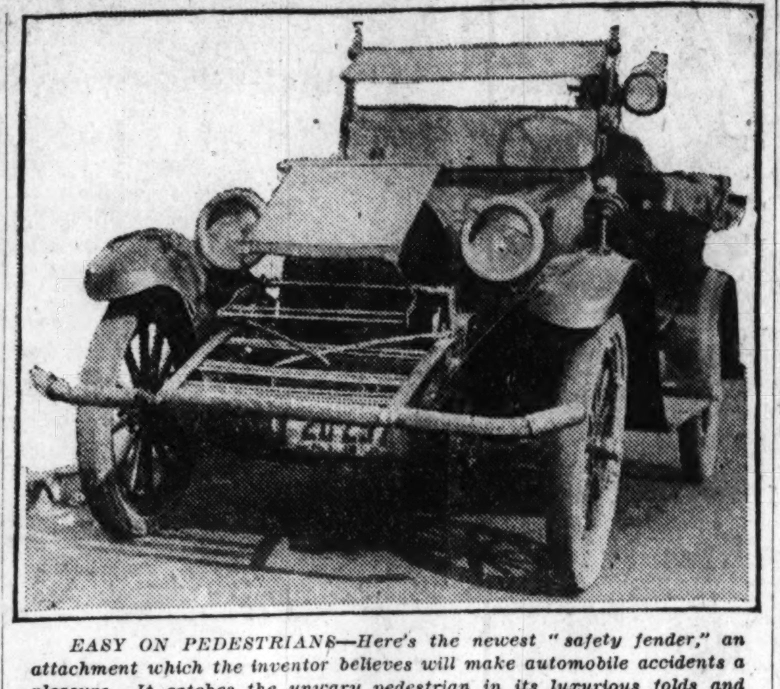
The coming show will demonstrate the strides made in the automobile industry. Only those who attended the first show, when motor cars were considered almost freaks, and, in fact, when compared to the present day models, were freaks, can realize the vast improvement.

Chicago's annual automobile show which is held under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, and is a twin brother of the New York exposition held earlier in January, has become a national institution. Manufacturers and dealers of every make of car vie with one another to stage an exhibit of beauty, but there is also a practical side to each display. The latest models of cars are, of course, shown, and while body design makes a car attractive, it is the engine that now makes the appeal to the present day motor prospect.

Motor car manufacturers have in the last few years paid more atttention to the engine. There have been many improvements in body designs, but automobile builders learned many lessons during the period factories were turned over to the government.

Iowa Progress.

A contract has just been let for grading, draining, and paving with concrete three miles of the Lincoln highway just east of Belle Plaine. Benton county will complete nine miles of permanently surfaced road next year, including the three miles of Lincoln highway. The total cost will be $427,000.



EASY ON PEDESTRIANS—Here's the newest "safety fender," an attachment which the inventor believes will make automobile accidents a pleasure. It catches the unwary pedestrian in its luxurious folds and gently carries him past the danger of collision, his head and body resting on soft safety strips. The inventor, Ernesto Finelli of New York, recently played "victim" and allowed the auto to strike him while traveling at a speed of twenty-five miles an hour.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

Spark plug service, something new in the way of motorist accommodation, is offered to the driving public through the opening this week of a new "AC" spark plug service station at 2448 Michigan avenue. A. G. Neubauer of Detroit is in charge of the station, assisted by T. Lesch and A. E. Frank.

A straight line shaft drive, friction clutch and transmission are features in the new Kelsey car, a six cylinder accomplishment of C. W. Kelsey now in production at the Maxwell-Briscoe Motor company plant in Newark, N. J.

C. E. Stebbins, general manager of the Maxwell Sales company, is advocating immediate plans for the proposed municipal garage to be built under Grant park. He has suggested that until such a project is completed the police department establish a checking system for cars parked in Grant park, with a nominal charge for the added protection such a system would give car owners.

A special display of dual valve, double ignition Pierce-Arrow trucks has been arranged for the week of Dec. 6-11 in the showrooms of H. Paulman & Co., 2420 Michigan avenue.

Another note of optimism comes to the automotive industry through announcement by the Napoleon Motors company of Traverse City that it is ready to resume manufacturing production on a normal scale following a plant closing and readjustment.

The Haynes company of Kokomo has issued a formal statement emphatically denying a rumor to the effect that Henry Ford has purchased its plant.

The World's Worst Road.

You've been over it. Unburden yourself by addressing "World's Worst Road," The Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Give the exact location of the stretch you struck. The Tribune will pay $1 for each letter published.

Please Hush! That's Home Stuff.

Why look farther? Shelve the Apache trail, for right here in the city of Chicago there's a street worse than anything I struck on the Arizona road. It's in the loop district between the Insurance Exchange on the west and Board of Trade on the east, and runs from Jackson boulevard to Van Buren street. It can be negotiated with safety only by a tank equipped to travel over No Man's Land. W. W. D.

Call for Mr. Hannibal.

Would suggest that motorists who like real mountain climbing thrills try to get to Muscatine, Ia., on the Aledo road from Buffalo Prairie through Illinois City, Ill. After doing this eighteen or twenty miles of Alpine work the Rockingham road out of Davenport or the roads through Milan or Coal City seem like boulevards.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

THE selection of a seven-passenger Sedan is a problem that deals with maximum qualities only.

Price aside for the moment—there must be a beauty in coach making that only originality guided by impeccable taste can create, a luxury of equipment and a refinement of finish that only the best the market affords can provide.

And the background of these qualities is supreme mechanical excellence—performance.

Regardless of price, the Paige seven-passenger Sedan, built on the new "6-66" chassis, meets all these requirements.

Examine it. You will find it offers everything a man could desire in an enclosed car.

"Promise is most given when the least is said"

CONFIDENCE is the product, not of promises, but of performance.

It is confidence, not promises, that puts men in positions of trust. It is confidence in the men, organizations, ideas and principles behind a motor car which makes promises superfluous and ambiguous.

When one becomes the owner of a Peerless Two-power-range Eight, we are deeply concerned that he shall feel that his car is the finest expression of an organization of sincere workmen.

The Peerless Two-power-range Eight of today is, if you like, the consummation of the promise made nearly twenty years ago; but it is much more the expression of an ideal upon which many experienced minds have long been focused.

In the five years of life through which the Two-power-range Eight has passed since its first conception, it has been put through every test demanded of a modern motor car. The even faithfulness of its response has revealed a sound heart and a rugged character.

During this period we have not seen fit to change its fundamental design beyond the mere refinement of incidental features.

Just as confidence is the product, not of promises, but of performance, so too may we say, inversely, that performance is the measure of confidence. And the true test of both is appreciation. Chicago has demonstrated its faith in Peerless performance by one of the largest current records of Peerless purchases. That, we think, is appreciation plus.

The Charm of Color

HAVE you ever realized the exhilarating effect that warm, pleasing colors, even in a picture, have upon your physical well-being? For instance, visualize this illustration in your mind's eye, in all its natural coloring—the blue sky, the verdant foliage and brilliant flowers, the sunlit buildings with their purple shadows, the sparkling, iridescent waters—and—presto, your troubles vanish and you are filled with a warm spirit of contentment.

The interesting feature of this illustration is, however, that this is no vision, but just a fragment of the real, summer-like environment that you find everywhere

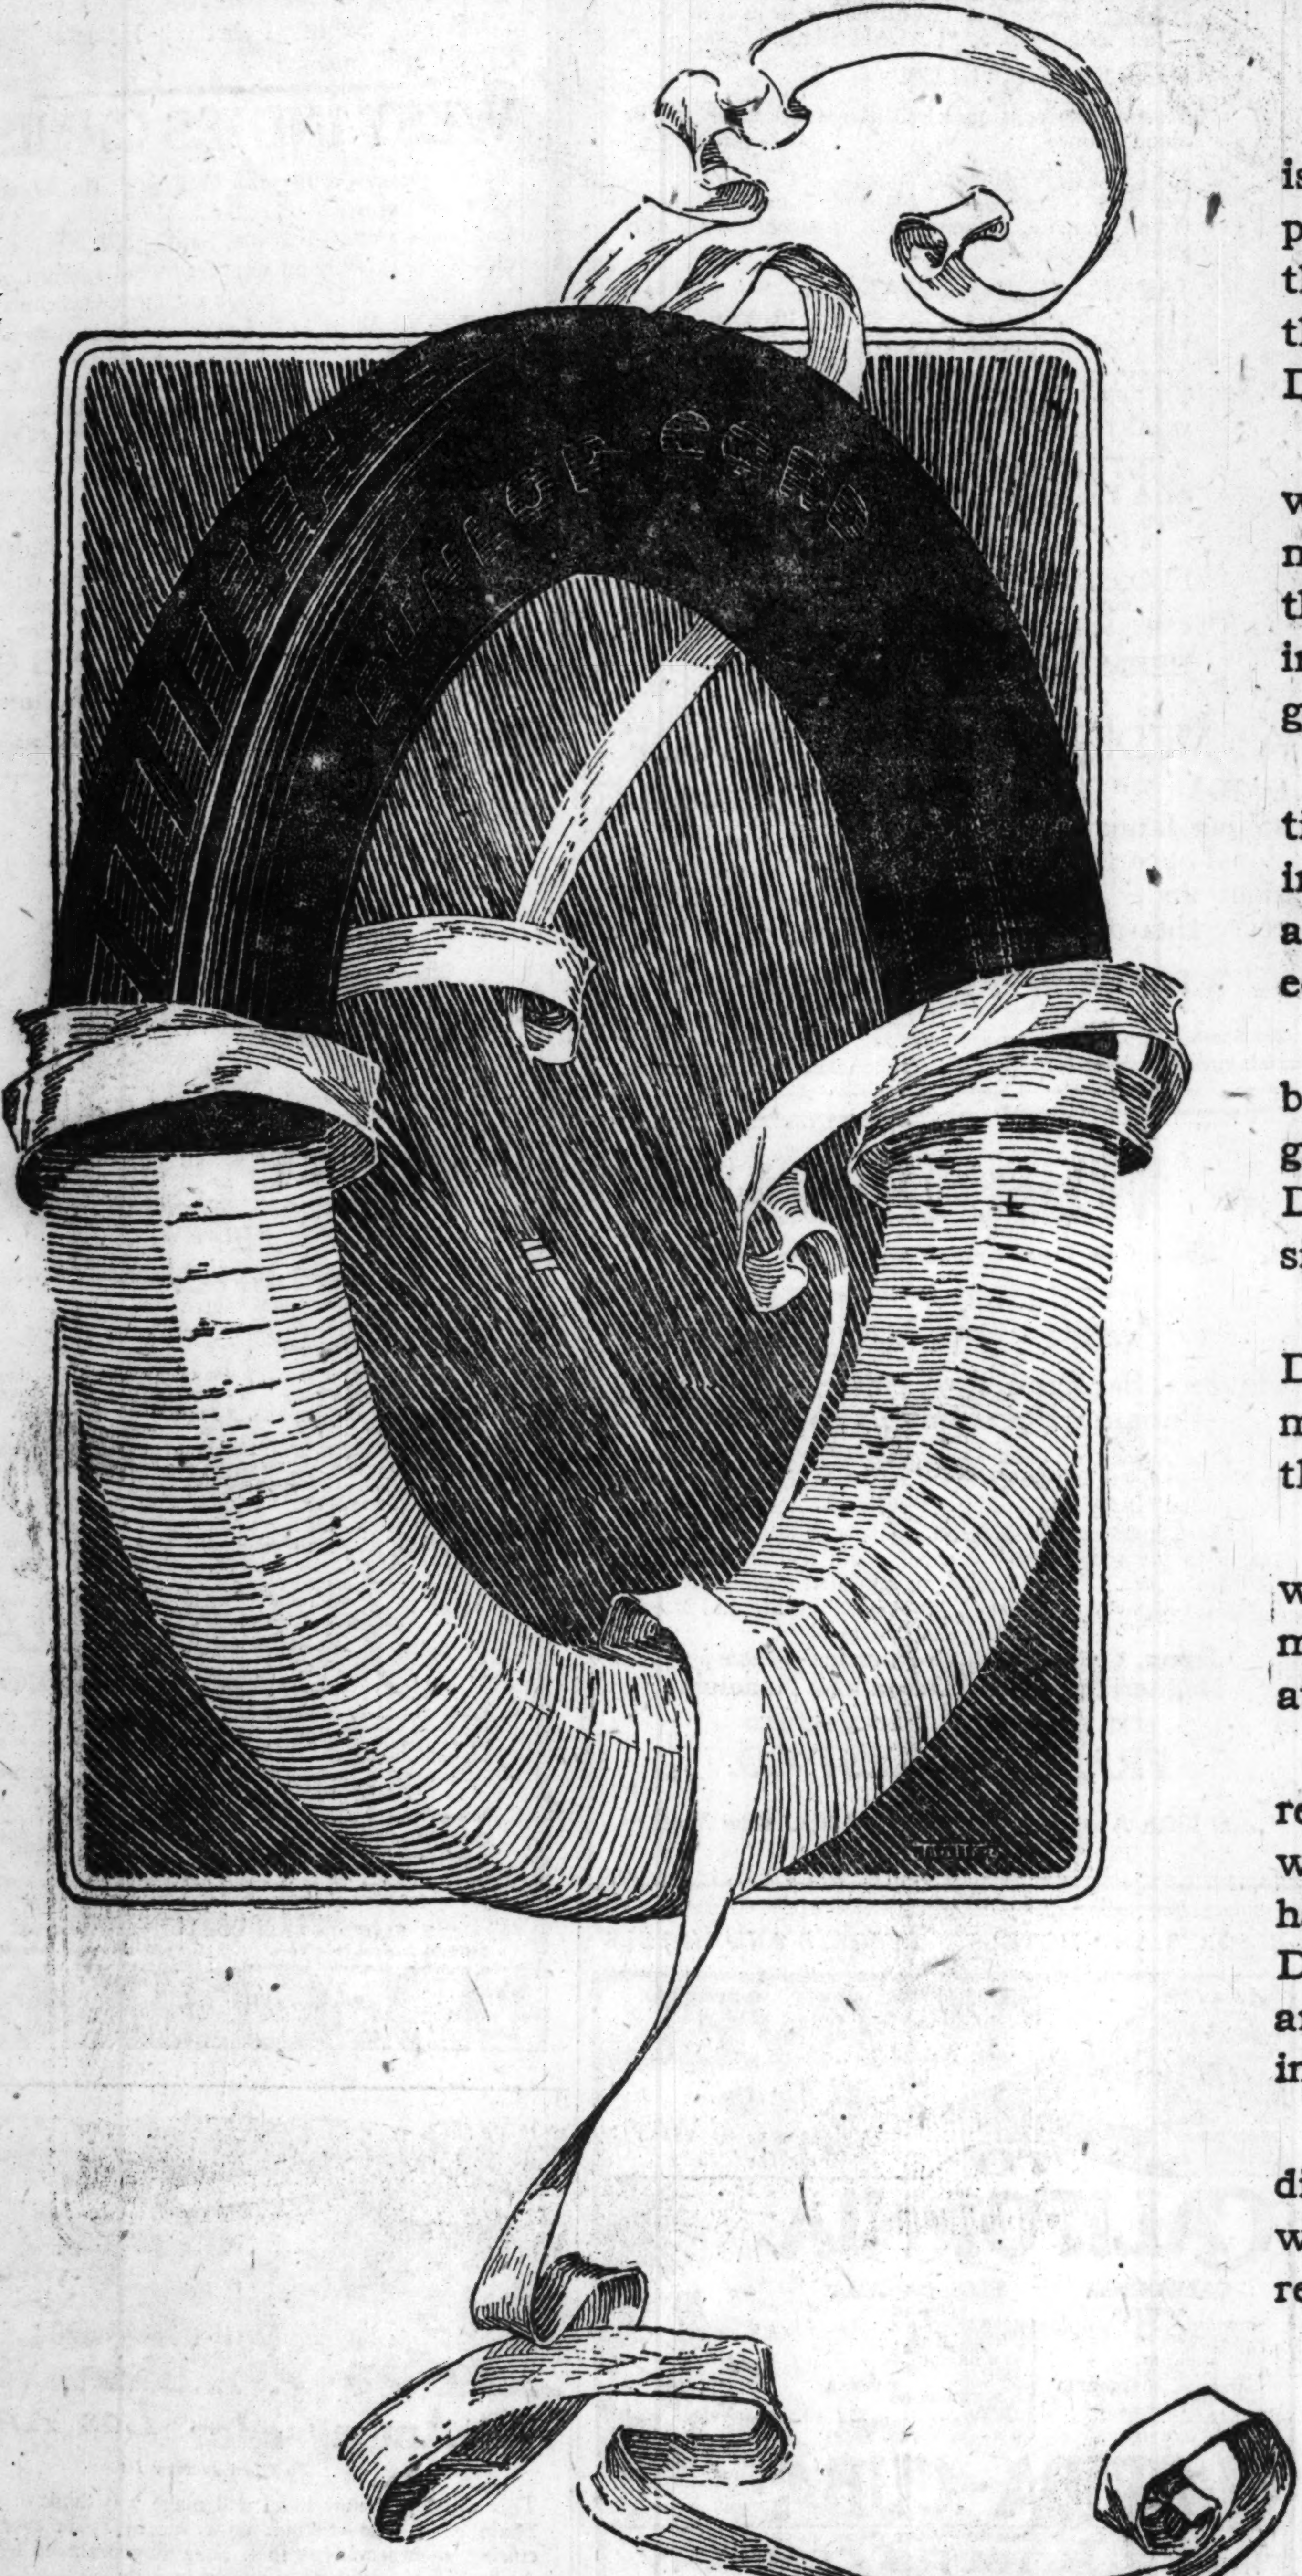
MUTUAL INTEREST—WHAT IT MEANS TO US



The Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation of America is building its business on a policy of mutual interest, a policy which looks beyond the making of a good tire to the delivery of continuous user-satisfaction by every means that the Dunlop factories, the Dunlop organization and Dunlop merchants can provide.

All our business transactions and our personal relations with the public and with our own employees, with Dunlop merchants and with the automotive industry, are based on that policy of mutual interest. We cannot be too emphatic in saying that the Dunlop name and the entire Dunlop organization are back of it.

In the designing and building of only the highest grade tires, in research and investigation to improve these tires, in relations with Dunlop merchants and employees, we shall always consider that you and we have a mutual interest in economical, satisfactory tire transportation.

This is not a new Dunlop policy. It goes all the way back to the early days of the Dunlop institution, which began with the invention of the pneumatic tire by John Boyd Dunlop more than thirty-two years ago, and which has since spread around the world.

It is as much a part of the institution as the many Dunlop factories or rubber plantations or cotton mills—as much a part as the acres of buildings at Buffalo, which are the headquarters of Dunlop in America.

In maintaining this policy of mutual interest, Dunlop will welcome suggestions and advice from tire users, tire merchants and all who are associated with us in the automotive industry.

In accord with it, the Dunlop merchant becomes our representative to you, and your representative to us. He will, therefore, be one who has selected us as truly as we have selected him, because he believes as we do that Dunlop's responsibility does not end with a sale, nor with any stated mileage, but continues as long as the tire remains in service.

Dunlop Tires will soon be in actual production, and distribution through retail channels will follow. We will welcome the opportunity to discuss distribution plans with responsible retail tire merchants who are interested.

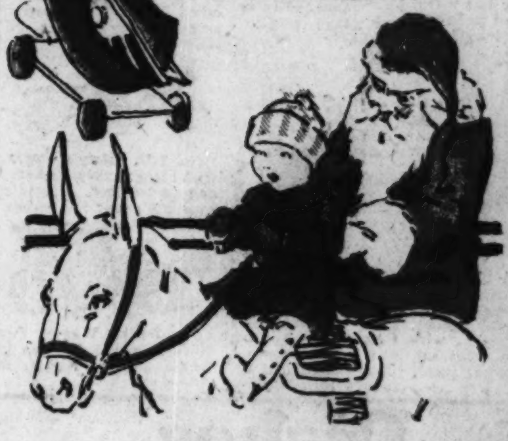
MEET ME AT THE FAIR
STATE ADAMS & DEARBORN STS. CHICAGO



A Picture of You on a Donkey —and Santa Claus

We can't think of a jollier present for a small boy or girl to give away at Christmas time than a picture of themselves on a donkey, taken with Santa Claus. 4 pictures for 50c.

4th Floor

OLD Santa Claus had his very good reasons for saying, "Meet me at The Fair," and these reasons you will find listed on the pages of this toy catalogue. You will see in our great Toyland aisle after aisle piled high with all manner of toys of every sort, just as your parents did when they were children, for even then The Fair was famous for toys. But, of course, the Toyland of Then could not compare with the wonderful Toyland of Now, where, on every side, you can see counters and shelves covered with all the newest mechanical toys, contrivances that run and jump and dance and fly. And while you are visiting this wonderful Toyland at The Fair, by all means take a peep into the Doll Hospital, as complete an institution for invalid dollies as you can find the country over. We recommend that you keep this catalogue as a shopping guide to Toyland, one of the largest toy departments in the country—so that when you and yours are ready to make us a visit you can show Santa Claus just what you wish for Christmas.

15,000,000 Europe Clamor To Enter U. S.

News item reprinted from Chicago Tribune of Dec. 1, 1920:

"New York, Nov. 30.—[Special.]—Seventeen representatives of trans-Atlantic steamship lines have reported to Frederick A. Wallis, commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, that 15,000,000 Europeans—men, women, and children of all social and economic classifications and representing every old and every new government in Europe—are clamoring for immediate passage to America."

WHAT IT MEANS.

Many of these immigrants are coming direct from the soil of Europe with one ambition, which is: To acquire land upon which they will apply their skill and live the life enjoyed by the industrious farmers of this country. It means the taking up of America's few remaining available agricultural lands.

THEY KNOW.

Americans have had such good opportunities for so long that they do not as keenly appreciate the advantages of owning land as do these oncoming immigrants, who know that owners of developed farm lands become the lords of the land, for whom landless citizens must work. They know the success of their brothers and cousins who came to America only a few years ago and are now independent farmers. They know that the way to do it is to work only a few years in the factories, mines, and forests at the good wages paid in America, and then with their savings pick out some of America's choicest low priced farm land and establish a permanent home for themselves and their families. They know that in the next generation mighty little if any land will be available. They know that the most substantial foundation and backing for a family is the ownership of a good farm. They know that they can make their farms send their children to college and give them advantages as the result of saved up profits which cannot be accumulated with the expense of living in cities.

CAN YOU SEE AHEAD?

The good lands always did and always will go to the first choosers. We are just opening up one of the last best tracts of farm lands in Michigan's Lower Peninsula. You cannot get any of this land if you wait a year or two. There are too many people who know if they want a farm on some of this good land they will have to jump now. As these lands commence to go the price on the remaining lands will go up, as they do every season. You can make money by starting your purchase now on a payment basis instead of waiting until next year, only to find that the lands will be higher priced or all sold. We sell many thousands of acres every year and you must remember the population is ever increasing and good new farm lands are becoming less and less in the market.

WHAT TO DO.

Right now is the precious time to act. Send for our literature. Satisfy yourself that ours is the district which will suit you. Satisfy yourself that we are responsible land merchants [20 years' continuous business]. Satisfy yourself that our insurance feature, our loaning of money to settlers in proportion to amount paid, and our co-operation with settlers in many ways are desirable things for yourself and the community settled about your land. Satisfy yourself that our lands are good and that the conditions insure successful farming to the man who will apply intelligent work. Send for literature today.

that there is no State in the Union like Old Virginia, where farmers get the best prices for their produce [corn is selling at from $1 to $1.10 a bushel, oats $1 a bushel, hay from $30 to $50 per ton, all kinds of farm vegetables at top notch prices, fruit of all kinds at top prices]. Our financial concerns are protecting our farmers, and money can be had at 6 per cent to all comers. Come to Old Virginia, where the sun shines every day. Smile, and the world smiles with you. INSTRUCTION.

THE CHARM OF CULTURE.

Culture favors a few through birth and environment, but Culture can be and is acquired by the ambitious.

Innate Culture, the heritage perhaps of some far distant generation of gentle ancestors, lies undeveloped in many and requires only desire and application, properly directed, to fully develop it.

Culture is the most powerful asset one can possess for social or business success.

Even a beautiful woman or a man of fine appearance who unfortunately lacks, or is unable to express, the wonderful charm of Culture and all its little refinements, soon becomes tiresome and offensive to people of good breeding. In this day and age Culture is a necessity and the intelligent reach out and acquire it.

A woman without Culture cannot long mingle with people of refinement. A man lacking Culture too often finds business promotions slow and hard to attain, although he may not realize the real reason for his lack of progress.

Look around at the progress and success of those you know and ask yourself if Culture is not a powerful asset.

Gain poise and confidence through acquiring Culture, so as to be able to meet and mingle with those occupying high positions in business or social life.

WRITE TODAY without obligation for the first installment of our course, "The Science of Culture," mailed FREE on request. After inspection, if you desire to continue the course it will be sent regularly for a small monthly payment. It teaches everything that the really cultured should know. Satisfaction guaranteed.

DECEMBER

We have in stock about thirty Used automobiles of various makes, none older than 1917 and most of them 1919 and 1920 models. All of them that needed repairs, overhauling, and painting have been taken care of and are now in as good condition as when new.

In some cases it was unnecessary to do anything at all as the cars as when they were traded in were in perfect condition, not having been driven far enough to require any attention.

This is particularly true of some 1920 models that we have on our floor that were traded in for closed jobs.

For instance we have a 1920 Oldsmobile, Little Six, 5 pass. car, driven only 4,800 miles, equipped with cord tires, 2 extra, seat covers, cutout, motormeter, neutrol lock.

1919 Saxon 5 pass., driven 1,846 miles. 2 1919 Oakland Sedans, driven less than 8,000 miles, on which we have cleaned the carbon, ground the valves, and gone over the chassis, adjusted the brakes, and refinished the cars.

1920 Moon, driven only 9,880 miles; needs nothing.

1919 and 1920 Cole Aero Eights, all in guaranteed condition. During the month of December we will not only sell any cars we have in stock at a real reduction in price but to any one selecting one of these cars for spring delivery we will store same free of charge.

In addition will give you an opportunity to try out the car before putting it in storage.

Will be open all day Today for your inspection.

GRAINS ADVANCE ON GOOD BUYING; WHEAT IN LEAD

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Good buying on all weak spots carried grain prices higher yesterday. While top prices were not held, due to profit taking and week end evening up, there were gains of ⅜c to 2c on wheat, while corn was ⅛c to ⅜c higher, oats ¼c to ⅝c higher, rye unchanged to 1¾c higher, barley 1c to 2c higher. News was mixed, with considerable that was favorable to the holding side.

The week developed a better feeling in all grains. Despite the prevalent pessimistic feeling the markets showed the effect of the recent heavy liquidation, and the overselling on the declines, together with a change in the mental tone, brought a rally. At the close wheat showed net gains for the week of 15¼@15½c, corn 3⅜@6c, December leading, oats 2⅜@3⅛c, rye 10@13¼c, and barley 5½@6c. Provisions have done better, with pork up $1 per brl, lard up 12½@15c, and short ribs 17½c higher, compared with a week ago.

March Wheat Leads Bulge.

A feature of wheat trading was the active buying of March, mainly by local traders, and a great deal by houses that were the largest sellers on Friday. It advanced from $1.62¼ to $1.68½, with the close $1.67@1.66¾. New high levels were made on the present upturn, but the finish was 1¼@1½c below the top.

A good deal of the strength and the buying were induced by the advance in Winnipeg, which led all other markets and closed 2@3⅛c higher for the day. Southwestern and Minneapolis markets were relatively the weakest, with gains of ½@1½c. Winnipeg said its strength was due to buying attributed to the British government. There was selling and a good decline at one time on the Indian shipments of 1,240,000 bu. Southwestern offerings were slightly increased.

Bad Weather Helps Corn.

Corn had good support on the breaks due to unfavorable weather, and was sold freely on bulges by several big commission houses. Premiums were lowered ½@3c, mostly on new.

Oats made an advance to new high levels on the present upturn and closed ¼@½c below the top. Cash houses sold December, making it relatively the weakest.

Rye was bought by seaboard houses that took December while speculators sold May. The close was at a fair reaction from the top. Barley was firm and unchanged to 3c higher.

Provisions Close Firm.

Provisions had poor support most of the time, but rallied at the last and closed higher, owing to light offerings. The week's shipments were smaller than those of the previous week and last year. Prices follow:

Ample power to quadruple present business, which is a food necessity, now running day and night. Present management is efficient, aggressive and successful. No sale is contemplated, but we need $50,000 with which to increase business under existing management and organization. This is a "hard time" investment, as business depression actually brings increased consumption of our commodity. Earnings will easily be 25 per cent and maybe much higher. WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The grain trade is confronted with more adverse legislation than at any time. Those in close touch with the work while realizing that the situation is a most delicate one also notice that the Farmers' National Grain association at their convention here on Friday, although having the Capper bill before them, failed to indorse it, referring it to their legislative committee. There is a wide field for educational work, as those familiar with the situation say that the grain exchanges are being made the goat for all the politicians.

The feeling in the grain trade Saturday night was moderately bullish, especially on breaks. The strong statistical situation in wheat tends to check selling. There is said to be a large sized short interest, which is working on the belief that the export demand may fall off and that any material advance would increase the country offerings.

There are indications of a slight increase in the movement of corn from Illinois. The Illinois Central railroad, whose grain loadings aggregated 83 cars a day in November, is now loading 150 cars. The corn movement, however, is the lightest at this time in over five years.

"Corn, oats, and provisions are comparatively cheap," said Joseph Wild of E. W. Wagner & Co. "The farmer has certainly a big kick. Coal, steel, eggs, bread, rents, building material, rail rates, and 70 per cent of United States wages are at levels that equal $2.50 wheat and $1.25 corn."

Reports to J. E. Bennett & Co. from Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri points indicate that there will be no material increase in the movement of corn for several weeks. In some sections of Illinois roads are in bad condition and husking is not yet completed.

Foreign political conditions are commencing to attract attention from grain traders. There is a suspicion that foreigners are commencing to anticipate requirements of wheat in view of the chaotic conditions prevailing abroad.

Australia shipped 72,000 bu of wheat to the United Kingdom and 56,000 bu to the continent the last week. India shipped 1,096,000 bu to the United Kingdom and 144,000 bu to the continent for the week, or 1,240,000 bu.

COTTON MARKETS

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—Cotton had a slightly better tone, with a fair advance, which was partly held. There was nothing particularly attractive in statistics to create trading. It is said that the National ginners' estimate of the crop is 12,420,000 bales, including linters. This is materially under figures said to exist recently. There was no improvement in the text of the trade, although indications are for a better demand from mill interests. Closing trades were at gains of 10@24 points. Prices follow:

Big Financing Costs Too Much.

In great financial operations there is too much money paid out for commissions and underwriting profit. If some one wishes to float a bond issue on a $20,000 flat building there are probably forty bond houses anxious to distribute the bonds, and, as a result of this competition, the borrower need only pay enough to meet necessary expense and provide a small profit. The bond house which keeps its expenses the lowest and is satisfied with the smallest profit will get the business.

But if some great corporation wishes to float a $20,000,000 bond issue there are only two or three banking houses able to handle the deal, and the heads of these two or three all know each other and have some sort of a "gentleman's agreement." The result is there will be no competition for the $20,000,000 bond issue and the great corporation may pay an excessive price to get its bonds in the hands of investors; and note that while it is the corporation that pays over the big underwriting profit it is the investor who ultimately foots the bill.

There is no sound reason for such leakage in great financial operations. If a financially strong corporation, like the Pennsylvania railway, wishes to sell bonds to buy equipment it ought to be able to distribute them "over the counter" to investors and thus eliminate the big profit which now goes to some great banking house in New York.

There are situations, of course, where the credit of a great banking house is necessary to carry through a difficult financial operation and, in such case it is just and fair that the house should have a reasonable profit. But the great majority of large financial deals really require no other credit than that of the corporations directly interested.

Brief Answers.

E. J. W.—The Reo Motor Car company reports $3,356,975 added to surplus in the year ended Aug. 31 last. This is after paying 10 per cent on its $6,937,250 of stock. Only the balance sheet is made public. Apparently the year's earnings were not far from 55 per cent on stock.

O. M., Watervliet, Mich.—In reply to a request for information, the Michigan Guaranty corporation says it has sold $4,250,000 of treasury stock and has negotiated some high class loans. It furnishes no detailed financial statement.

What will you do with your money?

HUNDREDS will have funds available for investment on January 1. You probably will be one of these. When you receive your dividends, your bonus or your principal, what will you do with your money? If you are wise you will re-invest any principal that then comes due, and you will invest wisely and well any new funds you receive. The very best thing in the world to do with your funds, as an investment proposition, is to put them into H. O. Stone & Co.'s First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Bonds. They are safe, conservative, non-fluctuating and wonderfully well-protected.

If you are a business man

Your first consideration as a business man will be to put your money into something safe, and yet with maximum interest yield consistent with safety. For this purpose you will naturally choose H. O. Stone & Co.'s Bonds. Your good judgment will tell you that any securities founded on improved Chicago real estate amply protected by first mortgages must be all right. Thousands of business men own these bonds—and know their safety. Why not you? Suppose you hand this ad to your secretary and tell her to write for further details.

If you are a stenographer

Your money is the little nest egg that you are saving for that hope chest, or that little trip out west, or for something you are putting before everything else. You don't want to lose it—yet you do want more than usual savings interest, plus absolute safety. You can buy H. O. Stone & Co.'s Bonds on small payments, only 10% down and 10% monthly, and secure absolute safety, plus double usual savings interest. Better write us a postal on your machine today for further particulars.

If you are a chauffeur

Your savings mean a little home, or new furniture for your flat, or possibly a couple of cars of your own and taxi service some day. Can't afford to risk it, can you? Better put it where it will be absolutely safe—with a house you know you can trust. We have a number of your fraternity on our books as bond buyers—we'd like to add your name. May we do so? If so, just drop us a line and tell us to shoot you some information quick.

If you are a letter carrier

On your long walks through the streets you have a lot of time to think about investing your savings or your surplus funds. How about first mortgage bonds, secured by improved income-producing real estate? They are the safest possible investment for your funds—and they pay double usual savings interest. Many of your fellow workers on Uncle Sam's payroll have bought them. Suppose you run in and see us while on your next swing.

If you are a bookkeeper

You know that figures don't lie—that six per cent interest is better than three. Also that six per cent safe is better than nine per cent invested in wildcat propositions. For this reason you should investigate First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Bonds—and check each statement we make about them as carefully as you would your trial balance. There is a real reason why you should invest your funds on January 1st in H. O. Stone & Co.'s Bonds—as you will find upon looking into the matter.

December 1, 1920.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS AND THE HOLDERS OF THE 5% CONVERTIBLE BONDS OF THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC COMPANY:

At a special meeting held today the Board of Directors of the Southern Pacific Company adopted the following plan for the separation of its California oil properties and of its stock holdings in the Associated Oil Company from its railroad properties.

A new company, to be known as the PACIFIC OIL COMPANY, will be organized under the laws of the State of Delaware with a capital stock to consist of 3,500,000 shares of no par value for which the Southern Pacific Company will subscribe at Fifteen ($15.00) dollars per share, or $52,500,000. From the amount so realized the new company will purchase from the Southern Pacific Land Company, as of January 1, 1921, for $43,750,000,—

(a)—About 259,000 acres of land now owned by the Southern Pacific Land Company situate in the State of California, of which about 25,000 acres are proven oil lands and the remainder lands heretofore withdrawn from sale as possible oil lands, together with existing field improvements and materials and supplies;

(b)—200,690 shares, par value $20,069,000, representing 50.48% of the outstanding capital stock of the Associated Oil Company.

By the sale of these properties the Southern Pacific Land Company, the entire capital stock of which is owned by the Southern Pacific Company, will thus receive $43,750,000 in cash and the Pacific Oil Company will retain $8,750,000 as working capital.

Holders of the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company registered as such on the books of the company at the close of business on January 14, 1921, will be given the right to purchase at Fifteen ($15.00) dollars per share, payment to be made in full on or before March 1, 1921, one share of stock of the new company for each share of Southern Pacific Company stock so held.

The capital stock of the new company fixed at 3,500,000 shares to correspond as nearly as be to the total number of shares of Southern Pacific Company stock outstanding together with shares reserved for conversion of the company's 5% convertible bonds; and the holders of these bonds order to avail of the right to purchase stock of the new company, must exchange their bonds for Southern Pacific Company stock on or before January 14, 1921.

Warrants will be issued to each stockholder as soon as possible after the closing of the books on January 14, 1921, specifying the amount of stock of the new company which the stockholder is entitled to purchase. On the backs of these warrants will be two forms. In case it is desired to purchase stock, the first form is to be filled out and signed by the stockholder, or by his assigns, and returned on or before March 1, 1921, to the Treasurer of the Southern Pacific Company, A. K. Van Deventer, 165 Broadway, New York, N. Y., accompanied by a cashier's draft or certified check, payable to the order of the Southern Pacific Company in New York funds, for the full amount payable. In case it is desired to dispose of the privilege of purchasing stock, the second form on the back of the warrant, which is an assignment, is to be filled out and signed by the stockholder.

Where a warrant authorizes the pur[illegible] two or more shares of stock of the new [illegible]any, a stockholder who may wish to purchase a portion of the stock covered by the warrant and dispose of the remainder, or who may wish to dispose of a portion of the stock covered by the warrant to one person and the remainder to another, must, on or before February 24, 1921, return the warrant to the Treasurer to be exchanged for other warrants, specifying in writing the number of warrants desired in exchange, the amount of stock to be covered by each, and the name or names in which to be issued.

On surrender of the warrants and payment of the full purchase price on or before March 1, 1921, the Treasurer will deliver or forward to the holders the amount of stock of the new company purchased.

All warrants not returned to the Treasurer of the company on or before March 1, 1921 (accompanied by a cashier's draft or certified check as herein provided), will be void and of no value, and the privilege of purchasing stock of the new company evidenced thereby will cease.

No exercise of such privilege of purchase or assignment thereof will be recognized unless made on the forms of the company.

No holder of stock of the Southern Pacific Company will be entitled to any of the stock of the new company unless the terms of purchase herein specified are fully complied with.

All letters and inquiries in regard to any of the above mentioned matters, or details connected therewith, should be addressed to A. K. Van Deventer, Treasurer, Southern Pacific Company, 165 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

BY ORDER OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS,

A. D. McDONALD,

The New York Times.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Although trading on today's stock market was considerably more active than on the preceding Saturday, changes in price were not, as a whole, important. In the industrial shares, which were depressed by professional traders at intervals during the week, a few substantial recoveries occurred, ranging from 1 to 2 points up to 9 in Mexican Petroleum. All of this movement was admittedly due to the familiar week-end "covering of shorts," and had no particular bearing on the larger swing of values.

Measured by closing prices, the week brought a curiously confused readjustment in the stock market. Stocks which closed lower than at the beginning of the week, were as numerous as the stocks which closed higher. In general railway shares lost ground, while industrials recovered, but there were exceptions in both groups to make it difficult to determine the actual tendency.

In the bond market few advances occurred, and there were many declines of 1 to 3 points. Foreign exchange went lower, the rates on London, Paris, and Rome getting back to the level of the third week of November.

Plant Maintenance

Large economies may be effected in Plant Maintenance by careful periodic engineering inspection and checking of boiler and engine room, coal and ash handling, service pumps, motors, power and light wiring and fixtures, insulation, water supply, plumbing, conveying and other equipment.

We occasionally find a critical situation which requires emergency measures, and our per diem or monthly service fee is often saved many times over.

We also design "Factories that Fit."

A Time for Optimism

"The man who is a bear on the U. S. A. in time will go broke," once remarked the elder J. P. Morgan.

The roots of prosperity go deep into American soil, and the soil is rich. Years and years of good business are ahead.

The stock market flurry is merely a symptom of healthy deflation. Business must readjust itself after a period of inflation. Unsound ventures may suffer. The sound ones will not only survive; they will be strengthened by a return to more normal conditions.

Now is the time for the conservative investor to secure a high yield on his money for years to come, without any of the risk which would attend such a yield ordinarily.

A 9½% Investment

Class "A"
O-Cedar Channell Chemical Co.

Preferred and Profit Sharing
$62.50 per share to yield 9½%
with Further Possibilities

ALMOST every one knows O-Cedar. Almost every woman knows what an indispensable article it is—at least four out of five know. Most men know what a wonderful business success it has been (in the past nine years it has paid 260 per cent dividends on its outstanding capital).

O-Cedar is as well known in many parts of the world as it is in America. (About one million dollars' worth of O-Cedar was sold in England this year.)

The O-Cedar business has been owned by a close corporation—Mr. C. A. Channell and a few associates. The business has exceeded its working capital limitations.

More Capital Required

In order to expand, to make new day economies, to meet world-wide conditions, to make O-Cedar a larger success, new capital is required and invited. An inviting investment opportunity is offered.

This new capital is to be invested in new manufacturing facilities, enlarging markets, foreign expansion and other channels that have proven profitable.

The Plan

The plan is this: Class "A" Common Stock is being offered to the public.

This stock is sold at $62.50 per share. The return is an annual dividend of $6.00 per share. A yield of 9¾ per cent. This dividend is the first obligation of the company.

The stock is really preferred stock because the dividend is fixed—$6.00 per share annually. In addition, the Class "A" Stock has full voting power, is non-callable, free from the normal Federal Income Tax and exempt from the Illinois Property Tax.

It has further earning possibilities—to yield more than 9½ per cent through extra dividends.

Class "B" Common Stock is to be held by Mr. Channell and his associates. No dividends can be declared on the "B" Stock until the dividends on "A" shares have been paid. Then the "A" shares further profit in the earnings equal to the "B" after the "B" have been paid. In other words, the "A" Stock is preferred as to the earnings as well as to the assets.

Upon the completion of this financing the Company will not have any bonds, mortgages or preferred stock (it being the intentions to retire the outstanding preferred stock).

Earnings in the Past

The earnings of the Company for the past nine years have exceeded 40 per cent.

The earnings for the seven months ending July 31st, 1920, were $269,875.00, or over the entire annual dividend requirements of $6.00 per share on the Class "A" Common Stock. These earnings were made despite the high cost of raw materials and adverse working conditions.

Earnings for the year 1920 (before tax deductions) should exceed $600,000.00.

Additional Earnings

In addition to O-Cedar the Channell Chemical Company owns the sole and exclusive sale rights for Aladdin Dye Soap throughout the world. This means that Aladdin Dye Soap is destined to occupy in its field what O-Cedar is in its—the dominating leader. It means to you, as an investor in the Channell Chemical Company's stock, an additional source of profit.

It is confidently expected that the present financing will enable the Company to double its business—both in O-Cedar and Aladdin—during the next year. In this event, the total profits should exceed One Million Two Hundred Thousand Dollars, or over five times the regular dividend requirements on Class "A" Stock, leaving a large equity applicable to the paymen of extra dividends.

Present Management Unchanged

Mr. C. A. Channell will remain in active personal direction of the Company. His entire fortune, to a large degree, is represented by Class "B" Stock. He is neither withdrawing his capital nor personal efforts. In fact, the same hands that have guided the Company in the past will direct it in the future.
